

Council Told Notes To Congress May Save Tongue Point

By RUSSELL DAHR

A barrage of letters to Oregon congressmen may be the deciding factor in retention of Tongue Point Job Corps Center, retiring president Bill Van Dusen told members of the Clatsop Community Relations Council Tuesday night in the center's library building.

Van Dusen urged that civic, racial and county groups, schools, churches and individuals write to representatives in Congress expressing approval of the training center's program. "I have no information on the future of the center," Dr. Dorothy Burns, center director, told members of the council, "but I am optimistic. I really feel that people think our kind of program is necessary."

Dr. Burns said the center proposes to budget $200,000 for training for the coming year, an increase of 5 per cent over last year. The new budget must be prepared by March 12.

710 Graduates Working
Sydney Thompson, assistant director, pointed out that the figure is misleading since most corpswomen complete the training programs in six months.

"Of 630 graduates, 710 have been placed in jobs," Thompson reported.

Dr. Burns told the council that physical separation from a ghetto background is necessary if school dropouts and borderline delinquency cases are to be rehabilitated. She said the Tongue Point program would be too expensive to duplicate in any other plan to combat rural poverty. Fifteen student teachers from various colleges in the state and four recreation interns are training at the center, the director said. She said she was pleased with a report on the center given by an evaluation team from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

FRANK MCINTYRE

Officers Named
Frank McIntyre was elected council president for the coming year and Judge Harold T. Johnson was named vice president. Other new officers are the Rev. W. Wyffels, treasurer; Mrs. Adelaide Sather, secretary; and Mrs. Carol Pood, Mrs. Maurice Hendrickson and Bill Van Dusen, executive committee.

Van Dusen was awarded a service plaque and service certificates went to McIntyre, Mrs. Howard Gentry and Mrs. Sydney Thompson. Service certificates were voted for Aral Rauter and Fred Andrus.

Army Man Flies from Germany To Wed Lois Hall, Corps Advisor

One of the happy events of the holidays was the marriage of Miss Lois Marie Hall, resident advisor for the Village at Tongue Point Job Corps, and Staff Sgt. Walter Neal, Wisner, La.

The Rev. Robert Wolfe of Bible Baptist church conducted the double ring ceremony New Year's day, for which the bride was escorted by Lowell Madsen at the Madsen home on Navy Heights.

The bride wore a white Elizabethan styled dress, with shoulder length veil embroidered in sequins and a pearl necklace, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Shurgot VISTA workers at Tongue Point, attended the bridal couple for the wedding ceremony, which was also attended by several staff members and corpswomen.

S/Sgt Neal, who flew here from Germany, where he is stationed with the Army, returned to his post, following a brief honeymoon, to be joined by his bride in February.

MRS. WALTER NEAL

Ex-PCT Director Takes Astoria Job Corps Post

ASTORIA — James Cameron, recently released as director of the Lewis and Clark Festival Association because of the group's financial problems, has been named work experience supervisor at Tongue Point Job Corps center.

He will direct a program in which each corpswoman at the center spends a half-day weekly working at the center in a clerical, service or maintenance job.

Cameron succeeds Juanita Brown, who will concentrate on the World of Work program which teachers corpswomen

Corpswomen for November Honored

Dr. Dorothy Burns, center director, presents Corpswomen-of-the-month awards for November to (from left) Mary Lopez, Tucson, Ariz.; Gina Canfield, Heathsburg, Calif., and Patricia A. Allen, Los Angeles. The Job Corps award includes a certificate and a merchandise order, and is made on a basis of scholarship and overall proficiency at Tongue Point.

No Quick Changes Due for Job Corps Or Head Start

EUGENE (UPI) — There will be no immediate changes in the operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps and the statewide Head Start programs, University of Oregon officials have announced.

They also said they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1. The programs are headquartered at the University.

On July 1 both of the programs will be transferred, by a Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

The Head Start program will be assigned to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Job Corps to the Labor Department.

The university holds a $3.9 million contract for operation of the Tongue Point center at Astoria and a $9,000 contract for operation of the Oregon Head Start program for pre-schoolers.

At present, spokesman for both the Job Corps and Head Start said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although that agency will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first of next month.

Stafford Thomas, dean's assistant for federal projects in the College of Education, said, "we are very pleased that the government is interested in continuing the job training opportunities."

Job Corps, Head Start 'Unchanged'

EUGENE (UPI) — There will be no immediate changes in the operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps and the statewide Head Start programs, University of Oregon officials said Friday.

They also said they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1. The programs have their headquarters at the University.

On July 1 both of the programs will be transferred, by a Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

The Head Start program will be assigned to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Job Corps to the Labor Department.

The university holds a $3.9 million contract for operation of the Tongue Point center at Astoria and a $9,000 contract for operation of the Oregon Head Start program for pre-schoolers.

LOCAL GIRL AT OREGON JOB CORPS CENTER

ASTORIA, Ore. — Mary Fisher, 17, daughter of Marion McFall, 6432 Salem Street, is receiving on-the-job training at Internal Revenue Service, Portland, Oregon, after completing a course in Business and Clerical Occupations at Tongue Point Job Corps Center here.

The off-center training provides practice of the skills learned in the Job Corps, for a four-week period under actual employment conditions, prior to graduation from the center.

Corpswomen engaged in the extension training program draw no compensation from their "employers" but receive their regular Job Corps pay and allowances, and the center provides housing arrangements. At the conclusion of the training period they return to Tongue Point with an evaluation of their performance and may either be given additional schooling or graduated.

Most of the graduates return to their home areas to seek employment.

Job Corps Will Stay At Astoria

EUGENE (UPI) — The Tongue Point Job Corps Center will continue operating despite President Nixon's administrative changes.

Nixon will transfer the Job Corps July 1 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to the Labor Department.

"Over all our total program is as stable as it has ever been," said Stafford Thomas, who is in charge of the program at the College of Education at the University of Oregon.

The university has a $3.9 million contract for operating the center, which has 800 women enrolled.

Nixon also will transfer the administration of the Head Start program for pre-schoolers from the OEO to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

There are 4,000 Oregon youngsters attending Head Start programs.

Negro Week Display

Window display marking Negro History Week is being set up. Looking over display are June Key, counselor at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, and chairman of the week's activities, and Bill Welch, Job Corps Center art instructor.

Negro History Week Slated For Observance

Various activities marking Negro History Week will be staged in the Astoria area this week by some of the corpswomen and staff at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

Corpswomen will put on a program, "Little-Known Negroes in American History," Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. in the Flag Room of the Astor Library.

Thursday, some of the young women will participate in dramatizations at Clatsop College on Negro culture, and on Friday, films on the subject will be shown in the library at the Job Corps Center from 9 a.m. through 5 p.m., except for the period between 12:30 and 1:30 p.m.

On Sunday, observance of the week in the area will end with a program in the theater at Tongue Point, from 3 to 5 p.m. Displays will be on view in some windows in downtown Astoria.

Corpswomen will receive instruction about events in Negro history Tuesday at the center.

Negro History Week was first observed the second week in February, 1926, to honor the birth date of Frederick Douglass, Negro abolitionist. The observance was started by Negro author and historian Carter G. Woodson.

Music, Drama Coach On Job Corps Staff

Claude Kendall, Tongue Point, Ore., has joined the vocational and recreation department of the Albuquerque Job Corps Center for Women. He was affiliated with the center in Astoria, Ore.

Kendall is a music and drama coach and received degrees from the University of Oklahoma. He is an Air Force veteran and a member of American Educational Theatre Assn.

At the center, Kendall will coach and develop the center's choir and teach drama as well as assist with in-center closed-circuit television programs.

Officers Named By Corpswomen

Willie Robinson of Memphis, Tenn., is the new director of student government at Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

Other new corpswomen officers installed recently for four-month terms include Olga Martinez, Los Angeles, deputy director; Cathy Fitzpatrick, La Grange, Pa., secretary; and Cynthia Robinson, Chicago, business manager.

Members of the new student senate:

Residence 1—Hattie Furton, Jancy Cheesbore, Vida Curry and Mary Gonzalez.
Residence 2—Jo Anne Spaine, Irene Rotella, Cheryl Gunter and Betty Stoddard.

Residence 3—Rosa Boxley, Hannah Scott and La Verne Johnson.

Residence 4—Frances Johnson, Dianne Bailey, Mollie Gibbs, Shirley Davis, Ellen Marshall and Martha Widette.
Residence 5—Lavana Perdue, Edna Bowman, Dorothy Johnson and Linda Jackson.

Films on Negroes—In celebration of Negro History Week, Tongue Point Job Corpswomen will present a program of two little-known-but important Negroes. The films will be shown Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. in the Astor Library. Hostesses will be on hand before and after the show to explain special exhibits.

Job Corps — Women of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center will host a dance Saturday night for Job Corpswomen from the Wolf Creek, Timberlake, Angel, Tillamook and Malheur centers. Also, some 60 Tongue Point Corpswomen are scheduled to go to the Campus Job Corps Center at Randle, Wash., Saturday night for a dance.

Portland, Oregon
The Oregonian
(Cir. D. 348,145)

FEB 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

OEO Projects Shift Studied

No Immediate Changes Likely

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene (Special) — University of Oregon officials said there will be no immediate changes in the operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center and the Salem Head Start programs which are headquartered at the university, and indicated that they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1.

On that date both of the programs will be transferred, by a Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

President Nixon told Congress the Head Start program will be assigned to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and that the Job Corps will go to the Labor Department.

The university holds a $3.9 million prime contract, the only one of its type in the nation, for the operation of the Tongue Point Center at Astoria, and a $2,000 contract for the operation of the Oregon Head Start program for pre-schoolers.

At present, spokesmen for both Head Start and the Job Corps said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although that agency will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first part of next month.

800 Women Train

There are about 800 women between 16 and 21 years of age at the Job Corps Center receiving basic education and training in five vocational areas including electronics, nurses' aide, secretarial, food service and drafting.

Nazel Breslin, regional training officer for Head Start whose office is located on the university campus, said some 4,000 Oregon youngsters attend Head Start enrichment programs each year. Twelve academic year programs, and between 40 and 50 summer pre-school projects are held throughout the state.

In addition, Head Start operates a teacher training program which Mrs. Breslin said she is anxious will be retained.

"Since Oregon does not now have a kindergarten program," she pointed out, "many teachers have not had experience with pre-schoolers."

The training program also involves parents of pre-schoolers in instructing them on how to be teachers' aides in the Head Start program.

Portland, Oregon
Oregon Journal
(Cir. D. 148,884)

FEB 12 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Security Chief Quits

ASTORIA — A.G. Dunn, director of safety and security at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has retired after almost four years in the job. Succeeding him is William Brown, assistant director, who has been at Tongue Point since October, 1965.

Dunn came to Tongue Point after retirement from the State Police. Brown was chief of the park security detail for Hayden Island Development Co., Portland, before joining the Tongue Point staff.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6,994)

FEB 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Name of the owner.

Visit Salem Feb. 14. Twenty-four Job Corps women from Tongue Point and staff members Richard Noll and Myrtle Snider visited Salem Wednesday. They observed the Legislature in session, toured the Capitol, met Gov. Tom McCall and attended Senate committee meetings.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6,994)

FEB 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Black History—Janet Stevenson, a specialist in Negro history, will speak tonight at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center Library at 7:30 p.m. The talk is open to the public.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6,994)

FEB 14 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Workshop Held On Counseling

A two and one-half day workshop in behavioral counseling began today for more than 30 staff members at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center. Center officials announced today.

The workshop is being conducted primarily for residence life staff and counselors at the center by six professional staff members from the Residential and Counseling Division of Job Corps headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The workshop program will continue through February 5.

Portland, Oregon
The Oregonian
(Cir. D. 348,145)

FEB 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Retired Newspaperman Dies In Astoria At 61

J. Lynn Wyckoff, 61, former Portland newspaperman and for the last four years assistant to the director and director of public affairs for the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, died Monday at St. Mary's Hospital, Astoria, following a long illness of multiple myeloma, a bone disease.

Born Feb. 27, 1907, in Des Moines, Iowa, he came to Portland when he was 5, and in 1918 he was graduated from Washington High School. He attended the University of Oregon where he was a member of Sigma Delta Chi journalism fraternity and Theta Chi fraternity.

In the late 1920s, Mr. Wyckoff was editor of the Tillamook Herald and, in 1930 joined the news staff of the McMinnville Telephone-Register. He was city editor of the Twin Falls, Idaho, Daily Times before coming to The Oregonian in 1934.

At The Oregonian he was assistant Sunday editor, copy editor and day news editor until 1958. He was managing editor of St. John's Episcopal Church at Milwaukie and Grace Episcopal Church at Astoria.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Wyckoff of Astoria, two sons, John of Portland and Jolyon in the Navy Reserve stationed in the Philippines, and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wyckoff, Astoria.

Memorial service will be at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at Grace Episcopal Church in Astoria. The family suggests remembrances be contributions to the International Typographical Union; the Astoria Rotary Club; the Chamber of Commerce; the

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6,994)

FEB 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Personnel to Attend Conference on Student Teaching

Several Tongue Point Job Corps Center staff members have been invited to participate in a special conference for university supervisors of student teachers in elementary and secondary education and also elementary and secondary principals at cooperating schools to be held at Oregon State University February 11.

Patricia Wathen, reading instructor at Tongue Point and a cooperating teacher in the student teaching program; William Lacey, University of Oregon supervisor of student teachers who has headquarters at Tongue Point; John Spears, assistant supervisor of basic education; David Hollenback, math instructor; and Lella Good, instructor in business, all of Tongue Point, will attend the conference. Debra Boone, a student teacher at the Tongue Point center and a senior at Portland State College, will also participate.

The Job Corps staff will appear in a panel discussion of the interrelationships between the student teacher, the cooperating teacher and the university supervisor.

Miss Boone is one of 19 juniors and seniors from various colleges and universities throughout the state who are gaining part of their student-teaching experience at the Tongue Point Center. She will complete her teaching assignment at Tongue Point February 12, and begin teaching at Lewis and Clark district elementary school under cooperating teacher Ann Linder February 13.

Dr. Keith Goldstammer, dean of the School of Education at Oregon State University, will be principal speaker.

Salem, Oregon
Oregon Statesman
(Cir. D. 33,346)

FEB 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Ex-Editor Dies

ASTORIA (AP) — Lynn Wyckoff, chief director of public relations for the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria, died Monday. Her name is Wyckoff was an employee of the Portland Oregonian for more than 25 years, leaving in the 1950s to be managing editor of the Portland Reporter.

Eugene, Oregon
Register-Guard
(Cir. D. 30,997)

FEB 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Newsman Dies

ASTORIA (AP) — Lynn Wyckoff, a longtime newspaperman in Oregon, died Monday. He was 61. Wyckoff was director of public relations for the Tongue Point Job Corps Center near Astoria at the time of his death.

He was an employee of the Portland Oregonian for more than 25 years. In the 1950s he became managing editor of the Portland Reporter, which later folded.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6,994)

FEB 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Pt. Volunteers

Given recognition for volunteer service to the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center recently were (from left, top photo) Bill Nolan for dance instruction; Mrs. Howard Gentry, sewing and testing services; Mrs. Sydney Thompson, library, and Mrs. Clyde Deal, art. Not pictured but also recognized with certificates of appreciation were Mrs. Helmer Lindstrom, sewing, and Mrs. Lynn Wyckoff, arts and crafts instruction. The six volunteers donated a total of 655 hours to the center. From July 1, 1968, through December 31, volunteers donated 2,507 hours of service to various programs and activities. Bill Van Dusen, Astoria business leader (lower photo) was presented a special service award by Tongue Point officials for his leadership of the Clatsop Community Relations Council. Van Dusen served as president of the 38-member advisory board to Tongue Point during 1968.

Portland, Oregon
Oregon Journal
(Cir. D. 148,884)

FEB 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Obituary: Ex-Portland Newspaperman Dies

A funeral service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at St. John's Episcopal Church in Astoria. Survivors include his wife, Dorothy, of Astoria; two sons, John of Portland and Jolyon in the Philippines, and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wyckoff of Astoria.

He was employed by the McMinnville Telephone Register and the Twin Falls, Idaho Times from 1931 to 1958 when he joined The Oregonian. With the Oregonian, he was assistant Sunday editor, copy editor and assistant news editor until 1958.

He was later managing editor and industrial relations director of the Portland Reporter for the Metal Trades Council of Portland.

For the last four years he was assistant to the director and director of public affairs for the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria.

He was a member of the American Newspaper Guild and was a charter member and one-time president of its Portland chapter. He also held memberships in the International Typographical Union, Astoria Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce. St. John's Episcopal Church in Milwaukie and Grace Episcopal Church in Astoria.

FEB 12 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Security Chief Quits

ASTORIA — A.G. Dunn, director of safety and security at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has retired after almost four years in the job. Succeeding him is William Brown, assistant director, who has been at Tongue Point since October, 1965.

Dunn came to Tongue Point after retirement from the State Police. Brown was chief of the park security detail for Hayden Island Development Co., Portland, before joining the Tongue Point staff.

Portland, Oregon
Oregon Journal
(Cir. D. 148,884)

FEB 12 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Ticket Drive Set By Group

ASTORIA — The financially troubled Lewis and Clark Festival Association will launch a drive to sell tickets for three summer plays March 1.

Plays will be directed by James Cameron, now on the staff of Tongue Point Job Corps center, who was executive director of the festival association until he was released recently because of the financial problems.

The association hopes to raise $2,500 through the ticket sales. This is the maximum amount which county commissioners have agreed to match to assist the festival group.

Signal
Seaside, Oregon
(Cir. W 2,470)

FEB 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Two men leave police force

Resignations by two members of the Seaside police department and illness of two others has left the department short-handed and no replacements are in sight, Chief Ken Hienle reported last night.

Ralph Switzer, who has been a deskman in the department for about eight years, resigned because of poor health.

Patrolman George Sullivan, who had been on the force for nearly two years, resigned to assume a police sergeant position at the Tongue Point Job Corps center.

Patrolman Sanford Peet has been in a hospital for surgery and Sgt. Orville Nabors has been laid up with the flu.

Redding, Calif.
Record Searchlight
(Cir. D. 21,208)

FEB 6 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Training given

Mary deTunno, 17, of Redding, is receiving on-the-job training at the Crestview Convalescent Home in Astoria after receiving Job Corps training as a nurse's aide at Tongue Point, Ore.

Los Angeles, Calif.
Southwest News Star
(Cir. W. 22,414)

FEB 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Southside resident receives training

Dorothy White, 18, daughter of Mrs. Shirley White of 1008 East Nineteenth street, is receiving on-the-job training at the Veterans Administration hospital in Seattle, Washington, after completing a training course as a nurse's aide at Tongue Point Job Corps center, Oregon.

Officer White is at the hospital receiving positive of skills learned at the Job Corps site for a 4-week period under employment conditions, prior to graduation from the center.

Astoria, Oregon
Columbia Press
(Ch. D. 4,191)

JAN 30 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1858

What's Cooking In Nixon Rule For Our County?

Just what changes of particular concern to the lower Columbia will be brought about during the new Nixon administration were not spelled out in the president's inaugural address, but lesser Republicans are indicating likely ones.

Paul Phibbs, regional manager for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, alerted the Astoria Chamber of Commerce to prospects for drastic changes in U.S. Office for Economic Opportunity, welfare agencies and other support of farm crops in particular. Speaking before the local Chamber of Commerce, he advised the community to expect the Tongue Point Job Corps to be under the axe.

Another indication of significant changes in the making is the Senator Robert Packwood proposal to reshape the inquiry into the efficiency of forest management. He has the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

Former Senator Wayne Morse called for the probe in an effort to restore balance between private and public forest operation and in general to have the country's public forests managed for the public as effectively as public power under Bonneville will.

Former Senator Morse planned that the efficiency study be made by the agencies themselves. Senator Packwood has proposed it would be more desirable to have "neutral" evaluators from outside the government. This would bring in the forestry consultants who are generally for turning over public forests to private operators. Among the consultants are forestry professors in colleges who get substantial fees from private operators. Their concern would not be to provide the people with a more efficient U.S. Forest Service.

In his speech here, Phibbs did not give much attention to the fact that the Nixon administration does not control congress. Many of the congressmen who voted the Job Corps are still sitting in congress, including some Republicans. It is unlikely that a bill to wipe out the Job Corps is to be rubber stamped by such a congress.

But the proposal for having "neutral" studies on the operation of the federal forest is more likely to get congressional backing because it sounds like a smart idea from a freshman who should be encouraged. But the public will have nothing to gain from his "neutral" probe.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Ch. D. 6,994)

FEB 19 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1858

Chamber to Write Congressmen, Urge Restoration of Fish Funds

Directors of the Astoria Chamber of Commerce voted today to write members of Oregon's congressional delegation urging that $200,000 for Columbia River salmon research be restored to the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries budget.

The funds were reportedly cut out by the Bureau of the Budget during the last days of the Johnson Administration.

The money would be used for studies of fish migration on the river of thermal influences from nuclear power plants, of passage of fish at dam sites and for transporting fish around dams.

Other groups in the Lower Columbia area have likewise urged members of Congress on the matter.

In other business this morning, the chamber directors voted that officials of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center will soon give the chamber figures on what the center means economically to the Astoria area. This is in connection with a chamber decision to urge members of Congress not to cut out the Job Corps.

Chamber officials will meet with an architect next month on plans for a new chamber building.

A contingent from the Portland Chamber of Commerce will visit Astoria next Wednesday and tour the dock area, the Columbia River Maritime Museum, Coast Guard Air Station, Lelito, Inc., and Oregon State University sealions lab. They will attend a luncheon that day at the Sea Fare restaurant.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Ch. D. 6,994)

FEB 17 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1858

Race Relations in U.S. White Man's Problem, Chamber Told

The problem of relations with 20 million black people in the United States is a white man's problem that the white people must solve because it isn't going to go away, C. Watts Yancey of Tongue Point told Chamber of Commerce members Friday.

Yancey, a residence supervisor at the Job Corps Center, warned Chamber members that time is running out for solution of this problem.

The 20 million blacks cannot be sent back to Africa, he said, nor can we just wishfully think and hope that the problem will somehow go away.

Not only is it morally wrong to deprive the black people of opportunity to obtain jobs or to learn the skills that will qualify them for jobs, but it is an enormous economic loss to keep 4 million Negroes in poverty.

The welfare costs, plus the costs that result from young Negroes who take to crime, are costing the taxpayers billions of dollars, Yancey said.

Frustration Results
"Black youth are not more prone to crime than others," Yancey declared, "but they take to it because they are denied the chance to get into the stream of American life. You cannot imagine the frustration, the desolation and the bitter hatred that arise from the white man's treatment of the blacks."

Yancey said it is hypocritical and insulting to the young black man to call him to take up arms for defense of a democracy that is denied to him when he comes home.

He lashed some labor unions for discriminating against the black man which members blame the blacks for not working and for turning to crime.

"And this is costing the union man higher taxes which he could avoid by admitting black men to the union ranks and to job opportunity," he added.

Yancey said he believed the white people can solve the problem of race relations by application of Christian ethics and the golden rule.

Lack Cultural Heritage
Answering a question as to why the black people can't overcome prejudice by these men of faith as did the Japanese Nisei in the US after World War II, Yancey commented that the blacks do not have the cohesing factor of a cultural heritage that other ethnic groups in the US possess.

"When they established slavery in the US, they destroyed the language, the religion and all other cultural possessions the black people brought from Africa," he said.

Yancey answered another question as to why the black man can't wait for the slow process of achieving economic and social equality. He cited the case of a German veteran of Wehrmacht service in World War II, who had come to this country and made a living.

This man, he said, was going to a Wisconsin lake resort for his vacation and suggested that Yancey could go there, too. But Yancey said he had never been invited to use a friend's cabin there, only to encounter local hostility that made it impossible.

Sheltered Gang
"And this was a community that had sheltered members of the Al Capone gang," he said.

Yancey said his daughter, arrested for picketing at University of Wisconsin, had come home and asked him "Why must I wait for equality?" and that he could not answer that question.

Yancey, a graduate of Lincoln University in Missouri, taught English and social studies in Milwaukee, Wis., public schools before coming to Tongue Point. He is currently studying at Oregon College of Education.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Ch. D. 6,994)

FEB 17 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1858

For Books On Negroes

Tongue Point Job Corps girls observed Negro History week by raising money for a fund for Astor Library to buy books on Negro history. Here are Cynthia Robinson, left, student government business manager, and Olga Martinez, deputy director of student government, presenting the money to city Librarian Bruce Berney.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Ch. D. 6,994)

FEB 14 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1858

Dunn Retires as Job Corps Director of Safety, Security

Two major personnel changes at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center were effected recently with the retirement of A. G. Dunn, director of safety and security, and appointment of William Brown, assistant director, to head the center's safety and security section.

Dunn's retirement from Tongue Point marked the culmination of a lifetime of work in law enforcement. He began his career as a policeman in La-Grande, Ore., in 1923. Prior to coming to Tongue Point, Dunn was a captain with the Oregon State Police. His state police assignment began as a sergeant in 1931 when the State Police were organized. In October, 1932, he was promoted to lieutenant. In 1939 he attained a captaincy and was assigned to Baker, Ore. He retired from state police service in 1955 and began his assignment at Tongue Point later that year. Dunn is married and has one son, also active in police work.

Honored at Reception
Dunn's retirement from Tongue Point was highlighted by a reception given by the staff of Tongue Point. Staff presentations included the recently published book, "Oregon," a certificate of appreciation presented by Center Director Dr. Dorothy Burns, and a large cake decorated in an Oregon fishing theme. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn plan to remain in the area.

Brown, new security director,

A. G. DUNN

WILLIAM BROWN

has been employed at Tongue Point as assistant director of safety and security since October, 1955. Born in Chandler, Okla., in 1919, Brown attended Langston University in Langston, Okla. Brown has also taken considerable graduate work through the Division of Continuing Education in these areas of counseling and guidance.

Attends School
In 1954 he completed the Multnomah County Sheriff's Reserve Advanced Training School in Portland. For approximately seven years before coming to Tongue Point, Brown was employed in security work by the Haydel-Brown Development Co.

In Portland, he was appointed chief of the park security detail for that company in 1952. In his new role Brown is responsible for corporewmen safety and security, and all matters relating to plant and grounds safety at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

Brown is an active member of the Astoria Kiwanis Club and an associate member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. He is also active in civil defense activities. In addition he belongs to several fraternal organizations and is active in church work. He is married and resides at Tongue Point.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Ch. D. 6,994)

FEB 17 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1858

Wykoff, Job Corps Official, Succumbs

Lynn Wykoff, longtime newsman and community relations director at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, died this morning at St. Mary hospital in Astoria after a long illness. He was 61.

Wykoff held several news jobs in Oregon before coming to Tongue Point Feb. 15, 1953. He was editor of the Tillamook Her-ald in the late 1920s, reporter for the McMinnville Telephone Register in 1930 and then city editor of the Twin Falls, Ida., Daily Times.

Wykoff was day news editor and a copy editor on The Oregonian in Portland from 1934-35 and then managing editor of The Portland Reporter from 1935-46, during the time The Oregonian was struck.

He then was a labor relations assistant for the Oregon Metal Trades Assn. in Portland for six months before coming to Tongue Point.

Wykoff was active in the Portland Newspaper Guild, holding several offices, and was a member of Sigma Delta Chi.

He was a native of Des Moines, Iowa, came to Oregon in 1912 and attended school in Portland. He attended University of Oregon.

Survivors include his widow Dorothy; sons John, 27, and Jolynn, 23, and his mother Elizabeth.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Hughes-Ransom Mortuary.

LYNN WYKOFF

Record-Courier
Baker, Oregon
(Ch. W 9,345)

FEB 20 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1858

FORMER RESIDENT RETIRES

A. G. (Chris) Dunn, longtime head of the Eastern Oregon office of the state police, has retired from the Job Corps at Astoria after almost four years there as director of safety and security.

Stella Hoover

Mrs. Lynn Greene

Harry Gauntlett

Mrs. Lily Duke

William Humphreys

Dr. Dorothy Burns

Golden Torch Awards Banquet Announced

The fifth annual Golden Torch Awards banquet presented by the Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. will be held at 7 p.m. March 8 at Holiday Inn.

Eight Oregon men and women have been selected for significant contributions to better opportunities for business and professional women.

Mrs. Julia Arri, Claremont, Calif., personal development chairman of the national BPW, will be guest speaker.

Awards will be presented by Mrs. Kenneth Hays, Junction City, OFBPW president.

In place of naming an individual, Central Coast District selected the Bank of Newport as its winner. They credited Harry W. Gauntlett, president and one of the founders of the bank in 1923, for his part in its growth. The bank and its branch at Waldport, established in 1963, have approximately 75 per cent women on the staff. They work on an equal pay basis, may hold key positions and opportunities for advancement.

Rose Marie Scott was chosen by North Willamette District. She is one of the few women who anchors her own television news program. She has the full responsibility for writing, editing, organizing and compiling her entire half-hour show. Her work has proved so outstanding that she recently received a letter of commendation from the Governor's Committee on the Status of Women. Miss Scott speaks to high schools, colleges and women's organizations on the opportunities for women in radio and television. She is a director of the American Federation of Radio and Television Artists.

DR. DOROTHY BURNS, Astoria, was named by Pacific District for her work as director of Tongue Point Job Corps Center—Dr. Burns, a member of the Steering Committee for all Women's Job Corps Centers in the United States, has appointed women to positions previously held by men.

Charles Whipp, Cottage Grove, a veteran of World War I, was chosen by Cascade District for extensive work in the field of student nurses eligible for scholarships. The scholarship fund is set up by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Forty and Eight, of which Whipp was chairman for several years.

THE SOUTHERN Oregon District named Mrs. Lily Duke, Grants Pass, for her work with women as head of personnel at Oregon Technical Products. Mrs. Duke is first vice president of the Grants Pass BPW and is starting a Toastmasters club in her area.

During her 36 year career as county recorder, Stella E. Hoover, Albany, consistently worked for better pay and better working conditions for women employees in her office. For this she was selected by the Southern Oregon District.

William Humphreys, Redport, is the Golden Torch winner from Southwestern District. As vice president of the Umpqua National Bank, he has increased the number of women in key positions in the bank. He also has established new educational facilities and training to better prepare women for work.

Recipient of the award from Eastern Oregon District is Mrs. Lynn Greene. The Dallas, for helping to initiate the Governor's Committee on the Status of Women in Oregon, Mrs. Greene is a member of the privately owned hospital where for the past 10 years she has helped maintain a program to encourage girls to enter nursing.

Rose Marie Scott

Golden Torch Awards Due

The Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will present its eighth annual Golden Torch Award recipients at a 7 p.m. banquet Saturday, March 8, at the Holiday Inn. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Joseph L. (Julia K.) Arri, Claremont, Calif., personal development chairman of the National Federation of BPW.

The awards are given for significant contribution toward lighting the way for advancement of better opportunities of business and professional women.

Miss Rose Marie Scott, Portland, is the award winner in North Willamette District. She is Lynn County recorder for 36 years, retiring Jan. 6, 1963. She was instrumental in the establishment of a pioneer family home as a central meeting place for Albany women's clubs.

Selected in the Central Coast District was the Bank of Newport. Women comprise 75 per cent of the staff, President, and one of the founders in 1925, is Harry W. Gauntlett.

MRS. J.L. ARRI

The vice-president of Umpqua National Bank, William Humphreys of Redport, received the Golden Torch Award in Southwestern District. He has increased the number of women in key positions in the bank, and established educational training facilities to better prepare women for work.

Representing the Southern Oregon District is Mrs. Lily Duke, Grants Pass, personal manager at Oregon Technical Products, a manufacturing plant which employs 300 persons, mostly women.

The Center Director of the Job Corps Training Center at Astoria, Dr. Dorothy Burns, received the award from Pacific District. She is a member of the Steering Committee of all Women's Job Corps Centers.

Charles Whipp, Cottage Grove, earned the Golden Torch Award from Cascade District. He has served for many years as chairman of the Eight and Forty of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars, which presents scholarships to student nurses.

A 35-year BPW member, Mrs. Lynn (Jeanne) Greene, The Dalles, received the award from Eastern Oregon District. She has been chairman of the subcommittee on employment since the establishment of the Governor's Committee on the Status of Women in Oregon.

Bus Service Operator Offers System to City Council for $1

The holder of Astoria's bus system franchise urged the city council Monday night to buy the financially troubled operation from him for $1 in order to keep it running.

Bill Hoag said he'll operate the three-bus service the rest of the year and wants the council to tell him by Sept. 1 if it will take it over.

"A city without public transportation is a crippled city," said the 60-year-old Hoag, who has operated the system five years. In urging the council to step in, Hoag pointed to the auto glut downtown at the rush hours and the downtown repaving plan now being studied includes facilities for public transportation.

Hoag estimated that if the bus service is halted, some 40 per cent of the passengers who have to ride the bus would move to another city or stay home and order from mail-order catalogues.

"My bus runs help make Astoria business profitable," he said.

Hoag said last month that the system's insurance and tax payments and cost of parts had risen so much that he didn't think he could feasibly run the operation much longer. He told the council Monday night that officials at Tongue Point Job Corps Center had agreed to accept his bid for bus service to and from the center. He said his bid would have left him a profit of $2,500 an hour on the run but was told by Job Corps officials that the center could provide its own bus service more cheaply.

Hoag said he later lost jobs of busing some Scouts and other groups.

Buses Too Small

A spokesman at Tongue Point said today Hoag had been told that just one of his buses was too small to provide transportation between the center and town. He said Hoag then asked $7,500 an hour to operate a second bus and was told that the center could operate the service more cheaply.

Hoag told the council he'd put a great deal of money into the buses but would sell them for $1 and hoped the city would then let him and his driver continue to run them.

Councilman Bill Wilson, City Manager Dale Curry and members of the audience praised Hoag for his efforts in the bus operation.

Curry said if anyone else had tried to run the system, they would have "ended up in the poor house."

In other business, the previously complained-about noise and disorder near the Freeze King drive-in, 3000 Leif Erickson Dr., came up again when a contingent of persons came alive in the area told of loud automobile noises as late as 4 a.m. and young persons defecating in the rear of the eating place.

To Set Closing Hours

After pleas for help, including an emotional plea from a woman who said she had slept one night of the past five, the council directed City Atty. Robert Anderson to draw up an ordinance setting closing hours for such drives in the city.

The complainants said the Freeze King stays open until 5 a.m. and sometimes later, with cars squealing and emitting tremendous engine noise on nearby streets.

Harry Swanson, 3625 Duane, said some of the cars sit in the street and are revved up with unneeded mufflers so that they sound like "a test of a Saturn rocket."

Mrs. Harold Symmonds, who owns the Freeze King with her husband, said today lots of the traffic in the area of the eating place has no connection with the Freeze King. "They're just doing it for spite," she said. She said the loud auto noise "happens all over town." Mrs. Symmonds said if a closing-hour ordinance is passed, she would take legal action to "protect our rights."

Two of the complaining residents said Anderson, the city attorney, had recommended they make citizens' arrests, but Anderson denied he had said that. Al Mather, another resident, said he had tried to get the license ordinance passed, but she would take legal action to "protect our rights."

The residents said the problem with summing police to the scene is that the drivers see them coming and leave, only to return later.

Nixon Removes Job Corps Program to Labor Agency

Removal of the Job Corps training program from the office of Economic Opportunity, a move in which Astoria has a vital interest, was announced today by President Nixon.

The president told Congress he was delegating the work of the Job Corps to the Labor Department.

The announcement came as no surprise to Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of the Tongue Point Job Corps Training Center.

Personally, I did not feel there was any question of the program would be discontinued," Dr. Burns said. "However, I have been called to the University of Oregon next week to prepare a paper for presentation to the House Education and Labor Committee's subcommittee on the program."

Dr. Burns said she had heard rumors some time ago that, since the center is part of a job training program, the facility might be transferred to the Department of Labor.

Coordinators of the Job Corps program at the University of Oregon were unavailable for comment.

During his pre-election campaign, President Nixon said the Job Corps should be eliminated, declaring "This is one program that has been a failure."

In recent weeks, Oregon Congressmen have been urged to make an attempt to keep the training program in operation.

Nixon said today in his message to Congress the Head Start program also will be removed from the Office of Economic Opportunity to the department of Health, Education and Welfare. He said OEO "would be kept alive as an incubator of experimental programs bearing on the anti-poverty campaign."

He called also for a national commitment aimed at "providing all American children an opportunity for healthful and stimulating development during the first five years of life."

Crites Joins Navy Reserve At Sand Point

Elmer L. Crites, of Route 3, Astoria, recently affiliated with the Naval Air Station at Sand Point Naval Air Station, Seattle, and was assigned to the operational control element.

A petty officer (radioman) first class, he first enlisted in the Navy in 1941 at Denver, Colo., and served in Alaska, Japan and aboard the USS Embarcadero while on active duty.

Crites and his wife, the former Helen Truesdell of Yakima, Wash., have a daughter, Kari, and two sons, Kent and Scott.

As a civilian, Crites is employed by the Pacific Coast Corporation as a supervisor in Tinseltown, and has been with the company since 1964 and joined the Job Corps staff in 1964. He will be active duty each year.

Death Takes Former Portland Newsman

ASTORIA (UPI) — J. Lynn Wykoff, former Portland newsman and recently assistant to the director of public affairs for the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, died Monday. He was 67.

Wykoff had suffered from multiple myeloma, a bone disease.

Wykoff was editor of the Tillamook Herald in the late 1920s and joined the staff of the Minnville Telephone-Register in 1930. He was city editor of the Daily Times in Twin Falls, Idaho, before joining The Oregonian in Portland in 1934.

He was managing editor of the Portland Reporter from 1961 until 1964 and joined the Job Corps staff in 1964.

A memorial service will be Wednesday at Grace Episcopal Church here at 1:30 p.m.

Local Theater Boomed

By MARTIN CLARK

"Can We Keep Local Theater Alive?" will be James C. Cameron's wistful question subject before the Portland City Club at noon Friday at the Benson Hotel. Cameron is former executive director of Portland Civic Theater, has had more than 20 years of theatrical experience, and is work experience supervisor at Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria.

Paradoxically, the Civic Club will have over the proposed 3 per cent sales tax proposal at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Fremont Junior High School, 4100 NE Shaver St.

A mobile chest X-ray unit will be in the city area at 10:00 a.m. at Meyer Store, NE 104th Ave. and Halsted St., Friday, from 1 to 4 and 3 to 5 p.m.

Entertainment

By Arnold Marks

James C. Cameron, former Portland Civic Theater director now with the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria, thoroughly analyzed the community theater crisis at the Portland City Club luncheon Friday without stepping on a single toe.

Basically, Cameron found nothing new that hasn't existed in past years. He offered suggestions and at the same time made it clear he has no axe to grind. Cameron was a Civic Theater director for more than a dozen years and had his own bitter struggles to keep his own theater alive.

IN OTHER words there's nothing wrong that "bodies" in the audience and cash in the box office can't cure. He urged more involvement with the live theater on the part of Portlanders. In simple terms, it means attending the variety of performances available to provide the essential extra financial support.

He agreed that the community theater has been competing from movies and television. The theater has one advantage, however — live — theater, he emphasized.

He praised the efforts of local theater groups in staging both children's attractions and classics. This exposure, he said, builds new theatergoers.

"ANY THEATER group would be proud to have such a program as offered by the Civic Theater and the American Theater Company," he said, but added that he wonders why programming does not include something for the public — exciting, recognizable titles.

"You don't stage classics in the middle of a financial crisis," he said. Cameron loaded his lecture with humor as well as theatrical theory. He told of the magic of the opening curtain on live productions — never-to-be-forgotten moments he experienced both in watching professional and community theater actors perform. He read excerpts from letters written by Job Corps students who visited Portland to see the American Theater Company's "The Gladiator." For some, he said, it was their first professional play.

As for the place of the theater in the community, he made it clear that such activity is as essential as the art museum, the symphony and the zoo.

"WHY TAKE time to go to an art museum?" he asked. "There are reprints of classic pictures in the magazines. Why bother to attend a concert? There are records. Some of them are free at the library and if you wait long enough, you can hear such music on radio. Too soon? Hansi Walt Dancy made movies of most of the animals? Why wait a lion sitting in a cage doing nothing or a monkey climbing a tree?"

When it comes to theater, culture can be fun, he told his audience. He listed weekend attractions and urged his listeners to "Give yourself a treat and try a theater tonight. There is a good chance you'll have fun."

CAMERON also gave facts to show that theater is expanding in Portland on all levels. He pointed to the Civic Auditorium's current $170,000 revenue and the 230 attractions to date as compared to less than 200 prior to rebuilding.

"Six major shows booked for coming seasons are shows of a size that could not have played Portland without the new facility," he said.

City Club Told Civic Theater Needs Community Subsidy, Active Support

By TED MAHAR
Drama Editor, The Oregonian

"There is no such thing as self-supporting theater," James C. Cameron told the City Club at its Friday luncheon meeting. "It must have subsidy from the community, and it must have active support at the box office."

Cameron, now work experience supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria, left the Portland Civic Theater as executive director two years ago. Representatives from every local theater group were in the audience.

His topic was, "Can we Keep Local Theater Alive?" His answer was yes, but he said cooperation is demanded between the theater and the community. Theaters must stage plays the public wants to see, and the public must be willing to take chances, to see plays they are not fully convinced they will like.

"For some people the theater does not need to survive," he said. "Some people are content to watch television or movies. For them there is no thrill in seeing a live performance created in front of the audience, he said. "When you go into a theater because you think it's the thing to do, or because you think you ought to be there, you've got strikes against you. You go to be entertained."

"People go to be entertained, not to get cultured," he said. After his speech, in response to a question from the audience, he said, "When you go into a theater because you think it's the thing to do, or because you think you ought to be there, you've got strikes against you. You go to be entertained."

"Carrying it further, why do we need art museums, conditions. Why bother to attend a concert? There are records. Some of them are free at the library and if you wait long enough, you can hear such music on radio. Too soon? Hansi Walt Dancy made movies of most of the animals? Why wait a lion sitting in a cage doing nothing or a monkey climbing a tree?"

When it comes to theater, culture can be fun, he told his audience. He listed weekend attractions and urged his listeners to "Give yourself a treat and try a theater tonight. There is a good chance you'll have fun."

CAMERON also gave facts to show that theater is expanding in Portland on all levels. He pointed to the Civic Auditorium's current $170,000 revenue and the 230 attractions to date as compared to less than 200 prior to rebuilding.

"Six major shows booked for coming seasons are shows of a size that could not have played Portland without the new facility," he said.

Southside resident receives training

Emilee White, 16, daughter of Mrs. Shirley White of 1608 East Nineteenth street, is receiving on-the-job training at the Veterans Administration hospital in Seattle, Washington, after completing a training course as a nurse's aide at Tongue Point Job Corps center.

Offensive training at the hospital provides practice of skills learned at the Job Corps site, from a two-week period under employment conditions, prior to graduation from the center.

Knife, No Axe waited At Job Corps Center

On his and her spare time, almost everyone at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center is waiting for the closest attention to what the new Republican ad-

Junior High Has Visitors

Pupils at Astoria Junior High School had visitors this week from officials of Oregon colleges and from Spanish-speaking trainees at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

Representatives of the State System of Higher Education talked to youngsters in the eighth and ninth grades Wednesday about what courses to take in high school in preparation for college.

The Spanish-speaking corpswomen visited Don Valdez, a Spanish class Thursday, as part of the language program.

About the American Theater Company, he said, "They have an academic dream season, you can see animals in Walt Disney movies," he said. "Why go to the zoo to look at a lion doing nothing?"

"The problem is, young people must be allowed to make the same decisions. Young people must be given the chance to decide whether they will be content to watch television," he said.

"All these activities I've mentioned—the symphony, the art museum, the zoo—all have programs for young people," he said.

He quoted enthusiastic comments from a group of 40 Job Corps women who had seen the American Theater Company's production of "The Gladiator." "Some of these girls had never seen a play before," Cameron said.

He also criticized both the American Theater and Portland Civic Theater for their schedules.

"Civic is struggling for financial survival, and look at the plays they have had recently. 'The Miser.' The importance of 'Being Earned.' These are good plays, excellent plays. I don't know how good the performances are, because I haven't seen them, but this is not what you find when you need a strong box of-ministration will do with the Kennedy administration's endeavor to aid young people in national administrations. Many Astorians also are interested in what is done with the Job Corps.

Point where the staff includes individuals who are familiar with the life cycle of government organizations and how they are treated after a change in national administrations.

Since President Nixon's service at Tongue Point look for primarily administrative change and tightening up on funds. These views are held despite president Nixon's public statements prior to his election indicating that he had an axe in his heart for the Job Corps and other phases of the Kennedy program to create more opportunity among those who were very short on the staff.

This community is well informed on how the government proceeds to get rid of federal establishments in the area. The navy denied the last minute that it was going to take over the beautiful naval base. The U.S. Maritime administration proceeded quietly to sneak out with ships from the local moorage like a bootlegger. It finally explained that "It was phasing out."

In the Job Corps at Tongue Point phasing out? The Nixon reorganization doesn't necessarily mean that it will be permitted to die through lack of attention and shutting off of funds. Some units of the Job Corps may be closed on the basis of administrative expediency and because funds are low.

Unless congress authorizes the president to get rid of the Job Corps, he can only phase it, not axe it.

All these facts of government life are known at Tongue Point. Its administrative people would have expected changes even if Humphrey had been elected. The cost of the program has been under heavy attack from Democrats as well as Republicans. Its administrative set-up under guidance of the University of Oregon is new and without a lobby to support it.

The fact that Oregon has two Republican senators will shield the Tongue Point Job Corps center from likely administrative trimming. The president can find such centers in states which have Democratic senators.

Their public is waiting to see if they can keep the federal bacon they have promised for the homeless.

Time to Work Together

A message to Tongue Point Job Corps graduates Tuesday — that Blacks and Whites should both get out and work for change but not against each other — was appropriate.

Charles Olson, student body president at Clatsop College, received a favorable response from an audience of Anglos, Negroes, Mexican-Americans and those of other derivation when he called for a constructive remaking of society.

It was obvious to an observer that Olson's call to action struck a favorable note with Black corpswomen, many of whom are having a chance for the first time in their lives to develop feelings of self-importance as a result of their

City's Role In Theater Held Vital

Survival of local theater in Portland depends upon continued interest and effort of the artistic community, the business community and enough persons who will forsake film for live drama.

That is a summary of remarks Friday by James C. Cameron, Portland Civic Theater's former executive director, in a talk to the City Club at the Benson Hotel.

Cameron, work experience supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria, said "survival" of the theater is not only valuable to community life, but "it is also vital."

He said keeping theater alive will require business know-how, talent and enough of plays that draw audiences, not only for culture but also for entertainment.

Portland Civic Theater doesn't have enough interested, involved people, Cameron asserted. "It has enough only when every single seat is filled for every single performance."

No Changes Are Planned In Two Oregon Programs

EUGENE (UPI) — There will be no immediate changes in the operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps and the statewide Head Start program, University of Oregon officials have announced.

They also said they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1. The programs are headquartered at the university.

On July 1 both of the programs will be transferred, by the Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

The Head Start program will be assigned to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Job Corps to the Labor Department.

The university holds a $3.9 million contract for operation of the Tongue Point center at Astoria and a $3.08 contract for operation of the Oregon Head Start program for pre-schoolers.

At present, spokesmen for both the Job Corps and Head Start said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although they will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first of next month.

Stafford Thomas, dean's assistant for federal projects in the College of Education, said, "We are very pleased that the government is interested in continuing the job training opportunities."

They also said they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1. The programs are headquartered at the university.

On July 1 both of the programs will be transferred, by the Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

No Immediate Change Due In Tongue Pt. Operation

EUGENE—University of Oregon officials said today there will be no immediate change in operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center and the statewide Head Start program which are headquartered at the university, and indicated that they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1.

On that date both of the programs will be transferred, by a Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), to other agencies.

President Nixon told Congress Wednesday that Head Start will be assigned to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Job Corps to the Labor Department.

The university holds a $3.9 million prime contract, the only one of its type in the nation, for operation of the Tongue Point Center at Astoria and a $30,000 contract for operation of the Oregon Head Start program for pre-schoolers.

Negotiate Contracts At present, spokesmen for both Head Start and the Job Corps said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although they will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first of next month.

Stafford Thomas, dean's assistant for federal projects in the College of Education, commented that the university will be delighted as an institution to continue operation of the Job Corps Center.

"We are very pleased that the government is interested in continuing the job training opportunities," Thomas said.

"The switch to the Department of Labor appears logical," he said, "since the primary purpose of the Job Corps is job training. However, as an educator, I am hoping that the general education component of the training will continue to carry as much weight in the program as it has in the past."

General Education Given He pointed out that several other institutions which hold sub-contracts for Job Corps training include "some kind of general education in their program, but that the university has a very strong educational program."

"Overall, our total program as stable as it has ever been," he said.

Currently there are about 800 women between 18 and 21 at the center receiving basic education and training in live vocational areas including education.

At present, spokesmen for both the Job Corps and Head Start said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although they will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first of next month.

Stafford Thomas, dean's assistant for federal projects in the College of Education, said, "We are very pleased that the government is interested in continuing the job training opportunities."

They also said they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1. The programs are headquartered at the university.

On July 1 both of the programs will be transferred, by the Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

ics, nurses' aide, secretarial, food service, and drafting.

Hazel Breslin, regional training officer for Head Start whose office is located by the university campus, said more than 1,000 Oregon youngsters attend Head Start enrichment programs each year. Twelve academic year programs, and between 30 and 50 summer pre-school projects are held throughout the state.

In addition, Head Start operates a teacher training program which Dr. Breslin said she is anxious to have retained.

"Since Oregon does not now have a kindergarten program," she pointed out, "many teachers have not had experience with pre-schoolers."

The training program also involves parents of pre-schoolers, instructing them on how to be teachers' aides in the Head Start program.

At present, spokesmen for both the Job Corps and Head Start said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although they will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first of next month.

Stafford Thomas, dean's assistant for federal projects in the College of Education, said, "We are very pleased that the government is interested in continuing the job training opportunities."

They also said they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1. The programs are headquartered at the university.

On July 1 both of the programs will be transferred, by the Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

The Head Start program will be assigned to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Job Corps to the Labor Department.

The university holds a $3.9 million contract for operation of the Tongue Point center at Astoria and a $3.08 contract for operation of the Oregon Head Start program for pre-schoolers.

At present, spokesmen for both the Job Corps and Head Start said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although they will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first of next month.

Stafford Thomas, dean's assistant for federal projects in the College of Education, said, "We are very pleased that the government is interested in continuing the job training opportunities."

They also said they are hopeful certain key areas of the programs will be retained after July 1. The programs are headquartered at the university.

On July 1 both of the programs will be transferred, by the Nixon administration directive, from the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to other agencies.

Job Corps Voice Is Silenced

In its extremely critical early days when it was threatened with racial disorders and exposed to much criticism, the Tongue Point Job Corps center was "battered" with an extraordinary community relations director.

He had much to do with preventing a grave racial situation from breaking out into violence which local authorities couldn't possibly restrain. He was the only person at the center who had a deep understanding of public affairs in Oregon and knew how Oregon people would react to developments at the Job Corps center.

Almost all the other executives were from elsewhere and none had his long and important background in public matters including public controversy.

During most of the time that Lynn Wykoff, who died here from a bone ailment recently, served so effectively as community relations director at Tongue Point he was suffering from multiple myeloma, a bone ailment.

His last appearance on the job was for an hour over a month ago. That evening he dined out with Mrs. Wykoff for a dinner honoring a newspaper editor whom he had known for many years.

He was treated at both the University of Oregon Medical School and at St. Mary Hospital off and on. He outlived medical forecasts for more than a year, continuing to work.

Even in the most critical period of the racial outbreak fears at Tongue Point, all announcements to the press, radio and television were made by Wykoff who had been a news editor on the Oregonian and managing editor on the Portland Reporter.

Normally in such trying circumstances, the head of the agency would have been expected to speak out. But it was always obvious at the Job Corps center here that quiet and soft spoken Wykoff could do a better job at conducting the Corps and the public than things were as he said. He did not believe in puffing. The public gets the whole story, good and bad, in a sober and thoughtful statement from him.

In the critical period, the press had unquestioned confidence in what he said. Newspapers' apologist was doing a snow job. Nothing was more fortunate for Tongue Point in the difficult days that it had a public voice who was respected.

Wykoff gave up a fine position, one that he had long worked for, when he left the news editor's job at the Oregonian. He did a fine job on the Portland Reporter as managing editor on a very low pay. He was a national figure in the Newspaper Guild. He served as secretary of the Portland Guild after being its president and delegate to national conventions. Just as at Tongue Point, nobody in the Portland Guild or the Portland Reporter knew his business better than Lynn Wykoff.

He had early connections with the lower Columbia area from having once been a news writer for the Tillamook weekly. Although he was involved as a newspaperman and public relations director in controversial matters, no one ever heard Wykoff get excited and yell. He was one of the rare newspaper executives who made no noise except at his typewriter. His services at Tongue Point were not confined to advice in dark moments. He was a stimulating leader in morale building and in improving the relations between the corpspeople and the local public.

Portland, Oregon
City Club Bulletin
(Cir. M. 1968)

THE SPEAKER:

JAMES C. CAMERON

Former Executive Director,
Portland Civic Theater

HIS TOPIC:

CAN WE KEEP LOCAL THEATER ALIVE?

Portland Civic Theater recently pressed the financial panic button—and was bailed out by enough contributed dollars to last the current season. The municipal theater in Atlanta, Georgia—a city that had supposedly "arrived" in the arts—did not fare so well and closed its doors in January. Very small houses have been counted at most performances of Portland's American Repertory Theater, a professional company in residence on Portland State University campus.

What does the future hold for the many theatrical companies in Oregon and in Oregon which depend on private financial and moral support for existence? Why the dwindling attendance? Are snuff and cynicism necessary to fill the house? Must audiences and cast disrobe before they can communicate? Is the Ladybug Theater the only noncommercial theatrical effort in Portland?

Jim Cameron, twice director of Portland's Civic Theater for a total of twelve years, has been front row, center, in observing most theatrical efforts in Oregon and will give the City Club audience his opinions of theater today, and analyze some of the happenings which are occurring. He is currently Work Experience Supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria, but more than twenty years in active theater qualify him to be on stage in any discussion of the plight of the theater. A graduate in Speech and Drama from the University of California, Cameron has taught at Adelphi College of Virginia, Straw Hat Review, San Francisco, Peterborough Players, N.H., Lighthouse for the Blind, N.Y., Shore Music Circus in Cohasset, Mass., and Lewis and Clark Festival in Astoria, as well as, most recently, drama instructor at Clatsop Community College.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6,996)

FEB 2 6 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

College Student President Tells Corps Graduates: Get Involved

The student body president of Clatsop Community College told a Job Corps graduating class at Tongue Point Tuesday to "get involved" in changing society and, "Don't just sit back and submit."

Charles Olson told 29 corpswomen who received diplomas and several hundred others at the center. "It is up to us to put down our signs and roll up our sleeves and go to work."

Olson said he understood and supported the Black Power movement and the need for change, but said Black Power and "White Power" should work together to go forward.

The Clatsop student leader said of Astoria, "This town is a prime example of a town that should be torn down and rebuilt—not physically, but mentally."

In another talk to the graduates, the Rev. James McGowan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Astoria, said, "The world hasn't changed as much as you have" at Tongue Point. He told the corpswomen they had gotten to know themselves better while in the Job Corps and said, "You have moved toward the possibilities, rather than to be wiped out by situations."

Most of the young women received diplomas in one of four occupational areas—food service, electronics assembly, business-clerical and health occupations—and a few received diplomas in two of the areas.

In addition, some 29 corpswomen received General Education Development certificates for having completed the equivalent of full high school studies.

Happy Graduate Jacqueline Ross

These were the graduates: Food service — Patricia Ball, Helen Best, Barbara Bowden, Olga Estrada, Christine Grantham and Elisa Martinez. Electronics assembly — M. delia Bedolla, Margaret E. Green, Mary Keegan, Arlene McCray and Virginia Perez. Business-clerical — Mary E. Fisher, Lucy Garcia, Joyce Salsberry and Elizabeth Valder. Health occupations — Rita Armstrong, Irene Brooks, Jacqueline Buckner, Katie Dean, Betty Finch, Carolyn Gumbels, Miss Holman, Gloria Mager, Christina Roushon, Alberta Curatola and Sharon Esler.

The women are in the corps from somewhat less than a year up to two years with most of them taking jobs in areas from which they came.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6,996)

FEB 2 6 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Ticket Sale Saturday For Summer Theater

Tickets to be sold Saturday in Clatsop County for summer theater at Gearhart will be for two comedies with casts from this area and a third yet-to-be-selected Portland production.

Jim Cameron, former Clatsop College drama instructor and director of previous summer plays at Gearhart, will direct "The Torch Bearers" and Bob Ross, head of the English Department at Clatsop, will direct "Years Ago."

"The Torch Bearers," with a cast of 12, is a satire on a little-theater movement just getting under way in the early 1960s. It spots women who thought they should bring culture into their community in the form of live theater.

"Years Ago," with a cast of two men, four women and four teen-agers, is about a young girl who lives with her retired sea captain father and her mother, near Boston. She wants to be an actress, but her father wants her to be a physical culture instructor.

Cameron is former executive director of the Portland Civic Theater and has been stage manager and director in productions and theaters in Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, New Hampshire and Virginia. Former executive director of the Lewis and Clark Festival Assn., Cameron now is on the Tongue Point Job Corps staff. He lives in Seaside.

Ross directed civic theater productions in the Rio Grande Valley in Texas before coming to Clatsop College two years ago. He has directed plays at Warrenton High School. One of them, "Jean Anouilh," will be presented March 7-8.

JIM CAMERON

BOB ROSS

Volunteers from the new Lewis and Clark Civic Theater will sell tickets to the three plays, which will be staged during the six-week period in July and August, on Saturday in both the southern and northern sections of the county.

Allen's PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
Established 1888
PORTLAND
Seattle
San Francisco - Los Angeles
Univ. of Ore. Emerald
Eugene, Oregon

FEB 2 1 1969

No immediate changes reported in Corps, Head Start offices

University officials said today that there will be no immediate changes in the operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps and the Head Start programs which are headquartered at the University, despite the scheduled transfer from the Office of Economic Opportunity to other agencies on July 1.

On that date the Job Corps will go to the Labor Department and Head Start will be assigned to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

President Nixon decided Wednesday. The University holds a $3.9 million prime contract, the only one of its type in the nation, for the operation of the Oregon Tongue Point Center at Astoria, and a $29,000 contract for the operation of the Oregon Head Start program for preschoolers.

At present, spokesmen for both Head Start and the Job Corps said they are under obligation to negotiate contract renewals with OEO although that agency will not be in charge after July 1. Both contracts are to be submitted to OEO by the first of next month.

Stafford Thomas, assistant for federal projects in the University College of Education, commented that the University will be delighted as an institution to continue operation of the Job Corps Center.

"The switch to the Department of Labor appears logical," he said, "since the primary purpose of the Job Corps is training."

However, as an educator, I am hoping that the general education component of the training will continue to carry as much weight in the program as it has in the past."

Currently there are about 800 women between 16 and 21 at the center receiving basic education and training in five vocational areas including electronics, nurses' aide, secretarial, food service, and drafting.

Hazel Breslin, regional training officer for Head Start whose office is located on campus, said some 4,000 Oregon youngsters attend Head Start enrichment programs each year. Twelve academic year programs, and between 40 and 50 summer pre-school projects are held throughout the state.

The training program also involves parents of preschoolers in instructing them on how to be teachers' aides in the Head Start program.

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

29 Graduate Tuesday From Tongue Point

Twenty-nine young women will graduate from the Job Corps Tuesday afternoon at Tongue Point. The public is invited.

The Rev. James McGowan, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Astoria, and Charles Olson, student body president at Clatsop College, will address the corpswomen in the center theater. Graduating corpswoman Jacqueline Ross will give the graduates' remarks.

The graduates will be placed in jobs in the areas of food service, electronics assembly, business and clerical and health occupations. Presenting the diplomas will be those Tongue Point staff members: Alice Vanderveen, food service; Carl Nemeth, electronics assembly; Ruth Blundley, business and clerical; and Irma Wood, health occupations.

Center Director Dr. Dorothy Burns will present some of the girls' certificates of high school completion equivalency.

In the musical part of the program, Cathy Fitzpatrick will perform a saxophone solo and Juliette Harris will sing.

In the musical part of the program, Cathy Fitzpatrick will perform a saxophone solo and Juliette Harris will sing.

Albany, Oregon
Democrat-Herald
(Cir. D. 12,833)

FEB 2 2 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

No changes in sight at Job Corps center

EUGENE (AP) — University of Oregon spokesmen said today that Nixon administration changes won't immediately affect the operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps center.

"Overall our total program is as stable as it has ever been," said Stafford Thomas, who is in charge of the program for the College of Education.

He said the Job Corps will be transferred July 1 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to the Labor Department.

The university holds a $3.9 million contract for operating the center at Astoria.

The school also has a $39,000 contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity for operating the Oregon Head Start program for preschoolers.

Nixon will switch administration of that program to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

There are 800 women at the Astoria center and 4,000 Oregon youngsters attending Head Start programs each year.

Brownies Aid Easter Seals
All trails for Girl Scouts and Brownies lead to the TB&Health Association office these days, where they are helping Mrs. Lloyd Fletcher, executive secretary, get ready for the annual Easter Seals mailing, by stuffing and sealing envelopes. Some of the members of Brownie Troop 822 who are getting in their links are, from left, Shelly Ekellin, Heidi Stroup, Mary Jones, Marcia Chan, Julie Hill and Lisa Ohlmann.

State President Of BPW Honored By Astoria Club

A dinner to honor Mrs. Maxine Hays, President of the Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women Clubs Inc., was held recently at the Sea Fare.

Astoria BPW Club President Maxine Dymond, welcomed all in attendance prior to calling upon Elizabeth Korte to lead the Pledge of Allegiance, and Jean Schaffhauser to give the invocation.

In following the theme of the dinner, World and International Affairs, Miss Emily Sanchez, American Field Service foreign students at AHS, entertained with several Portuguese piano solos. Miss Sanchez, answering questions about Brazil, stated that the schools in Brazil do not have the social activities that the schools in the United States have, and that the curriculum is different. The Brazilian students study both French and English while in junior high school. Miss Sanchez has studied the English language for five years and hopes some day to become an interpreter for an international company.

Following dinner, President Hays talked on the BPW International Federation history, stating that the federation has filed the need of communications of women from different lands. The federation is now 39 years old, founded in 1930. President Hays added, for special interest to the women in our area, that Finland has 2100 BPW members in only 38 individual clubs, while Oregon has 1,968 members in 62 clubs.

She told of the OBPBW Oriental Scholarship program, maintained by contributions of $1 each from each member of the OBPBW, and which is provided for women in the Oriental countries, to assist them in studying for their doctorate or masters degree at an Oregon Institute of higher learning. These women, as a condition of their scholarship, return to their homelands after their studies are completed to aid in the betterment of women.

President Dymond then introduced other guests present. Traveling with President Hays was Gladys Meyers, immediate past president of OBPBW and current expansion chairman, from Springfield. A special introduction was given to the "sound-by" Warren BPW delegation. Sharon Wheeler, Mary Lee Christensen, Bessie Nichols and Jane Wells, also attending was Mrs. Otto Owens from Washington D.C.; Ella Mae Cox, Charlene Schulte and Sandy Morehouse, from Seaside.

To carry through the dinner theme, Business Miss Ruth Rankin and Mrs. Vera Craig used as centerpieces, several world globes, red, white and blue candles entwined with ivy. Placecards and name tags both carried smaller maps of the countries of the world.

Before the gathering joined in a "community sing" to be led by Mr. Otto Weiger, foreign language instructor at Clatsop Community College, President Dymond announced that she had received word that the Astoria BPW club nominee for the fifth Annual Golden Torch Award, Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of the Tongue Point Job Corps for Women, has been named one of the eight winners for the state. There are eight BPW clubs in Pacific district, and this is the third consecutive year Astoria's nominee has been a winner. The awards dinner is to be March 8 at the Holiday Inn in Portland.

Weiger ended the evening festivities by singing in German, Spanish and English while accompanying himself on the guitar, banjo and mandolin.

An executive board meeting has been called for Wednesday, March 5, at President Dymond's home. The next regular business meeting will be March 11th, 7:30 p.m. at the recreation center.

Dr. Dorothy Burns Award Winner

Dr. Dorothy Burns To Receive Award At Portland Event

The Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., will honor an Astoria woman at its annual Golden Torch Awards banquet March 8 at Holiday Inn, Portland.

Dr. Dorothy Burns, center director of the Job Corps at Tongue Point, has been selected by BPW Federation as the Golden Torch Award winner from Pacific district, primarily because she has appointed women to Job Corps positions previously held only by men. Since her arrival at Tongue Point, more than 1,800 young women from underprivileged homes have come to the center, and of that number, 76 have graduated and 100 are already gainfully employed and serving as contributing members of society.

Holding the rank of professor at the University of Oregon, Dr. Burns is one of three women Job Corps center directors in the country and is a member of the steering committee for all women's Job Corps Centers in the U.S.

She is one of eight women and men who will receive the Golden Torch Award at the banquet March 8. They were selected "for significant contribution to ward lighting the way for advancement of better opportunities for business and professional women."

Main speaker at the banquet will be Julia Arri, Claremont, Calif., personal development chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Easter Seal Drive Gets Under Way

The Easter Seal campaign in Clatsop county swung into full gear this week, to continue until Easter Sunday, April 6, with an appeal for funds to finance treatment and rehabilitation of crippled children and adults in Oregon.

Left S. Erickson is county chairman, assisted by Richard Nelson, who serves as treasurer for the county fund. Mrs. Robert Netkes is being assisted by Girl Scouts and Brownies as chairman of mailing, and Vern Leach, coin containers, has his Boy Scout Troop 255 helping him place the containers in commercial establishments. In Seaside, Jim Opperud is serving in this capacity, assisted by Boy Scout Troop 277.

Mrs. Wadell Snyder, with girls from the Job Corps, is chairman of Lily Day sale, with Mrs. Gordon Cline and the Seaside Rainbow girls working in that area. Mrs. James Ferguson is publicity chairman.

Tongue Point Contract Renewed

A $3 million contract to continue operation of the University of Oregon's Tongue Point Job Corps Center near Astoria has been approved by the federal government.

The center is a unique, providing basic education and vocational training for some 600 women between the ages of 16 and 22. Vocational training is provided under a subcontract with Philco-Ford.

The contract renewal is for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The current year's contract calls for an expenditure of $3.9 million.

On July 1, control of the federal Job Corps program will pass from the Office of Economic Opportunity to the Department of Labor. The scheduled shift was announced in mid-February by President Richard Nixon.

University officials have indicated they expect a significant change in the Tongue Point operation as a result of the change in administration.

The new contract provides some $250,000 for rehabilitation of physical plant and another $20,000 for replacement of equipment.

February Corpwomen of Month

Corpwomen of the Month for February at Tongue Point Job Corps Center are (from left) Olga Martinez, Los Angeles; Gwen Amorin, Hawaii; Florida Height, Macon, Ga. Not pictured are Fannie Osborne, Antioch, Tenn., who graduated from the center Feb. 7, and Mary Lee Harrison, Florence, S.C.

Arni Rautio Receives Award

Rautio Honored For Training of Fire Volunteers

Award for his services during the past year as training officer of volunteer firemen at Tongue Point Job Corps Center went last week to Astoria Fire Chief Arni Rautio.

Presentation of a plaque was made by Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of the center.

"The plaque read 'For gallantly imparting your expertise,' and was signed by the Tongue Point Volunteer Firemen's Assn."

Rautio also received a letter of thanks for his services from Stafford G. Thomas, assistant dean for federal projects.

Paring of the budget at Tongue Point last year reduced the number of paid firemen from 14 to 6 and the volunteer group was organized with Rautio as trainer. There are now 24 members of the association, a spokesman said.

Employ Graduate-A Tongue Point Job Corps Center

Employ Graduate-A Tongue Point Job Corps Center graduate, believed to be the only one employed in Astoria, is at work at Mr. C's Restaurant, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Campbell.

Lois McVey, 17, graduated from the Job Corps in December after taking food service training and earning a GED certificate equivalent to a high school diploma.

Miss McVey decided to seek employment in Astoria because she formerly lived in the Ilwaco and Long Beach area. She joined the Job Corps in California where her mother Maxine McVey now lives, and was assigned to Tongue Point.

She hopes in the future to turn to California and attend college after spending some time in Astoria.

Mr. C's, she does not want work, serves food, works on the grill and prepares sandwiches.

Let's Make Music

Sharing rhythm and blues session at Tongue Point nursery school are Tracy Brock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brock of Astoria and Job Corpwoman Mary Ann Gonzalez of Los Angeles.

Clausen Submits Financing Plan for SP&S Street Work

Astoria's city manager will be informed of a plan to finance improvements of the railroad right-of-way between 11th and 12th streets, a long-discussed issue.

Public Works Director Bruce Clausen submitted a plan to the City Council Monday night that would have the city pay $1,200, the Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railway, pay $5,000 and property owners in the assessment district, $13,100.

The project might include removing some spur tracks, replacing some railroad ties, removing the trestle east of 11th and replacing some of the paving at the 12th Street intersection.

City Manager Dale Curry will call a meeting of the property owners.

On Street Improvement

On another street matter, the council received a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Ellis O. Link asking improvement of Seventh Street between Jerome and Kensington. Curry said the street that is unpaved and said the city's policy on unpaved streets is not to improve them.

In other council business, City Atty. Robert Anderson said he has been delayed in drafting a proposed ordinance to set closing hours of drive-in restaurants in an attempt to reduce noise at the Freese King drive-in, 3003 Mid-Erickson Dr.

Curry said complaints from residents in that area are continuing. The drive-in is open for business all night.

Curry said Pacific Northwest Bell officials are still working on a new franchise with the City of Astoria. Curry noted that the phone company has just applied to the Public Utilities Commission for higher rates.

Curry will bring in amendments to the city's cemetery rules and regulations to determine whether the city should sell three existing vaults, as requested by Bill Scherer of Hughes-Ransom Mortuary.

Curry Sullivan resigned as a Parks and Recreation Board member and Al Mauro was named to replace him.

The city received a certificate from the State Board of Health saying the city's water supply meets state standards for bacteriological purity of drinking water.

The fire department and Chief Arni Rautio were commended for helping the Tongue Point Job Corps Center set up a volunteer fire department.

Councilman Arnold Swanson was named to an executive council of the newly formed Clatsop Intergovernmental Council.

Corpwomen, 776 Tongue Pt. Staff Join in Cleanup

Spring cleaning took on giant proportions as an estimated 600 young women and approximately 200 staff members at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center, turned out to sweep, wash, pick up, wax and polish the facilities during the first break in a severe winter of snowstorms, sleet showers and continuous rainy weather.

The detailed planning of the highly successful spring cleanup was done by Director of Operations and Maintenance Ted Thompson, who outlined detailed plans at an all-staff meeting and later at a general assembly of corpwomen at the women's residential training center.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

Corpwomen, 776 Tongue Pt. Staff Join in Cleanup

Spring cleaning took on giant proportions as an estimated 600 young women and approximately 200 staff members at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center, turned out to sweep, wash, pick up, wax and polish the facilities during the first break in a severe winter of snowstorms, sleet showers and continuous rainy weather.

The detailed planning of the highly successful spring cleanup was done by Director of Operations and Maintenance Ted Thompson, who outlined detailed plans at an all-staff meeting and later at a general assembly of corpwomen at the women's residential training center.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

The spring cleanup is part of an overall center policy to involve corpwomen and staff in beautifying the center by use of materials as hand-gathered at beaches or donated by individuals or agencies.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 4,996)

MAR 14 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Center Visitors Find Warm Welcome

Editor's note: Paula Gunderson, Daily Astorian correspondent, recently spent some time at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. These were her observations.

By PAULA GUNDERSON
Of The Daily Astorian

Visitors receive a warm, friendly greeting upon arrival at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. A "get acquainted" time is enlightening and interesting for those who share a few hours of the girls' day.

Two recent graduates, Louise Best of Los Angeles and Mary Jo Keegan of Green Springs, Ohio, tell of their stay at the center during the past months and share their hopes for the future as they now prepare to leave. Both girls had been encouraged by grandparents to apply for Job Corps training. Miss Best has been taking food service which teaches the girls cashiering, food preparation, table waiting, service and, in federal, preparation to enter a field where well-trained employees are in demand.

Miss Keegan, after orientation and testing, chose the electronics program.

Both agree the corps has helped them "a lot" and Miss Keegan feels the training is more than just vocational as it helps one learn to live with others.

Remains at Center

Christine Grantham, Seattle, who just earned her General Education Development certificate, served as teacher's aide and graduated from food service but is continuing her stay at the center and will study in the business and clerical field. Her desire is to work and attend college next fall. She wants to major in elementary education. She says she appreciates the opportunity to "get acquainted with different kinds of people" and she feels the supervisors are "wonderful."

Classes run Monday through Friday from 8:30 to 4:30 with weekends and evenings free for studying, discussion groups, special classes and activities at the center including bowling, skating, pool, field trips, movies and dances when corpsmen from centers in the Northwest come. These are just some of the things girls can do in their spare time. They can leave the center for the evening Wednesday through Friday and on weekends. The majority of the girls spend their time at the center, going to town only occasionally.

During nice weather there is opportunity to learn fishing, surfing, and go boating or skiing.

Doctor on Duty

The center cares for the medical and dental needs of the girls by employing a full-time dentist and doctor.

A vocational training performance report given to the girls once a month enables them to see how they are doing in initiative, personal appearance, quantity and quality of work, relationship with others, adaptability, judgment, knowledge, actendance, punctuality and tolerance.

Daily Astorian

Job Corpwomen Gather Around Piano for Relaxation

When invited to tour the center a visitor meets girls from every state. Olga Martinez, from Los Angeles, is deputy director of student government and is studying drafting. Tricia Davis, from San Diego, is studying business and clerical. Seary Allen, of Jackson, Miss., has finished business and clerical and is working as an aide-her goal is to work in a school office; Wilma Hale, Houston, Tex., is studying drafting; Marianne Cronkite, one of the newest girls, has completed orientation and is deciding which field to enter—she comes from Chicago; Sharon Gramberg, Oahu, Hawaii, works in the campus store and is a jobber business and clerical. She is also studying psychology at Clatsop College, one of the electives open to girls who maintain a good grade point average.

The campus store is as bright and busy as any variety store and is well-stocked with everything from magazines to hair curlers and slippers.

Meet at Cafeteria

The snack bar is a pleasant place for the girls to linger over special snacks and foods.

The rooms accommodate two to five girls, depending on the room size. There is closet and dresser space available. Washers and dryers are on the center for the girls.

Invited to stay for a meal, the non-resident pays 75 cents for a hot dish, vegetables, and coffee or milk. The cafeteria is painted a warm golden yellow with attractive drapes with a flower pattern. The entire corpswoman population meets here for meals with serving time long enough to take care of the approximately 800 girls.

Constantly urged to return again and meet more girls and to stay and just visit, one leaves with a feeling of wanting to invite every one of the girls home for a meal and get acquainted.

Anyone interested in having girls come to their home is invited to call the center and let his request be made known to one of the five resident supervisors. Supervisors include Virgil Savage, residence 1; Paul Jacob, residence 2; C. Vancor, residence 3; Dennis Williams, residence 4; and Richard Price, residence 5.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 4,996)

MAR 14 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Center

Letter Brings News of Job

Job Corps Graduate To Work with FBI

It's always pleasant to receive mail, but a letter from John Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to Annie G. Richardson at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center was something extra special.

Miss Richardson, 23, a corpswoman at the Tongue Point Center for 10 months, will begin an assignment as a clerk with the Department of Justice at Washington, D.C., April 1. She is one of 20 recent graduates who will soon be leaving the center after completing programs in business and clerical, nurses aide, electronics assembly and food services training.

and accounts payable officer, is accepted as temporary editor of the center's student newspaper and editor of her residence hall newspaper. She also served on the counseling committee of her residence hall.

In December, she was one of five corpswomen selected as Corpwoman of the Month, an honor bestowed on girls at the center who have shown unusual accomplishments in all areas of training and residential living.

Miss Richardson's parents, four sisters and two brothers live in Tampa, Fla.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 4,996)

MAR 19 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Year's Contract For Tongue Pt. Center Okayed

Modification of the present contract between the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, D.C., and the Job Corps at Tongue Point, extending the present contract from July 1, 1968 to June 30, 1970, has been announced from Washington by Rep. Wendell Wyatt.

The contract also includes $45,000 for some additional rehabilitation of the physical plant at Tongue Point and $20,000 for replacement of non-expendable equipment, bringing the total contract up to $7,149,576.

At a meeting in Washington, D.C., with the OEO staff members of the University of Oregon and Tongue Point staff, the Oregon delegation was highly complimented by OEO for the results of last year's training program at the center.

Those making the trip from here were Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of the Job Corps Center at Tongue Point; Sydney Thompson, assistant director; David Jordan, director of vocational education for Philco-Ford Corporation, sub-contractor with U of O.

Although leaving the Job Corps with mixed emotions about Tongue Point, Miss Richardson expressed the view that her experiences here had been valuable, particularly her associations with staff members who she felt had always been ready to assist her.

The main impact, she felt, has been "the opportunity to associate with different people and the opportunity to discover why people act the way they do." Her conclusion, "I don't think people are half as bad as I've heard. They're much more open-minded."

Miss Richardson was active while at Tongue Point, working as a switchboard operator on work experience, and had office practice in the placement office

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 4,996)

MAR 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Pt. Contract Good News

News of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center's 1968-70 contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity is good for the economy of Clatsop County, and it's also pleasing to those who believe in the Job Corps program.

The contract means a $60-per-girl reduction in Tongue Point's budget per year. The cut reflects to some extent the economy wave in Washington in view of the President's proposal of an anti-ballistic missile system costing several billion dollars. The proposal may not make it through Congress, but it and the continuing Vietnam war are enough to make department heads in Washington use the blue pencil freely.

Another pleasing note about Wednesday's announcement was the compliment paid the Tongue Point staff by the Office of Economic Opportunity. The work done with the young women at the former Naval base has impressed federal officials and others who have had the chance to become acquainted with the center. Some of the practices instituted at Tongue Point have set examples for the Job Corps.

Chronicle
The Dalles, Oregon
(Cir. D 5340)

MAR 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

ASTORIA (UPI)—A contract for $7,149,576 for operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center for the year beginning July 1 has been approved, Rep. Wendell Wyatt, R-Ore., reported Wednesday.

The contract between the Office of Economic Opportunity and the University of Oregon includes $45,000 for some rehabilitation of the physical plant and $20,000 for replacement of equipment. The center has about 750 girls being trained for jobs.

Medford, Oregon
Mail-Tribune
(Cir. D. 21,748)

MAR 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Point Job Contract Approved

ASTORIA (UPI)—A contract for $7,149,576 for operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center for the year beginning July 1 has been approved, Rep. Wendell Wyatt, R-Ore., reported Wednesday.

The contract between the Office of Economic Opportunity and the University of Oregon includes $45,000 for some rehabilitation of the physical plant and $20,000 for replacement of equipment. The center has about 750 girls being trained for jobs.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 4,996)

MAR 14 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Center

Get On-the-Job Training

Putting into practice skills learned at the Tillamook Job Corps Center are Allen Judd, 19, (center), Raleigh, N.C., and George Johnson, 19, Richmond, Calif. (right). Both men completed cooks training and are now getting on-the-job training at Tongue Point. Food service manager Chester Lipscomb offers some advice.

Portland, Oregon
Oregon Journal
(Cir. D. 143,888)

MAR 28 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Oregon Editors Discuss...

Job Corps Renewal

News of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center's 1968-70 contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity is good for the economy of Clatsop County, and it's also pleasing to those who believe in the Job Corps program.

The contract means a $60-per-girl reduction in Tongue Point's budget per year. The cut reflects to some extent the economy wave in Washington in view of the President's proposal of an anti-ballistic missile system costing several billion dollars. The proposal may not make it through Congress, but it and the continuing Vietnam war are enough to make department heads in Washington use the blue pencil freely.

Another pleasing note about Wednesday's announcement was the compliment paid the Tongue Point staff by the Office of Economic Opportunity. The work done with the young women at the former Naval base has impressed federal officials and others who have had the chance to become acquainted with the center. Some of the practices instituted at Tongue Point have set examples for the Job Corps.

—Daily Astorian, March 28.

Signal
Seaside, Oregon
(Cir. W 2,470)

MAR 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Speake, is Job Corp. counselor

Rev. Virgil Savage from Tongue Point Job Corps Center was guest speaker last week for the Women's Service League of the Community Presbyterian church. He told of his work as personal counselor to 100 teenage girls and said there are approximately 800 girls at the center, about 48 per cent colored, 21 per cent mixed, five per cent Hawaiian and Alaskan Eskimo, a few Indians and the rest Caucasian. He noted that each girl stays at the school about eight months, and said that many have gone from the school and made good in various lines of work.

Debbie Johnson, committee chairman of Mrs. Paul Barrows, Mrs. Maurice Turner and Mrs. Charles Hill.

The league is starting a spring clothing drive for Church World Service, to end June 30. Anyone wishing to contribute good used clothing may call Mrs. Leslie Spencer or bring the clothing to the church any Sunday.

A 9:00 study hour is planned Monday at 9 p.m. with Mrs. Byron Travis as teacher. An executive board meeting will follow.

MAR 11 1969

Governor Is Given Pay Hike

By DOUGLAS SEYMOUR
Capital Journal Reporter

A $3,500 pay increase for the governor was approved by the Ways and Means Salary Subcommittee Monday. It also favored increasing his expense allowance.

The new pay scale approved by the subcommittee would increase the governor's salary from the present $25,000 to $28,500. The monthly expense allowance, which the governor gets in addition to his salary, would be increased from the present $800 to $1,000 a month.

The biggest pay increase for any non-judicial elective official went to the superintendent of public instruction. The subcommittee favored raising his present $28,000 a year salary to $34,000.

It was pointed out that several school districts in the state now pay their superintendents in the $24,000 range and that salaries of several community college presidents are higher than that of the state superintendent.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dale Parnell took a pay cut when he assumed his present job last year. At that time he was making $21,500 as president of Lane Community College.

The subcommittee also approved increasing the salaries of the secretary of state and state treasurer from the present $21,000 to $24,000 a year as McCall had recommended. However there was some resistance from some subcommittee members, who pointed out that some of the functions of the secretary of state's office probably will be transferred to other agencies.

The subcommittee approved a $20,000 annual salary for the attorney general, $1,000 less than the governor had recommended. The attorney general now receives $20,000 a year.

The salary of the state labor commissioner was increased from $19,000 to $22,500, $500 more than the governor had asked.

No decision will be made on judicial salaries until after a hearing is held next week.

McCall has recommended Supreme Court salaries be increased from $23,500 to $27,000. The proposed Intermediate Appeals Court judges would get $25,000. Circuit Court judges and the Tax Judge would get a District Court judges would earn $18,000 instead of the present $18,500.

A new salary schedule for district attorneys was sent to another subcommittee for further study.

There is some sentiment on the committee to establish district attorneys on a judicial district basis rather than having in the state now take in more than one county, although the plan is adopted a deputy district attorney would be placed in the counties where there would be no district attorney. Many of the judicial districts in the state now take in more than one county, although the plan is adopted a deputy district attorney would be placed

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6, 996)

MAR 1 8 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Medford, Oregon
Mail-Tribune
(Cir. D. 21,748)

MAR 2 3 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Point Budget Set At $3.8 Million

EUGENE (UPI) — The University of Oregon said Friday its contract to operate the Tongue Point Job Corps Center for the year beginning July 1 calls for a budget of $3.8 million.

University officials said the new agreement is an extension of the existing contract under which $3.8 million is being spent for the current fiscal year.

Medford, Oregon
Mail-Tribune
(Cir. D. 21,748)

MAR 2 5 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Point Job Center Costs Told

EUGENE — The University of Oregon and the Office of Economic Opportunity have amended their current contract for operation of the Tongue Point Job Corps during fiscal 1969 to add $3.8 million for operating costs during fiscal 1970.

Operating costs for the coming year were set at about $100,000 less than the $19 million previously allocated for the current year for a total budget during the two-year period of about $3.7 million.

Additionally, $45,000 was allocated for rehabilitation and $20,000 for equipment during 1970. Although the amount of operating funds will be less, the number of women to be trained will remain the same, or about 750-800 women each year.

The trainees at the center receive both basic education and training in five vocational areas including electronics, nursing, secretarial, food service, and drafting.

Santa Fe, New Mexico
New Mexican

MAR 5 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Grad

Elizabeth Valdez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Valdez, Route 1 in Santa Fe, has recently graduated from the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center in Astoria, Ore.

She has been a trainee at the center since March, 1968. Miss Valdez completed a course in business and clerical occupations.

The Tongue Point Center has 750 students and is operated by the University of Oregon in cooperation with the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity and Phillips-Ford Corporation.

San Diego, Calif.
North San Diego Independent
(Cir. 2-W. 22,941-147,132)

MAR 9 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

JOB CORPS TRAINEE

Carmen Torres, 22, daughter of Anita M. Torres, 4083 Gamma Street, has received her General Educational Development certificate from Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center in Oregon.

This certificate, awarded after she passed an examination with scores equal to or higher than those required by the 28 states that issue high school equivalency certificates, is generally accepted by employers in lieu of a high school diploma.

San Diego, Calif.
Independent
(Cir. 2-W. 100,485)

MAR 9 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

JOB CORPS TRAINEE

Carmen Torres, 22, daughter of Anita M. Torres, 4083 Gamma Street, has received her General Educational Development certificate from Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center in Oregon.

This certificate, awarded after she passed an examination with scores equal to or higher than those required by the 28 states that issue high school equivalency certificates, is generally accepted by employers in lieu of a high school diploma.

San Diego, Calif.
Suburban Independent
(Cir. 2-W. 22,941-147,132)

MAR 9 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

JOB CORPS TRAINEE

Carmen Torres, 22, daughter of Anita M. Torres, 4083 Gamma Street, has received her General Educational Development certificate from Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center in Oregon.

This certificate, awarded after she passed an examination with scores equal to or higher than those required by the 28 states that issue high school equivalency certificates, is generally accepted by employers in lieu of a high school diploma.

Oakland, Calif.
CALIFORNIA VOICE
(Cir. W. 12,500)

MAR 7 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

MARY FISHER

GRADUATES FROM

JOB CORPS

ASTORIA, Ore. — Mary Fisher, 18, daughter of Marion Mc

Full, 6447 Salem Street, was born in Astoria, Ore. She has been a trainee at the center since January 1968.

Tongue Point, which is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the federal Office of Economic Opportunity, with Phillips-Ford Corp. presenting vocational training as a sub-contractor, has a current enrollment of 750.

In addition to job skills training, the Job Corps program includes remedial education and vocational development, and is available to students between the ages of 16 and 21.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D. 6, 996)

MAR 1 4 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Cleanup

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

assisting in the cleanup.

Job Corps Center

Spring cleanup at Tongue Point Job Corps center was a joint

corpsmen-staff project. In top photo are Corpsmen

Faustina Sue (left) and Janet Solomon, with reading instructor

Franchell Scott. Lower photo shows volunteer firemen

Student Teacher

Carol Owen, second from left, is one of 45 student teachers who undergo training at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center during the school year. Miss Owen, a senior at Oregon State University, is one of 15 prospective future teachers selected for student teaching at Tongue Point during the winter term at OSU. From Milwaukee, Ore., she is teaching a class in "special problems," including such subjects as birth control, abortion, racism, narcotics and urban problems.

VISTA Member Finds Work With Job Corps Rewarding

PAULA GUNDERSON
Of The Daily Astorian
A VISTA worker at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center believes the people of Astoria should be involved more with the Corpswomen because "exposure would produce less fear and misunderstanding."
Gloria Franklin, a member of Volunteers in Service to America, has found her brief stay at the center "fascinating" and thoroughly enjoys the wide variety of cultures represented. Other VISTA workers—a married couple and a young woman—also serve at Tongue Point.
Miss Franklin, born and reared in New York City, has completed her three-week training program and three weeks of on-the-job training at the University of Oregon. A part of the program was a three-day stay in a strange community with only $9 to live on. During the three days she was expected to "think like a VISTA" and decide in what areas she would work to better the community.
She also lived for five days with a low-income family. She who gain through their involvement a keen awareness of what's happening in the world. One of her desires during her year with the Job Corps is establishment of a discussion group where the girls can talk of their backgrounds and ways of life. She expressed a wish that Astorians would participate because she feels this would help in achieving a better understanding between the community and the girls.

GLORIA FRANKLIN

An advantage a VISTA member has is not having to meet the same schedule as a staff member would, thus giving time to work with assignments on a more personal basis.
Miss Franklin would like to return to New York after her year as a volunteer and hopes to continue to "get involved" by working closely with young people.
VISTA members include adults and young people in their early 20s and some in their 30s. Professional people such as doctors, lawyers and nurses are also in VISTA. Applications are made to Washington, D.C., or the VISTA are a dynamic group

Temperature Down to 11 Degrees

Five-Inch Snow Falls on Region

By RUSSELL DANK
Of The Daily Astorian
Temperature dropped to 11 degrees at Clatsop airport Tuesday night, the second lowest on record at the U.S. Weather Bureau station as five inches of snow pelted out of a leaden sky on already beleaguered residents of the Sunset Empire.
"The end is not yet in sight," a bureau forecaster said. Forecast for Clatsop county was 10 degrees, recorded in 1964.
Forecast is for continued more showers and additional cold as a low pressure area moves to be a record for persistence and probably for depth.

Estimates in the Astoria area ranged from 20 inches up to 30. It was hard to tell because some of the stuff melted Tuesday and had packed down. Many autos around town were virtually buried.
Fred Anders of The Daily Astorian kept official weather records from 1828 to 1962 and said the present snow surpasses anything in that period for number of days and depth. The Weather Bureau says 27.8 inches of snow was recorded in a little more than a week in the winter of 1964-65, but it was a wet snow and melted fairly rapidly.
Astoria City Manager Dale Curry urged people to abide by the parking limits on Commercial street, which city workers are trying to clear of snow. He said cars violating the limits will be towed away.
Curry said city crews were pretty well caught up with the business section snow Tuesday but had to start over in many areas of the downtown district today. Curry said it doesn't do any good for store owners to call the city to get their areas cleared of snow, because the crews are clearing areas as they come to them.

Open Forum

STRANGER THAN FICTION

Reactions from our society are sometimes stranger than fiction. It insists on being consistently inconsistent.
This past week's controversy over some supposedly misquoted percentages about Astoria high school set into motion a chain of events that resounded at Tongue Point.

Strange... because Tongue Point had been the center of several fighting views on why we shouldn't be here. More than 700 girls were being ridiculed by some of the callers but few chose to prove or speak out about the facts about those girls, nor were they interested in the facts because these girls are not a part of the protected establishment. They are those whose problems have kept them from many of the chances to do the many things that the Astoria high population can do. They are here because they choose to better their lot and prove themselves to themselves. Those who became alarmed felt their status quo threatened and sought the sympathy of public opinion to re-emphasize a false pride.

Our girls have nothing to hide. They put their troubles, problems and ideas on the table and discuss them to see what they can do to help themselves or to help others among themselves. We have some very fine young people at Tongue Point just as Astoria high has. We have some bad ones also, just as Astoria high has. In population our center has the same kinds as are in Astoria high school. The difference—we are not establish ment.

Our girls are often victims of the very things of which they were being accused, but they have taken the ridicule in stride and still graduate with honors. Percentages aren't important—problems are.

Any interested person is always welcome to come with or without invitation and visit our center.

Any similarity of thought in this writing shown by any other members at Tongue Point is purely coincidental as these are strictly my personal thoughts and no one is to be held responsible.

JUNE R. KIVY, Counselor
Res. No. 1, Tongue Point JCC

To Washington — Dorothy Burns, director of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, went to Washington, D.C., Wednesday for a two-day meeting of a committee studying year-round use of public schools. Mrs. Burns is a member of the group which was set up by the National Education Assn., composed of educators from throughout the country.

Report Delivered — A report prepared by Dr. Dorothy Burns, director, showing the advantages of retaining Tongue Point Job Corps Training Center for Astoria has been delivered to the Nixon administration by Sen. Hatfield's office, according to word received yesterday by Jean Hallaux, chamber of commerce secretary.

Job Corps Digs Out From Snow

Instruction and other regular activities are continuing pretty much as normal with the aid of wooden snow shovels at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Assistant Director Syd Thompson said today.

Thompson said the center had no snow-renewal equipment and has built wooden shovels to clear walkways and to take snow off some roofs. He said four feet of snow had built up on the end of Hanger No. 1, which houses the center's basic education department.

The official said classes have gone on as usual, except for a brief period Monday morning.

The center's buses have been shuttling personnel between Navy Heights and the center, and a carry-all has been taken into Astoria to pick up some employees who were stranded.

Jackson To Be On Conference Panel

EUGENE — A panel discussion dealing with training and securing jobs for the hard-core unemployed will be on the program for the 10th annual Portland Business Conference, Wednesday, Feb. 5.

Appearing on the panel will be Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of Tongue Point Job Corps Center, for the past two years; and Glen L. Jackson, chairman of the board, Pacific Power and Light Co., chairman of the Oregon State Highway Commission, and Metropolitan Chairman of the National Alliance of Businessmen.

Jackson will discuss "NAB-JOB'S" and Dr. Burns' topic will be "Upgrading the Hard-Core Unemployable" at the afternoon session. Moderator will be Larry E. Richards, assistant professor of business state at the University of Oregon.

Our girls are often victims of the very things of which they were being accused, but they have taken the ridicule in stride and still graduate with honors. Percentages aren't important—problems are.

Any interested person is always welcome to come with or without invitation and visit our center.

Any similarity of thought in this writing shown by any other members at Tongue Point is purely coincidental as these are strictly my personal thoughts and no one is to be held responsible.

JUNE R. KIVY, Counselor
Res. No. 1, Tongue Point JCC

Festival Group Vows to Pay $3500 in Debts

The financially troubled Lewis and Clark Festival Association has resolved to pay off some $3,500 in debts by the end of its directors' terms, in June.

Directors of the theater group met Friday night in Astoria to get a rundown on their financial situation and elected Dr. E. A. Harvey of Astoria president to succeed Stewart McCollum, Clatsop college president. McCollum resigned Friday, saying the press of his work at the college and during the legislative session forced him to quit the association post.

Mrs. William Haseltine of the board said she was heading a committee to pay off the association's debts. She said about one-fourth of the group's debts had been paid off so far.

The association had to release its executive director, James Cameron, last month because of the financial bind.

The board agreed Friday to invite Cameron, now on the Tongue Point Job Corps staff, to come on to the board, along with some other prospective new directors.

Some of the directors met Saturday at Mrs. Haseltine's home with Portland journalist Tom Humphrey and former ALCOA executive Donald Tilson to discuss ways of getting support for the association's idea of an outdoor theater in Clatsop county in which to present an annual Lewis and Clark drama.

Students See Special Matinees

More than 5,300 students representing 62 Oregon high schools, some from communities nearly 100 miles from Portland, attended special matinee performances of the 1968 American Theater Company, said Mrs. Philip Selling, school matinee program chairman for the professional repertory company.

"For many students, this was the first experience with professional live theater," she added. "They loved the chance."

Seventeen matinees were presented for high schools. Some of the students came from Warrenton and from the Tongue Point Job Corps. They not only paid for their tickets, but for their bus transportation as well.

Most saw the Holm and Abbott comedy, "Three Men on a Horse." The schedule also included performances of Robert Montgomery Bird's "The Gladiators," Robert Lowell's "The Old Glory" and William A. Vaughn Moody's time-of-the-century Western melodrama, "The Great Divide."

Mrs. Richard Rosenberg served as chairman of the committee which hopes to greatly expand its services next season. Bob Mrs. Selling and Mrs. Rosenberg are American Theater Company board members. Thomas Hill is artistic director of the company and is making plans now for the 1970 season.

TONGUE POINT GETS CONTRACT FOR ANOTHER YEAR

The Tongue Point Job Corps Center will continue for another year with an annual budget per girl per year amounting to $5,165. The total appropriation for the center is $3,813,550, according to Director Dorothy Burns.

Exchange Visiting

In goodwill program, Tongue Point Job Corps Center and Astoria High School girls exchanged visits this week. From left at Astoria High are Olga Martinez, Job Corps student government assembly director, Sharon Burkhardt, AHS, at microphone; Ann Yancy, AHS student body president; and corpswomen Phyllis D. Driver and Mary A. Morales, and Debby Johnson, AHS.

Uncle Sam's Helping Hand: Most Aid Money Goes Where Pressure Puts It

BY JAMES LONG
Journal Staff Writer

Oregon's 3 million dollars in federal aid money is being spent in a way that is not always what the public expects. The state's 1963-64 fiscal year saw 1.1 million gallons of waste oil being burned in the state's 100 million dollar agricultural program, a record for the state. The state's 1963-64 fiscal year saw 1.1 million gallons of waste oil being burned in the state's 100 million dollar agricultural program, a record for the state.

ADD TO THIS the fact that the state's 1963-64 fiscal year saw 1.1 million gallons of waste oil being burned in the state's 100 million dollar agricultural program, a record for the state. The state's 1963-64 fiscal year saw 1.1 million gallons of waste oil being burned in the state's 100 million dollar agricultural program, a record for the state.

THIS RAISES two more observations about the federal aid system: 1. Most of the billions are going where pressure puts it. 2. A lot of the aid is being spent in a way that is not always what the public expects.

AN EXAMPLE of the latter is the aid for abating water pollution. The U.S. government has granted nearly $3 million for abating water pollution in the state's 100 million dollar agricultural program, a record for the state.

Ironically, in Multnomah County where most of the aid money was spent, the median family income fell from $6,378 in 1959 to $5,039 in 1966. The total dollar income in Multnomah County, according to OEO, 18 per cent was available to the 11.3 per cent of families with less than $500 annual earnings while 57 per cent was available to the 23 per cent with more than $10,000 per year.

NATIONALLY, according to H. Dean P. Miller, U.S. Bureau of Census, 20 per cent of the population in 1960 had less than $500 annual earnings while 57 per cent was available to the 23 per cent with more than $10,000 per year.

A RECENT 20-page OEO report regarding the Portland Metropolitan Area showed that the state's 1963-64 fiscal year saw 1.1 million gallons of waste oil being burned in the state's 100 million dollar agricultural program, a record for the state.

PROJECT HEAD START test results are tied into electronic computer by Barbara Ritz of Portland School District staff. Head Start, educational prep program for disadvantaged youngsters, is one of few programs being evaluated.

PROJECT HEAD START test results are tied into electronic computer by Barbara Ritz of Portland School District staff. Head Start, educational prep program for disadvantaged youngsters, is one of few programs being evaluated.

After an adjustment of the Head Start program, Holmes was disappointed to find that the average score was boosted only 2 points, to 34. However, Holmes hit on the idea of using a computer to give Head Start teachers a monthly progress report on the progress of each child. The program is now being evaluated.

BUT FEW federal aid programs subject themselves to this kind of "hard" evaluation, as far as can be determined. Most informative information, if it comes to light at all, is found in reports made by agencies outside a program. For example, the federal government hired Tempo Center for Advanced Studies, a subsidiary of the University of Oregon, to evaluate the program.

THE ODD THING is that everybody else seemed to think it was a big success — especially the juvenile delinquency prevention program, he said. But the hard data showed that 15 of the 20 boys in the program became delinquent and that 12 of the 15 dropped out of school. How anyone can imagine that a 75 per cent failure rate represents success is something I can't understand, Polk said.

Polk also said the supposed economic benefits of the family service section of the program proved illusory on close examination.

"EVERYBODY" talked about how economic upgrading was going on — but when you looked at the figures you could see that nearly all of the added income was due directly to salaries paid by the program. To the average government worker, such talk is high treason, Polk's quarrel isn't with salaries or failure — but with the unwillingness of many project directors to look squarely at what they're achieving. The program's several workers and educators can all be found "doing their thing" either to the public or to themselves. A social worker will tell me that the best way to deal with a wayward youth is to counsel him — but I know, Tom, that you're not doing it. You're just giving him a job. You're just giving him a job.

complete a job training course. Notre Dame was experimenting by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it.

ANYWAY, Slabaugh pointed out, on the other hand, that it's extremely difficult to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it.

At the time the Journal gathered its information, 929 of 1968 girls entering the program had dropped out. Only 134 graduates were known to be in jobs relating to their training at the Job Corps Center.

HOWEVER, the average pay of graduates in training-related jobs was $12.12 hourly, compared with $8 cents an hour before the Job Corps. A happier story is told in figures published by Oregon Project Newgate, an Upward Bound college program for inmates of the Oregon State Penitentiary.

"WE HAD a job training program for A.C. workers and we thought it was good because the mothers were given off welfare left and right. Then we found out the real reason: They were getting married again. Instead of getting their checks at home, they had to get them in the morning, red-faced, and on lipstick and go down on the job. They were meeting eligible men."

On the other hand, said Putnam, what appears to be failure isn't always failure. For instance, Putnam was convinced recently that a job training program for mothers was a failure because of the high dropout rate. Then he discovered that the better workers were being finished with the program.

ON THE OTHER hand, he found, the less able workers were not doing as well as the better workers. The result was a new Putnam's Law: "People who are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it."

complete a job training course. Notre Dame was experimenting by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it.

ANYWAY, Slabaugh pointed out, on the other hand, that it's extremely difficult to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it.

At the time the Journal gathered its information, 929 of 1968 girls entering the program had dropped out. Only 134 graduates were known to be in jobs relating to their training at the Job Corps Center.

HOWEVER, the average pay of graduates in training-related jobs was $12.12 hourly, compared with $8 cents an hour before the Job Corps. A happier story is told in figures published by Oregon Project Newgate, an Upward Bound college program for inmates of the Oregon State Penitentiary.

"WE HAD a job training program for A.C. workers and we thought it was good because the mothers were given off welfare left and right. Then we found out the real reason: They were getting married again. Instead of getting their checks at home, they had to get them in the morning, red-faced, and on lipstick and go down on the job. They were meeting eligible men."

On the other hand, said Putnam, what appears to be failure isn't always failure. For instance, Putnam was convinced recently that a job training program for mothers was a failure because of the high dropout rate. Then he discovered that the better workers were being finished with the program.

ON THE OTHER hand, he found, the less able workers were not doing as well as the better workers. The result was a new Putnam's Law: "People who are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it."

complete a job training course. Notre Dame was experimenting by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it.

ANYWAY, Slabaugh pointed out, on the other hand, that it's extremely difficult to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it.

At the time the Journal gathered its information, 929 of 1968 girls entering the program had dropped out. Only 134 graduates were known to be in jobs relating to their training at the Job Corps Center.

HOWEVER, the average pay of graduates in training-related jobs was $12.12 hourly, compared with $8 cents an hour before the Job Corps. A happier story is told in figures published by Oregon Project Newgate, an Upward Bound college program for inmates of the Oregon State Penitentiary.

"WE HAD a job training program for A.C. workers and we thought it was good because the mothers were given off welfare left and right. Then we found out the real reason: They were getting married again. Instead of getting their checks at home, they had to get them in the morning, red-faced, and on lipstick and go down on the job. They were meeting eligible men."

On the other hand, said Putnam, what appears to be failure isn't always failure. For instance, Putnam was convinced recently that a job training program for mothers was a failure because of the high dropout rate. Then he discovered that the better workers were being finished with the program.

ON THE OTHER hand, he found, the less able workers were not doing as well as the better workers. The result was a new Putnam's Law: "People who are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it. Perhaps the most difficult synthetic rubber is produced by the sweat of their brow and too little man made it. They are less likely to find a job with acetate chemicals. But this data was more from it."

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. 57577)

APR 22 1969
Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Graduation Planned Wednesday

A graduation ceremony at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center will be held Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in the center auditorium at 3:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Graduation messages will be delivered by Margaretta Medina, an Indian from Port Hueneme, Calif.; radio station manager T.C. Chopping; and Dorothy Burns, center director. Corpswoman Wilma Hale will be sworn into the Women's Army Corps. Willie Robinson, the student government director, will preside, the Civil Air Patrol will present the colors and Olga Martinez, student government deputy director, will lead the Pledge of Allegiance.

Director of Job Corps Center Slated to Testify

The director of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center will be in Washington, D.C. Friday and Saturday to testify before a congressional committee on the center's operations. Mrs. Burns said Wednesday she had been invited to testify Saturday morning before the House Education and Labor Committee, which is taking an extensive look into the whole Job Corps program now that the Nixon Administration has directed closure of some corps centers.

Mrs. Burns said an official of the Manpower division of the Department of Labor had phoned to ask her to come to the department Friday for discussion on the Job Corps program.

Portland, Oregon
The Press
City Southeast
(Cir. 22714)

APR 23 1969
Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

American Theater Plays To Over 5,000 students

More than 5,200 students from 42 high schools in Portland and the surrounding area attended matinee performances by the American Theater Company this past season, according to Mrs. Philip Selling, co-chairman of the company's high school matinee program.

For many students, this is their first experience with professional live theater, and they love it. Mrs. Selling said. Students come from as far as Warrenton High School and Tongue Point on the coast and Sweet Home High School 80 miles south of Portland, she pointed out. A total of 17 matinee performances were presented, just for high school students. Greatest student attendance was for Holm and Abbott's comedy "Three Men on a Horse." The matinee schedule also included "The Gladiators" by Robert Montgomery Bird, "The Old Glory" by Robert Lowell and "The Great Divide" by William Vaughn Moody.

For the second straight year, actors from the company went out and spoke at high school classes and assemblies about acting and the American Theater Company. This year the actors talked to 4,200 students, Mrs. Selling said. Serving as co-chairman of the company's high school matinee program with Mrs. Selling is Mr. Richard Rosenberg. Both women are members of the board of the American Theater Company.

Gazette-Times
Corvallis, Oregon
(Cir. D 10,119)

APR 23 1969
Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Adair Closes—What Next?

What has been speculation, with varying intensity, for many months has now become irrefutable fact. Adair Air Force Station will be closed.

Rep. Wendell Wyatt (R-First District) phoned the Gazette-Times immediately upon receiving notification from the Department of the Air Force. He was troubled by the effect of the closure upon the economy of Benton County. He recognized, with regret, the disruption inevitable in the lives of those associated with the Station.

In a later call with the formal announcement, Sen. Robert Packwood joined Wyatt in expressing frustration similar to that surfacing locally. They, no more than we, can importune for continuation of a military installation which, after careful appraisal, is determined unnecessary and, at the same time, demand an appreciable cut in tax spending. Yet specifically federal military spending. Yet the closure of Adair Air Force Station, one of only two military installations in the entire state, is cause for genuine concern to this area and its people.

Since the possibility of Adair's deactivation first arose more than two years ago, Congressman Wyatt and many influential people in the state and local area have persevered to make certain every legitimate factor was weighed in the evaluation of Adair Air Force Station. All were hoping, but most recognized that its continuation could not long be justified on a military-economic basis.

This was the impetus behind several meetings and discussions in recent months — the determination to roll with the punch. Because Adair Air Force Station represents a sizeable investment and holds considerable potential for alternate uses.

The immediate alternative that jumps up, of course, is as a campus for Linn-Benton Community College. Admittedly, it lacks some of the desirable elements — the district's geographical and population center for instance — but these are more than offset by the mere fact that it is — and with buildings highly adaptable to use of an educational institution of this type.

Another idea was dented off last week by Gazette-Times general manager Arthur L. Lowe. He revived a proposal made by Oregon State University food tech head, Hal Schultz. At the time Dr. Schultz had the Astoria base which became the Job Corps Center in mind. But Adair is even better suited to the suggested Foreign Food Acceptance program than the coastal city. Proximity to OSU's laboratories, equipment and top-notch professionals favor the development of a program which would help people from other countries convert nutritious and plentiful foodstuffs into products culturally acceptable by the needy or underdeveloped nations.

There are other alternatives. It is futile to spend time fighting the closure of Adair Air Force Station. The effort now must be on generating a use for the property that will replace the loss to the economy of the area yet one that is compatible with the desired livability of this area.

Job Corps Graduation

Tongue Point Job Corps Center

Tongue Point Job Corpswoman Wilma Hale (left) was inducted into the service by Capt. Carol Monahan following her graduation Wednesday afternoon at the center (top photo). Lower photo shows graduates seated on stage for the ceremony.

Daily Astorian

Cos Boy, Oregon
The World
(Cir. D 14,560)

APR 24 1969
Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Lifetime NB Resident, Robertson, Dead At 54

Leo Sherman Robertson, 54, center in Astoria, lifetime resident of North Bend, died today in a hospital. He was the son of Mrs. Robertson, who was born in North Bend. He was a resident of North Bend for many years. He was a member of the North Bend Community Center. He was a member of the North Bend Community Center. He was a member of the North Bend Community Center.

Mr. Robertson started work at North Bend, Mrs. John (Cathy) Robertson, who was born in North Bend. He was a resident of North Bend for many years. He was a member of the North Bend Community Center. He was a member of the North Bend Community Center. He was a member of the North Bend Community Center.

Tongue Pt. Director Comments On Job Corps Closure Proposal

By STEVE WHARTON
Of The Daily Astorian

Port of Tongue Point, Oregon, Tongue Point Director, Steve Wharton, said that the closure of seven Job Corps centers, which she said involved roughly half of the total number of girls being trained at the center through the country, and at the 300 and in number of male students per girl per year at Tongue Point.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

In a report to the Clatsop Community Relations Council, Mr. Wharton did not specify what action will be taken to the cut of the center's program.

AT MATINEE American Theater Plays To Over 5,000 Students

More than 5,000 students from 42 high schools in Portland and the surrounding area attended matinee performances by the American Theater Company this past season, according to Mrs. Philip Selland, co-chairman of the company's high school matinee program.

This is their first experience with professional, live theater, and they love it," Mrs. Selland said. Students come from as far as Warrington High School and Tongue Point on the coast and Seaside High School 80 miles south of Portland, she pointed out.

A total of 17 matinee performances were presented just for high school students. Greatest student attendance was for Holm and Abbott's comedy, "Three Men on a Horse." The matinee schedule also included "The Gladiators" by Robert Montgomery, "Bird, The Old Glory" by Robert Lowell and "The Great Divide" by William Vaughn Moody.

For the second straight year, actors from the company went out and spoke to high school classes and assemblies about acting and the American Theater Company. This year the actors talked to 4,300 students, Mrs. Selland said. Serving as co-chairman of the company's high school matinee program with Mrs. Selland is Mrs. Richard Rosenberg. Both women are members of the board of the American Theater Company.

Committee Dates Tongue Pt. Visit

The University of Oregon-Tongue Point Advisory Committee will visit the Tongue Point Job Corps Center Monday. Among members will be acting President Charles Johnson of the University of Oregon and John Kramer, management director of the Philco-Ford Corp.

Also guests at the center will be administrators and faculty members from the University of Oregon, Oregon State University and other major universities. Among activities of the day will be a panel discussion among four former corporates now working in the Northwest.

Southside resident completes training

Janice White, 18, daughter of Shirley White of 1628 East 12th Avenue, Astoria, graduated from the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center at Astoria, Oregon, after completing a training course as a nurse's aide.

Miss White began training at Tongue Point in November 1967. Center is operated by the University of Oregon under contract with the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity.

Tongue Point Job Corps Spared From Axe This Time

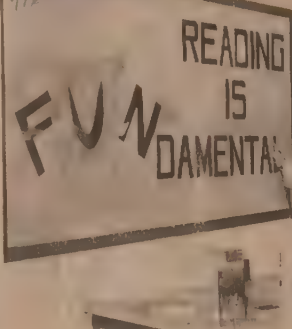

The Tongue Point Job Corps center is spared for the time being at least from the Nixon administration's new economy drive, but two other Job Corps centers in Oregon are doomed in the $100 million savings.

As a result, Oregon is to lose two of its few federal establishments at one time, a record. Like the Job Corps center in Astoria, these centers are being wiped out by two Republican senators, doesn't object to this Oregon Job Corps center being wiped out, there is no great reason to expect it to oppose just one getting the ax.

Although the Job Corps program has been slashed as costly as a penny, the Nixon administration has maintained a number of conservation centers. They have been attacked for not turning out graduates trained in practical, job-getting skills.

No assurance of long life has been given the Tongue Point Job Corps center. Since the Nixon administration has need another $100 million saving any time, the local Job Corps may go any time. If the Oregon congressional delegation, headed by two Republican senators, doesn't object to this Oregon Job Corps center being wiped out, there is no great reason to expect it to oppose just one getting the ax.

The center can be saved only by congress providing funds. The president has no power to wipe out the Job Corps legislation, but he has announced that he is asking no funds for 53 of them. The savings are to be expended in Vietnam improvements.

Library Decorated

The library at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center takes on a new look for the celebration of National Library Week. Instructional media specialist Mrs. Geri Johnson, and the library staff are busy making the library into a place where students can find books and other materials. Librarian Paul Haas, among others, are making use of the 9000-volume facility.

Law Editorials Earn Awards for 2 Girls

Betty Jean Justus, Astoria high senior, won fourth prize in the statewide Oregon Bar contest for editorials on the subject "Justice and Equality Depend Upon Law—and You!" Sherry Ann O'Neil of Tongue Point Job Corps Center won a special recognition award. Here are their editorials:

By BETTY JEAN JUSTUS
In America today we claim to strive for justice and equality for all—whether black or white, male or female, adult or child.

Long ago the theory of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" was outlawed. Maintaining justice unbiased depends upon the law, for an individual is self-centered and concerned with only how the results will affect him.

Laws are useless if citizens ignore them and go by their own rules. One cannot choose the rules he likes and overlook those rules restraining his bad habits.

Knowledgeable people study our legal system, pointing out faults for revision. We the people of the United States are entirely responsible for making the laws. If we object to a law part of the solution you're part of the problem. The law is not a punishment for crime; it is a guide for living.

Each of us in our own small way have an important responsibility to uphold the law. If we put this responsibility, we will have greater equality and justice.

Our laws do not restrain freedom. They protect it. Throughout American history men have given their lives for the cause of liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It would be a drastic mistake if we took our laws for granted. Laws represent the people. They must work together for each is ineffective without the other. The patriotic devotion and obedience to our laws has made America the unified, free nation it is today.

Everyone has the right for justice and equality, however, it's not only the government's job to maintain them. Each individual is responsible for justice and equality depend upon the law—and you!

By SHERRY ANN O'NEIL
Encouraging "equal justice under the law" affects the lives of the main concerns of our country. Too many people believe that the problems of stem from injustices and inequality should be solved by the police department and other government officials. Yet, every citizen should become dedicated in fighting injustices and should be actively involved in helping enforce and improve our laws. We should become aware of our responsibility to society as well as to ourselves. If we can see, the key word is involvement. In order to get something done, you would like it, you, yourself must get involved. If you don't, you will have to accept the laws made by others.

There are many ways that you can help insure justice and equality. One of the ways is by becoming involved in programs like VISTA, Peace Corps and Teachers Corps where main concern is trying to give every one an equal chance in life.

The most important law to help is by voting. It is only when the people are allowed to vote, in failing to vote, we neglect our responsibility as citizens and will only encourage the government to take over. There is a VISTA program that sums up everything. "You're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem. The law is not a punishment for crime; it is a guide for living."

Our laws do not restrain freedom. They protect it. Throughout American history men have given their lives for the cause of liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It would be a drastic mistake if we took our laws for granted. Laws represent the people. They must work together for each is ineffective without the other. The patriotic devotion and obedience to our laws has made America the unified, free nation it is today.

Everyone has the right for justice and equality, however, it's not only the government's job to maintain them. Each individual is responsible for justice and equality depend upon the law—and you!

By SHERRY ANN O'NEIL
Encouraging "equal justice under the law" affects the lives of the main concerns of our country. Too many people believe that the problems of

Reshuffle In The Job Corps

When campaigning for the presidency, Richard Nixon said the Job Corps was a costly failure. Independently, Oregon's Rep. Edith Green had criticized the high per-person cost of training high school dropouts in centers thousands of miles from their homes.

In planning to reshape the Job Corps program, the Nixon administration has not judged the Corps to be a total failure. Rather, it seems to believe that more can be done for less money by reducing the number of rural conservation centers and concentrating on job training in new urban centers.

In the forthcoming closure of 39 of the Corps' 113 centers, Oregon will lose two of its five conservation camps, those in Malheur and Tillamook counties. The others, in Josephine, Lincoln and Clackamas counties, will be continued. The women's Job Corps center at Tongue Point, in Clatsop County, also will be retained.

To replace them, the Labor Department will establish 27 inner-city training centers to serve the needs of underprivileged youngsters who live in the cities where the centers are located. Portland is expected to be the site of one of these. It will serve Portland area dropouts. Most of those in the Oregon conservation camps are from Eastern and Southern states.

In reply to critics, Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz has said that the saving of $100 million is not the primary goal of the change but that the "new centers will be more effective and less costly."

He said the new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly.

very successful in finding employment for its graduates. On the other hand, there have been some dramatic and heartwarming success stories, including that of George Foreman, the 29-year-old Negro, who spent a year in the Job Corps camp in Josephine County and was graduated from the Urban Parks Job Corps center in California before winning the Olympic gold medal in heavyweight boxing in Mexico City last year. Among the pluses in the rural conservation camps have been successful tests in race relations in formerly all-white communities. Job Corps trainees in some instances have pitched in willingly to help meet community emergencies. While some white citizens were reluctant to see the camps established in the first place, now the communities where they are located want to have them continued.

The cost of the present program admittedly is high on a per-person basis. But wherever it has diverted a youngster from a life of crime, it is a bargain. The Nixon administration has yet to prove that the new emphasis will mean a more effective program. Putting the trainees for a time in the cities where the centers are located has certain advantages which an urban center will not be able to match.

Above all, care must be taken that trainees presently in the camps slated for closure are not simply cut off. They must somehow be accommodated. The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly.

The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly.

The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly.

The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly. The new centers will be more effective and less costly.

EDWARD BLODGETT

Blodgett Named To Tongue Point Security Post

Appointment of Edward R. Blodgett as assistant director of safety and security at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center was made recently by the Dorothy Burns, center director.

Blodgett originally employed at Tongue Point as a supervisor in the safety and security department, came to Tongue Point from Clatsop, Ore., with a broad background in law enforcement and experience at private business. For approximately 15 years, he served with the Bureau of Investigation, Office of the District Attorney for the County of Los Angeles. During this time he was a investigator in charge of the Long Beach regional office and was detailed in charge of the South Bay regional office. Blodgett is now a senior in a staff position with Troop A in Balboa, N.Y. He also served for a brief period with the New York State Police in Patterson, California.

He graduated from Los Angeles Pacific college with an Associate in Arts Degree and has since done graduate college work in police science at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles State College and others. He received special training while serving in the U.S. Army and graduated from the New York State Police School in Troy, N.Y.

Blodgett and his wife Thelma are living in Navy housing with their daughter and three sons.

The Community Relations Council, a group of Astoria-area persons and Job Corps officials, heard this week about an exchange of views between young women of Tongue Point and Astoria High School, a program put on in the summer of 1968 at Astoria grade school and other Job Corps community activities.

Tongue Point officials announced a few months ago results of a mail poll that showed the center had a high opinion about the Job Corps, Tongue Point

Gulf Being Bridged

Effects to promote familiarity between the Tongue Point Job Corps Center and townspeople seem to be paying off, and those responsible for getting the two groups together are commended.

The Community Relations Council, a group of Astoria-area persons and Job Corps officials, heard this week about an exchange of views between young women of Tongue Point and Astoria High School, a program put on in the summer of 1968 at Astoria grade school and other Job Corps community activities.

Tongue Point officials announced a few months ago results of a mail poll that showed the center had a high opinion about the Job Corps, Tongue Point

MAY 14 1969

Certificate Presented

Clatsop Neighborhood Youth Corps Supervisor Mrs. Elmo Bittle, center, presents certificate of achievement to Patrick Flynn, son of Richard F. Flynn, Astoria, for completing NYC employment and job training that led to his full-time employment in maintenance at the Tongue Point Center. Looking on is Mrs. Dan Moore, Astoria, new NYC supervisor as of the May 1 retirement of Mrs. Bittle.

Oregon Statesman
Salem, Oregon
(Cl. D. 34-922)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Graduate Says Experiences at Job Corps Help

ASTORIA (AP) — A young Eugene area girl said Monday that being in the mountains of the Tongue Point Job Corps center helped her to get over her nervousness and to get a job.

Brenda Baugardner said she was taken to a job where she arrived at the center and found the majority of the students were not white.

"It's different when you're the majority," she said, "and I said to myself that I would adjust and I did."

The Job Corps graduate was one of four who appeared before the University of Oregon Tongue Point advisors committee Monday to tell what the program did for them.

The university runs the center under contract with the federal Office of Economic Opportunity. Miss Baugardner, a graduate of a high school in Lane County, said she had no motivation after being high-achieving with a less than C average.

But, she said, she was highly motivated by staff members in business education.

The young woman, now enrolled at Portland State University, said in the Project Teach program where it designed for high school graduates who do not meet admission standards.

Miss Baugardner said she is using her Tongue Point experience in inter-racial cooperation in Project Teach in getting persons of different races to work together.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cl. D. 7577)

MAY 15 1969

Exchange Visits Set

Students of Warrenton High School and the Tongue Point Job Corps Center are carrying on an exchange. Warrenton students are doing a job at Tongue Point recently for a day or two. David Hollingsworth, a student at Warrenton High School, is one of the students who will visit Warrenton High on Thursday, May 29.

MAY 5 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Honored Woman Speaks Of VISTA

ASHLAND — Symbolic of the serenity that always surrounds the identity of the Women of the Year was the large centerpiece of yellow and white daisies on the speakers' table at Saturday's May Day Breakfast of the Ashland Branch, American Association of University Women.

The daisies did not tell the whole story, however. The chairman, Mrs. James Vandercip, did, after she had recounted achievements of the three finalists. Mrs. John Billings, Mrs. Will Dodge and Mrs. David Fortmiller. Because of previous commitments, connected with Mothers' Weekend celebration and her responsibilities as an officer of the Oregon State University Mothers' Club, Mrs. Billings was unable to be present.

When the announcement was made that Mrs. Dodge had been named 1969 AAUW Woman of the Year the audience rose in a spontaneous ovation.

On the past year of unselfish service as a VISTA volunteer, working with disadvantaged men and boys at the Wolf Creek Glue Job Training Corps in Oregon.

An engraved silver tray was presented to Mrs. Dodge, and smaller silver trays were given to Mrs. Fortmiller and Mrs. Billings.

First President "This past year of opportunity has already been enough," said Mrs. Dodge in response. "And I feel very humble indeed to have received this recognition, especially from the group with which I have had long and happy association."

She served as the first president of the Ashland Branch, AAUW, from 1965-67.

Also a highlight of the program was presentation of a fellowship grant certificate to Mrs. Eliza N. Stevenson by the president, Mrs. David Deller. The announcement of the $500 gift in Mrs. Stevenson's honor was made at the state convention April 26 in Corvallis.

Mrs. Deller conducted a short business meeting following the breakfast which was served in the Oak Knoll Country Club dining room to more than 50 members and guests. Committee chairmen gave reports and several announcements were made including cancellation of the house tour May 11. Plans for the summer pre-school session were given by Mrs. Forrest Leiber.

Two Southern Oregon College students, Miss Signe Lusk, Medicine Hat, and Miss Teresa Madson, Medford, volunteered the First Movement of Beethoven's "Spring Sonata."

Speaking of her year's work, Mrs. Dodge related experiences and impressions which have challenged and changed many of her previous theories.

After being accepted for the VISTA program in March, 1968 she underwent a six-week training period, five days of which were spent in a home of the most abject destitution. Out of a class of 49 trainees, only 27 completed the course. At Wolf Creek, her assignment for a year, she became a teacher of the most elementary, reading and writing. Her pupils were men, mostly Negroes from the south, many of whom could not write their own names. Most had never been five miles from home and almost all spoke a language of their own scarcely understandable by the average white person.

"I threw away my past ideas and theories," declared the Ashland teacher as she told of the work in a classroom of adult men in a classroom of adult men.

Whites No Better Concerned as she was, the seemingly insurmountable barrier of trying to make the men employable, she was even more disquieted when a group of young white drop-outs came to the Center from public schools in Washington and Oregon with no better basic education. "I gave her basic education," she said.

Wish I might know what the future holds for these men. Some will return to be an influence for good. I am sure Others may go to the cities and become a part of the racial violence. One man with hatred eventually changed his entire attitude before leaving. There were frequent outbreaks but at no time was I personally afraid. I sensed a respect among the men and tried to merit it.

Writing letters home (for the men), sewing on buttons, attending dances when several hundred girls were bused to Wolf Creek from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, but a few of the 24-hour a day duties which made up the year of work and adventure.

Problems Solved "Through a combination of physical training in simple skills and basic elementary education it is hoped that such men may become employable."

Mrs. Dodge pointed out, adding, "But many are so mentally handicapped by background that it will be impossible for them to go far. Indeed we see serious problems," she concluded.

Following Mrs. Dodge's talk, new officers were installed by Mrs. Richard Neill, immediate past president. Taking the office of president for the second year was Mrs. Deller, others in the past year were Mrs. Kenneth Darling, first vice president, Mrs. Edmund Butler, second vice president, Mrs. Richard Copple, secretary, and Mrs. Gary Wall, treasurer.

Mrs. Deller thanked her entire staff of officers and chairmen for the year's successful program and announced appointments for 1969-70. In turn she was applauded for having

Los Angeles, Calif. Southeast Wave Star (Cl. W. 22-16 feet)

MAY 29 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Resident completes Job Corps training

Francis Stubbs, 21, Job Corps trainee and resident at 1810 E. 10th Street, has been graduated from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center at Astoria, Oregon, after completing training in business and clerical occupations.

Stubbs has been a trainee at the center since June, 1968.

Signal Seaside, Oregon (Cl. W. 2-610)

JUN 12 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Cameron in new post at Job Corps center

James C. Cameron, 881 S. Columbia, has been appointed coordinator of community services for the Tongue Point Job Corps center. He had been the work experience supervisor at the center since January.

In announcing his selection Dr. Dorothy Burns, center director, said, "We are very pleased to obtain the services of Mr. Cameron in community services."

Mr. Cameron is well known in the area for his outstanding work in drama productions, and we feel he will make equally valuable contributions in public relations for Tongue Point.

As coordinator of community services, Cameron will be responsible for public information, internal communications, corpsmen-community relations and community services. His appointment takes effect immediately. In this expanded position, he succeeds the late Lynn Wyckoff who handled the public information chores for the center.

Immediately before coming to Tongue Point Cameron was executive director of the Lewis and Clark Festival association and summer theatre. He will resume the director's chair associatively this summer to guide the cast of the theatre's production of "Torchbearers."

Born in Pennsylvania in 1921, the coordinator of community services stopped off in California to receive his bachelor of arts degree in speech and drama at the University of California at Berkeley before arriving in Portland in 1949.

Cameron served as executive director of the Portland Civic Theatre from 1962 to January 1967, producing 18 plays and 10 musicals. Before stepping into that role, he gained a great deal of theatrical experience directing, stage managing or acting in productions from California to New Hampshire. He is married and has two children.

Portland, Oregon The Oregonian (Cl. D. 248-165)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Bids on Sewage Treatment Plant Equipment Called

Bids are being called for installation of equipment at the sewage treatment at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

The federal government is calling for installation of a trickling filter, 32 feet in diameter; trickling filter pumps and filter recirculation pumps in existing clarifiers.

The bids are to be received by the Oregon State Board of Higher Education at the office of the Tongue Point Job Corps administrator, Administration Building, Tongue Point, by 2 p.m. Tuesday, June 24.

Signal Seaside, Oregon (Cl. W. 2-610)

MAY 8 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Raise Money for Retarded

Two Tongue Point corpswomen, Pat Wilson, left, and Dolores Cryder baked cakes and cookies to help raise money for work with retarded children. Baking was done with assistance from Adelaine Sather, a member of the Tongue Point Community Relations Council. Both volunteers attend Clatsop Community College and are financed by the Tongue Point student government.

St. Margaret's guild of Calvary Episcopal church was hostess for the Northern Deanery meeting of Episcopal Church Women Monday. Women came from Portland, Beaverton, Hillsboro, Astoria and Clatskanie. Holy Communion was celebrated at 10:30 a.m. followed by a luncheon in the parish hall. St. Audrey Kopp, former president of the Tongue Point Job Corps who is now engaged in youth work with the Chicago Bannage, wife of the Rev. Bannage, pastor of the church; St. Audrey; Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, president, Episcopal Church Women Diocese of Oregon; Mrs. Gilbert Lorenzini; Mrs. Williamson, treasurer ECW of Northern Deanery.

Portland, Oregon The Oregonian (Cl. D. 248-165)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Road Clean-Up Due

ASTORIA (AP) — Clatsop Community College students and Job Corps women from 1968-69 will meet Monday for a day in a 50-mile road clean-up project.

The project is a joint effort of the Clatsop Community College and the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The project will collect trash along the coast from Clatsop County to Tillamook County.

Portland, Oregon The Oregonian (Cl. D. 248-165)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

MAY 28 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

ALVIN DAHLEN

Dahlen Named Recreation Chief At Tongue Point

Alvin C. Dahlen was recently appointed supervisor of recreation and physical education at the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center. It was announced by Dr. Dorothy Burns, center director.

Dahlen joined the staff at Tongue Point in September 1967, as an instructor in the recreation and physical education department. During this period he has twice served as acting supervisor of this department.

Prior to coming to Astoria, Dahlen was director of recreation for the city of Eugene for nine years from 1951-68. He was self-employed as a store owner until 1967. A 1951 graduate of the University of Oregon, Dahlen majored in health, physical education and recreation. He received his master's degree from the university in 1968.

Portland, Oregon The Oregonian (Cl. D. 248-165)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

JUN 12 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Two Promoted, Health Services Official Hired

Two new health services officials have been promoted at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, which is coordinated with the center's extension training and placement.

The new associate director of health services is Dr. Veldon Buge. Promoted were June Key and Jacquette Spaulding.

A new supervisor of health services has been placed in the city of Astoria, Oregon, and in the city of Medford, Oregon. Dr. Buge's job becomes effective on a full-time basis July 1. He is currently at the center, and is responsible for the health services of the center and the city of Astoria, Oregon, and the city of Medford, Oregon.

Los Angeles, Calif.
Southwest Wave
(Cir. W. 34,493)

12 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job corps center graduates local girl

Jo Ann Spahn, daughter of Mrs. Gavina Melendez, 974 West Fifth Street, Astoria, has been graduated from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, completing a course in business and clerical occupations.

A trainee at the center, Astoria, Oregon, since December, 1968, Miss Spahn has been enrolled in the program operated by the director of Oregon under contract with the federal office of Economic Opportunity, with full-time supervision of the center's director.

Capitol Journal
Salem, Oregon
(Cir. D 74,296)

12 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Field Narrowed in Search For New Antipoverty Head

By WILLIAM BEBOUT
Capital Journal Reporter

The field of candidates for director of the Salem area and poverty office has been narrowed to three men, including acting director, Chad McClelland.

McClelland received top ranking from a screening committee headed by Dr. Peter Batten, Marion County health officer.

Portland, Oregon
The Oregonian
(Cir. D 24,169)

JUN 13 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Dedication Due Youth Facility

Dedication of Youth Progress Association's new health center at 1214 E. 1st St. will be Sunday at 1 p.m.

Edmund Jordan, presiding judge of Municipal Court, will be one of the speakers, according to Ken Smith, YPA director.

Kiwanis Club members will present YPA board members a check for the organization's work with youth.

Last year, YPA helped more than 1,000 young men and women, most from MacLaren School for Boys and Hillcrest School for Girls, according to Smith.

Joint Operation Of Centers Urged

ASTORIA (AP) — The director of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center says a skill center planned for Portland should operate jointly with the Tongue Point center.

Dorothy Burns, the Tongue Point director, said girls from her center could live at the Portland center while doing their extension work.

She said the Tongue Point center and the University of Oregon would ask the U.S. Department of Labor to fund such a joint operation.

The department said in May a Portland center would have an enrollment of 300 boys and girls.

Eugene, Oregon
Register-Guard
(Cir. D. 50, 977)

JUN 19 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Point Joint Operation Is Urged

ASTORIA (AP) — The director of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center said Tuesday a skill center planned for Portland should operate jointly with the Tongue Point center.

Dorothy Burns, the Tongue Point director, said girls from her center could live at the Portland center while doing their extension work.

She said the Tongue Point center and the University of Oregon would ask the U.S. Department of Labor to fund such a joint operation.

The department said in May a Portland center would have an enrollment of 300 boys and girls.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D 7377)

JUN 17 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Corpswomen Visit Warrenton High

Last Thursday, a group of corpswomen from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center visited at Warrenton High School. These are the same group of girls who were hosts to members of Mrs. Ross's English class a short time ago when the class visited Tongue Point.

The same students paired off, and the visitors spent the day going to classes with the host students. They attended the Awards Assembly, had lunch and visited with all the WJHS students.

There was a definite air of friendliness noted, both by the corpswomen as well as toward them. The host students spent time explaining their studies to the corpswomen, who seemed to learn about the courses being taught at the center. All concerned felt that this exchange of visits by the two groups of students was a very successful and worthwhile undertaking.

Oregon Statesman
Salem, Oregon
(Cir. D 34,977)

JUN 1 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Three Remain In Running for CAC Position

Three finalists for the job of director of the Marion - Polk Community Action Council have been announced and one of them will take over the job Thursday night's meeting of the council.

Chad McClelland, who has been acting director since the resignation of Charles Fredrickson on April 30, received top rating by a screening committee that sorted through more than 70 applicants for the job.

Medford, Oregon
Mail Tribune
(Cir. D 22,164)

JUN 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Award Announced At Center

ASTORIA — Gloria Holmes, a niece of Arthur Holmes of 1331 Stevens Street, Medford, was selected as winner of the 'woman of the month' award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for Women.

The award, which includes a $500 cash prize, was presented by the center director and a merchandise certificate, is based on excellence in attendance, class performance, leadership, and general contribution to the center.

About 70 young women between the ages of 16 and 22 are enrolled at the Tongue Point center, which is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Training is offered by Public Force Corporation as subcontractor. Remedial education and vocational training in office and clerical occupations, food services, health occupations, drawing and electronics assembly are offered to enrollees.

Max Holmes is enrolled in the Health Occupations course and has been at Tongue Point since February, 1969.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D 7377)

JUN 3 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Art Exhibit - Exhibiting at the Flag Room of the Astor Library

This week and next is the art exhibit of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The exhibit, which is being displayed in the glass cases at the Flag Room of the Astor Library, features a variety of pottery, including a ceramic punch bowl.

JUN 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

William Brown Leaving Tongue Point, New Post

William Brown, director of safety and security at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has resigned that post to take a position as director of community programs with the Portland Metropolitan Steering Committee. His wife, Juanita, also tendered her resignation as residence adviser for the Extension Training House at the center. She has accepted a position with the Portland School District.

In accepting the couple's resignation, Dr. Dorothy Burns, Tongue Point Center Director, said William and Juanita Brown have been tremendous assets to the functioning of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center for three years. All of us at the center are very pleased at the wonderful opportunities afforded them in their new positions in Portland, but we shall miss them very much when they leave. Both will be very difficult to replace.

William Brown

appointed to his present post in February, 1968.

In his new office as director of community programs for the three-year-old, six million dollar Portland Metropolitan Steering Committee, he will be in charge of the office of the education, curriculum, child care coordinator, community services coordinator, health and housing, and neighborhood organization specialist. The aim of the federally funded service is, in Brown's words, "to provide public assistance programs to help

Portland, Oregon
The Oregonian
(Cir. D. 248,145)

JUN 2 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Committee Urges Unity In Helping 'Have-nots'

By STAN FEDERMAN

Portland Metropolitan Steering Committee members Monday night urged the Model Cities Citizens Planning Board to join them in a united effort to help the area's 'have-nots' — rather than continue rivalries over federal programming.

"It's incredible that our two groups can maintain a close relationship with one another," declared Gordon Gilbertson, PMSC board member and administrator for the Multnomah County Welfare Commission.

The Rev. Paul E. Waldschmidt, PMSC chairman, said his group does not consider itself a rival of the Model City program.

"We'll be more than happy to give them any program they want. We're interested only in aiding our area's poor, not in taking charge of programs."

The comments came after PMSC director Cleveland Gilchrist gave a report on the work of a recent joint Model City — Office of Economic Opportunity — Training and Technical Assistance project.

The $20,000 program was headed by the Model Cities board in a controversial action which resulted in the re-

Medford, Oregon
Mail Tribune
(Cir. D 22,164)

JUN 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Award Announced At Center

ASTORIA — Gloria Holmes, a niece of Arthur Holmes of 1331 Stevens Street, Medford, was selected as winner of the 'woman of the month' award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for Women.

The award, which includes a $500 cash prize, was presented by the center director and a merchandise certificate, is based on excellence in attendance, class performance, leadership, and general contribution to the center.

About 70 young women between the ages of 16 and 22 are enrolled at the Tongue Point center, which is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Training is offered by Public Force Corporation as subcontractor. Remedial education and vocational training in office and clerical occupations, food services, health occupations, drawing and electronics assembly are offered to enrollees.

Max Holmes is enrolled in the Health Occupations course and has been at Tongue Point since February, 1969.

Medford, Oregon
Mail Tribune
(Cir. D 22,164)

JUN 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Award Announced At Center

ASTORIA — Gloria Holmes, a niece of Arthur Holmes of 1331 Stevens Street, Medford, was selected as winner of the 'woman of the month' award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for Women.

The award, which includes a $500 cash prize, was presented by the center director and a merchandise certificate, is based on excellence in attendance, class performance, leadership, and general contribution to the center.

About 70 young women between the ages of 16 and 22 are enrolled at the Tongue Point center, which is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Training is offered by Public Force Corporation as subcontractor. Remedial education and vocational training in office and clerical occupations, food services, health occupations, drawing and electronics assembly are offered to enrollees.

Max Holmes is enrolled in the Health Occupations course and has been at Tongue Point since February, 1969.

JUN 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

CLAY MYERS

Tongue Pt. Bills Myers

Oregon Secretary of State Clay Myers will be the speaker at the June 17 commencement exercises of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The Oregon Republican's selection was announced today by Dr. Dorothy Burns, the center's director.

This will be the Secretary's second trip to the Astoria training center. Last year he visited Tongue Point for discussions with staff and corpswomen about its operations.

Myers moved into his present statewide prominence through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

The secretary has been active in Oregon Republican politics and has been both a delegate and an alternate at the 1968 Republican National Convention. His first statewide office was as the State Welfare Board, an appointment made by then Governor Hatfield.

Born in Portland, Myers attended the Benson Polytechnical Institute and received a B.S. degree from the University of Oregon in 1949. His position as Oregon Secretary of State requires him to be auditor of public accounts, chief election officer, and custodian of the state capital, including building grounds.

Myers is the brother of Norman Myers of the Tongue Point center. His position as Oregon Secretary of State is married and has three children.

Signal
Sedalia, Oregon

JUN 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Myers to speak at Jop Corps commencement

Oregon Secretary of State Clay Myers will be the speaker at the June 27 commencement exercises of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The Oregon Republican's selection was announced by Dr. Dorothy Burns, the center's director.

This will be Myers' second trip to the Astoria training center. Last year he visited Tongue Point for discussions with staff and corpswomen about its operation.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

Myers moved into his present position through appointments as Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State under Governor Tom McCall. He was elected to the latter post in 1968 for a term which expires in 1973.

JUL 17 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Point Day at UO

Corpswomen Demonstrate Acquired Skills

A local girl, Brenda Baumgardner, came back to Eugene Thursday to help show off the achievements of her alma mater—the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center. Exhibits designed to tell the Job Corps story, from the point of view of the corpswomen, were shown at the University of Oregon.

Brenda, who will begin her sophomore year at Portland State University in the fall, is working this summer as a residence advisor at the center in Astoria. She is the daughter of Mrs. William Baumgardner of Clatskanie.

"I wanted to put something back into the Job Corps because I got so much out of it," she said. "I wouldn't be where I am now if it weren't for the Job Corps."

Under the Project Teach Program at PSU, which provides loans, grants or work study programs and tutorial help to students, Brenda is preparing to become a teacher of educable retarded children.

Brenda's summer job at the center brought her back home for Tongue Point Day, held in the Erb Memorial Union ballroom. Visitors were invited to take a tour which simulated the life of a corpswoman from application to enter a center to graduation.

Exhibits included a mock-up of a residence room, demonstrations of vocational education areas such as drafting, business and clerical, and food services plus displays of basic education courses including reading, social studies and mathematics. The girls sang, danced and presented a play which they wrote and produced.

But the Job Corps women best told the story of their center by their own enthusiasm for the program. Their stories were remarkably alike. Drop-outs from high school and faced with finding a job when they had no marketable skills, they joined the Job Corps "because it was the only place we could learn to do something."

Brenda Baumgardner

Said Beatrice Walston, from Baltimore, Md., "I cried night and day when I joined and signed papers to quit the Corps over and over again. I wanted to go home. But you still have nothing more than you did when you were home."

"So I stayed, and I'm glad I did. I feel at home now and we're like sisters here. I want to make something out of my life," she said.

You have to feel that way to get anything out of the Corps, according to Carol Hayes, from Ponchartroula, La., who heads the student government at the center. "You can learn a lot here if you really want to do something," she said.

Carol will leave the center in November with the business and clerical skills she needs to get and keep a job—if the staff doesn't convince her to go on to college. "She's sharp," said one staff member. "We're working on her to go on to school."

For the girls who want to go to work, the center introduces them to the world of jobs slowly. The corps places them in on-the-job training situations in cities like Portland and San Francisco, where they live with families or at a YWCA. Then the girls go back to the center for a few more weeks.

When they leave the center for good, they know what they're getting into and they have the skills to survive, said one staff member.

And, says Brenda Baumgardner, they've learned "how to live with people."

"I learned not to look at people on a color basis. I was scared when I first came. I had been part of a majority and then I was the minority. (Twenty-six per cent of the Tongue Point girls are Caucasian.)"

"You learn to be yourself because the girls at Tongue Point can accept you for yourself and many people outside cannot," she added.

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Judy Denslow, Wisconsin, Studies Drafting

Portland, Oregon
The Oregonian
Cir. D 243,165

Spirits Are High On The Beach

Spirits are high at the coast. Wild flowers bloom, meadowlarks sing, blackberries are ripe. It's a marvelous year for blackberries.

Enjoying a great salmon bake on Gearhart's beach Monday evening were Lydie and Jenks Middleton of Washington D.C. who arrived west with their two young daughters, Muffin and Jennifer, earlier this month. They are presently in the local D.C. school.

Their houseguests Monday night, and parents of two salmon, were nephews Hugh and Hans D. and their sister Mona, and assorted friends of the Dicks. Friday the Middletons will go to Seattle, then spend a week with Lydie's mother, Mrs. Spencer Biddle, at her Vancouver, Wash. home.

Monday afternoon also saw a group of friends and family at last bidding Bon Voyage to the Trimarans' and until then a series of problems delayed the "Piscos" and "Fun & Games" Trimarans from departing the Port of Astoria docks.

The two vessels, captained by Jack Latourrette and Bob Miles, with about 18 young crew members, are headed for San Francisco before going on to Honolulu.

Bystanders were fervent in their well wishes. It would appear that the shakedown cruise along the coast will be an important part of their training. You could not call the "Piscos" veterans.

Arranging themselves along the rocks of the channel to wave a final farewell to their relative Jack, and Jeff Miller, Carol Wells, Petite and Roland Hagyard and Jeff Miller. Carol Wells, Petite and Roland Hagyard, who arranged that Graham Barbey make a gift to the sailors of his packing company's canned tuna. This will keep them going until they can crack out their tuna fishing gear.

Coming up July 22-26 is the 38th annual Oregon Coast week-long tournament at the Astoria Golf Club. Because the new clubhouse won't be finished until sometime in October, the "Get Acquainted" cocktail hour Sunday will be held at the Gearhart Motor Inn.

Other social events surrounding the tournament will be held also at Gearhart, either at the Sirmarans' or Windhammer. Hospitality chairman include Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan, Mr. and Mrs. William Dagatt and Mr. and Mrs. William VanDusen.

A long list of co-chairmen are helping the three couples, including third-line chairman of the tournament, Brig. Gen. (Ret.) J. Wilson Johnston.

And at the Gearhart Motor Inn Convention Center, the Lewis and Clark Civic Theater's production of the "Torch Bearer" will open Friday for a three-night run. Director Tim Cameron, now PR man for the Tongue Point Job Corps, found it difficult to round up taxpayers, civic leaders and businessmen to support the show's run will be former Portlander Byron Adams, who moved to Cannon Beach with his wife Frances last September.

When Jim Barker retired from 42 years of logging in 1964, he took up painting and writing poems. So as president of the Trails End Art Center in Gearhart, it is not surprising to learn that the club will have poetry readings for them. Wearing one during the show's run will be former Portlander Byron Adams, who moved to Cannon Beach with his wife Frances last September.

Yours, MARYETTA

Longview, Wash.
Daily News
(Cir. D 22,165)

8 1069

Allen's P.C.B. Associated Press and In The Northwest 7.76

PLANE WRECKAGE was found in Young's Bay near Astoria early today and the body of the pilot, presumed to have died in the crash, is being sought.

T. Price, Bremerton, restaurant owner and a supervisor in the Tongue Point Job Corps food service department, said the Coast Guard had spotted a man clinging to a seat cushion shortly after dawn Thursday when it was the time his boat pulled alongside on the cushion was a relative of Price's. Searchers had located some debris believed to be from the plane, but were awaiting a low tide expected at 6 a.m. this morning in hopes of finding the body.

Price was a supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria. He owned a Dairy Queen restaurant in Bremerton

Price was a supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria. He owned a Dairy Queen restaurant in Bremerton

Price was a supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria. He owned a Dairy Queen restaurant in Bremerton

Price was a supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria. He owned a Dairy Queen restaurant in Bremerton

Price was a supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria. He owned a Dairy Queen restaurant in Bremerton

Price was a supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria. He owned a Dairy Queen restaurant in Bremerton

Price was a supervisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria. He owned a Dairy Queen restaurant in Bremerton

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 1577

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Eugene Girl Leads T.P. Folk in Program There

Brenda Baumgardner returned to Eugene Thursday. That was not any thing special in and of itself. Most girls return in their home town at one time or other. But Brenda Baumgardner returned to Eugene at the head of a parade of staff and corpswomen who presented Tongue Point Day at the University of Oregon on Thursday. She is a residence advisor to the corpswomen. Had she gone home two years ago she would have been one of the corpswomen herself.

Assuming that a high school diploma meant a good job, Brenda threw herself on the labor market the day after graduation. She didn't exactly land feet first. After a period of working in a molding plant and as a housekeeper, she decided "This is not what I want."

At the same time that this realization was sinking into Brenda's thoughts, the Eugene Register-Guard published an article on the Job Corps program here at Tongue Point. Brenda applied and soon joined the Astoria community of girls seeking their "place in the sun."

Not one to let events slide past her, Brenda Baumgardner took an active part in guiding the life of the Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center. While there, she received certificates in business and clerical and electronics assembly, ran a special honor floor in her dorm, served on student government and was an RA aide.

She was also selected Corpswoman of the Month.

She also decided she wanted to go to college and got her certificate accepted into the Project Teach program at Portland State University. Project Teach assures its members of loans, grants or work study programs and tutorial help to help them complete their education.

Now entering her sophomore year, Brenda Baumgardner has returned to Tongue Point as Miss Baumgardner, advisor to the girls in residence one. (For the summer), the same residence she herself lived in when she was a student at the center. She is back at her old stomping grounds this summer because "I wanted to put something back into the Job Corps because I got so much out of it. I wouldn't be where I am now if it weren't for the Job Corps."

Path Cleared

She is now on her way to becoming a teacher-to-educable retarded children, and toward the fulfillment of "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Also, she has, she feels, been partially cleared by her Tongue Point experience. At the Astoria center, she learned "how to live with people. This is the most important thing. I learned not to look at people on a color basis. I was scared when I first came. I had been part of a majority and then I was the minority. But you learn to be yourself because the girls at Tongue Point can accept you for yourself and many people outside cannot," she added.

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Now Brenda is on her way toward fulfilling "a dream I never really expected to accomplish. All through high school I used to read books on retarded kids. I thought that teaching them was where I belonged, but I never thought I'd get there. Now I know I will."

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D 1577)

JUL 17 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

One Act Play To Feature UO's Tongue Pt. Day

"The Trouble With Johnny" is a new and unusual one-act play which will make its public debut as a feature play at the University of Oregon's Tongue Point Job Corps Day at Erb Memorial Union on Thursday, July 10. It is just one of a number of original productions being prepared by corpswomen to present a picture of life in the Job Corps from placement in a center to placement in a job.

The day, a joint effort by Tongue Point and its major contractor, the University of Oregon, will last from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m.

"The Trouble With Johnny" was initially scripted and acted as a project for a reading class conducted by Neil Hamar. Hamar became interested in the educational possibilities of drama and, when volunteer help came along in the visage of Mrs. Elinor Bell, he was able to divide his class into two groups to experiment with the educational aspects of drama and to measure these against those of normal classroom procedure.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

"The Trouble With Johnny" deals with the problems of a teen-age marriage. The story line developed from an improvisation in the classroom. The half-hour one-act was written in two weeks, allowing a two-week rehearsal schedule for its Thursday performance. The work will be presented hourly.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

The experimental class started out working with improvisations, rather than spontaneous acting out of suggested situations. The corpswomen became more confident and wanted to try their hand at a real play. They didn't find an existing one that met their special requirements, so they wrote their own.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 1577

JUL 17 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Point Has New Coordinator

Miss A. L. Jeannette Smith, formerly Dean of Women at Maryland State College, Princess Anne Md. has been appointed coordinator of counseling at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. Her appointment to this newly created position at the center is immediately effective.

As a part of her duties at Tongue Point, Miss Smith will be coordinating the efforts of counselors in the three agencies and will be conducting intensive training for residents, advisors.

A native of Newport News, Va., Miss Smith graduated from Virginia State College, Petersburg, with a B.A. in social work and received her M.S. in education from Indiana University, Bloomington. She is also staffed at the New York School of Social Work and at the Norfolk Division of the Virginia-Williams and Mary.

Los Angeles, Calif.
Southwest Topics Voice
(Cir. W 23,614)

JUL 17 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Resident receives hospital training

Carolee Lee Battles, 19, of Seaside, Calif., is receiving on-the-job training at the Veterans Administration hospital in Portland, Oregon, after completing a course in health occupations at the Tongue Point Job Corps center at Astoria.

At the conclusion of the present training period the corpswoman will return to Tongue Point for graduation and further training.

Since the Astoria base has been a women's training institution since its inception, the University of Oregon director, in charge of all residence living, is overseeing student affairs, recreation, counseling, orientation, testing, transportation transfer, and other matters.

Since the Astoria base has been a women's training institution since its inception, the University of Oregon director, in charge of all residence living, is overseeing student affairs, recreation, counseling, orientation, testing, transportation transfer, and other matters.

Since the Astoria base has been a women's training institution since its inception, the University of Oregon director, in charge of all residence living, is overseeing student affairs, recreation, counseling, orientation, testing, transportation trans-

Search for Body of Pilot Under Way in Youngs Bay

The body of Glynn T. Price, with Federal Aviation officials investigating the crash of the small plane that crashed in Youngs Bay Sunday night, are still missing. A Coast Guard vessel conducted dragging operations Monday afternoon for the missing man.

Price was returning from a fishing trip when the plane crashed. He was seen by a witness near the mouth of the Columbia River Sunday night. The plane was seen by a witness near the mouth of the Columbia River Sunday night.

Clatsop County Sheriff Carl Bonnett conferred all morning.

Bremerton, Wash.
Sun
Cir. D 7577

JUL 28 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Bremerton Businessman

Glynn Price Missing After Plane Crashes

GLYNN T. PRICE

Glynn T. Price, local businessman and a Job Corps supervisor in Astoria for the past 2½ years, was missing after his plane crashed in Youngs Bay near Astoria last night.

Price, 33, and his family were spending the weekend at their summer home on Hood Canal's North Shore.

He took off about 8:30 last night from Kitsap County Airport in his Piper Cherokee.

Don Christiansen, a passenger on a fishing boat in the bay, told the Coast Guard he saw the plane plunge into the water near Young's Bay Bridge at 8:40 p.m., and spotted a man clinging to a seat cushion shortly afterward. Christiansen said by the time his boat pulled alongside, only the cushion was on the surface.

The plane went into the water about a mile from the end of the runway at Clatsop County Airport, a Coast Guard spokesman in Astoria said.

The water was about five feet deep when the plane went in at low tide.

The plane was located and examined today. A Coast Guard spokesman said there was some indication that Price may have been able to get out of the wreckage.

A search was started immediately after the crash and was continuing this morning.

The Coast Guard was utilizing a helicopter from Astoria Coast Guard Station, the cutter USCGC Whitehouse and a 46-footer from Astoria Coast Guard base.

The 46-footer from Cape Disappointment Coast Guard Station at Ilwaco.

"The area around the crash, mudflats and shallows, is difficult to search by boat or from land. Air search is the best chance of finding him," the Coast Guard spokesman said.

"There is the possibility that he got out of the aircraft and made it to shore," he added.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Plane Wreckage Recovered

Daily Astorian Photos—Don Roberts

Craft Operated By Supervisor At Tongue Point

By KEN DONEY

Of the Daily Astorian

Glynn T. Price, 33, a supervisor of food services at Tongue Point, was the pilot of the small plane that crashed Sunday night in Youngs Bay.

Price, a naval aviator during World War II, was returning here from Belfair, Wash., when his plane crashed.

The plane was seen by a witness near the mouth of the Columbia River Sunday night.

Don Christiansen, operator of the pleasure craft Iron-E-Dee, spotted the plane go down. The Coast Guard station at Clatsop Airport then was notified that a man had been seen in the water clutching an object, but the witness said he lost sight of the man.

The Coast Guard cutter White Bush, after being in the center of the search, was dispatched to the area for the wreckage.

Some debris was picked up during the night but the main wreckage was not located until 6:21 a.m. when a helicopter from the Air Station spotted the wreckage.

Clatsop County Sheriff Carl Bonnett directed recovery operations this morning as the bulk of the wreckage plane was removed by barge to the Port Docks. The mangled aircraft was on dock by 10:30 and was to be trucked to the county shop.

Li Ron Potter, of the Air Station, said at noon today he was waiting to talk to Bonnett about the area in which to center dragging operations for the missing pilot.

Potter said dragging operations had been planned and would begin as soon as he had talked to Bonnett.

The Coast Guard reported visibility two miles at the time of the crash. An Astoria resident made an afternoon landing at Clatsop Airport about the same time as Price's plane went down.

Price filed to flight plan, which delayed Coast Guard officials from identifying the downed aircraft. He left Clatsop County Airport in Bremerton and landed in the normal flight time of one hour and 10 minutes, making out much possibility he had picked up any passengers along the way.

Price's son, Glynn Jr., 22, called the Kitsap County Sheriff's Office late Sunday night when he learned that a plane was down in this area. The report was given to the Piper Cherokee and said he was not alone in the plane.

Price's wife, son and daughter Nancy, 19, have been living at the family's summer home in Belfair for about two weeks. Price's supervisor at Tongue Point informed The Daily Astorian.

Howard Gentry, associate director for vocational education for Philco-Ford Corp., said Price made the trip to Belfair, Astoria and Bremerton quite often because he had business interests in the Bremerton area.

A representative from the National Transportation Safety Board, Federal Aviation Bureau, was to arrive in Astoria this afternoon to inspect the wreckage. Also expected to be here were representatives from the Federal Aviation Administration's district office in Portland.

At 8:30 a.m., a Coast Guard diver from Cape Disappointment went down in four to five feet of water to search the wreckage. Price was not inside. The cockpit was clean, as was a windshield and one seat missing. Coast Guard officials said Price's wallet and some papers were found in the water Sunday night.

State and county police units diverted traffic to the old Youngs Bay Bridge and kept the new bridge clear during Sunday night's search.

Bremerton, Wash.
Sun
Cir. D 7577

JUL 28 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Price Missing, Presumed Dead

Glynn T. Price, 33, local businessman and a Job Corps supervisor at Astoria, is listed as missing and presumed dead by the Coast Guard following unsuccessful efforts to locate him after a Sunday night plane crash near Astoria.

Price, who has been spending the weekend at his family's summer home on Hood Canal, was flying back to Astoria for work when his plane went into the shallow water of Youngs Bay at 8:40 p.m. Sunday night.

The plane was seen by a witness near the mouth of the Columbia River Sunday night.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

JUL 30 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Crew Resumes Dragging Work In Youngs Bay

The Clatsop County Sheriff's department resumed dragging operations in Youngs Bay this morning after Tuesday afternoon's search.

Price, supervisor of food services at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Ore., was reported missing after the crash of his small plane in Youngs Bay Sunday night.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

JUL 30 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Pilot Missing In Plane Crash

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP)—Plane wreckage was found Sunday night in Youngs Bay and the body of the pilot, presumed to have died in the crash, was sought.

The pilot was Glynn T. Price, 33, a supervisor of food services at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Ore., who was reported missing after the crash of his small plane in Youngs Bay Sunday night.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

JUL 31 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Price Memorial Services Scheduled For Wednesday

Memorial services have been scheduled for Wednesday evening for Glynn T. Price, the local businessman and Job Corps supervisor who was missing and presumed dead after his plane crashed in Youngs Bay Sunday night.

Price, 33, was a supervisor of food services at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Ore., who was reported missing after the crash of his small plane in Youngs Bay Sunday night.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

JUL 31 1959

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Hunt for Missing Man Called Off

The Clatsop County sheriff's office called off the search Thursday for 33-year-old Glynn T. Price Sr., who disappeared after his plane crashed in Youngs Bay Sunday night.

Price's wife, Elaine, and their children, Nancy, and Tal, 22, were at the Hood Canal residence awaiting word.

Price owns the Dairy Queen restaurant on Sixth Street in Bremerton and on Bay Street in Port Orchard.

He has been working for the Job Corps in Astoria for the past 2½ years and is technical services supervisor for Philco-Ford, the Job Corps contractor there.

He became a pilot in the 1950s and was a naval aviator during World War II. He was a lieutenant when he left the Navy after the war.</

Son of Former Tongue Pt. Job Corps Director Reported N. Viet Prisoner

CORVALLIS (AP) — Maj. Jack L. Van Loan, an Oregon State University student, is being held by the North Vietnamese.

Mrs. Van Loan and her three children are on vacation at her parents' home.

"There are so few words to describe how I felt when I received the phone call from my brother-in-law in Corvallis, Ore.," she said.

The first word that Van Loan was a prisoner was received by his parents Saturday at their home in Corvallis. The major's father is Wendell Van Loan, first president of Southwest Oregon Community College in North Bend.

James Van Loan, the major's brother, took the phone call from an information officer at Randolph Air Force Base in Texas. The brother said the officer did not say how often or whether it came from three recently released prisoners of the North Vietnamese.

"We hadn't heard a word from him since he was shot down," the father said.

Maj. Van Loan was downed on a mission May 28, 1968, and had been listed as missing in action.

The 37-year-old major joined the Air Force in 1964, became a pilot in December, 1967.

His 34-year-old wife, of Tucson, Ariz., said she never gave up hope although she received no information after he was shot down.

"I made a habit of writing to him once a week, care of him," she said.

But there was never any confirmation that he had received the letters," she said.

"I was so confident that he was alive that he told her children, Steven, 10, Glim, 8, and Douglas, 4, that he was a prisoner of war."

She met him when he was stationed near Edinburgh 12 years ago.

Mrs. Van Loan expects to return home at the end of the month after finishing a six-week visit with her parents.

"Not once during the past two years did I ever consider returning to Scotland to live."

On a mission May 28, 1968, and had been listed as missing in action.

The 37-year-old major joined the Air Force in 1964, became a pilot in December, 1967.

His 34-year-old wife, of Tucson, Ariz., said she never gave up hope although she received no information after he was shot down.

"I made a habit of writing to him once a week, care of him," she said.

But there was never any confirmation that he had received the letters," she said.

"I was so confident that he was alive that he told her children, Steven, 10, Glim, 8, and Douglas, 4, that he was a prisoner of war."

She met him when he was stationed near Edinburgh 12 years ago.

Mrs. Van Loan expects to return home at the end of the month after finishing a six-week visit with her parents.

"Not once during the past two years did I ever consider returning to Scotland to live."

On a mission May 28, 1968, and had been listed as missing in action.

The 37-year-old major joined the Air Force in 1964, became a pilot in December, 1967.

His 34-year-old wife, of Tucson, Ariz., said she never gave up hope although she received no information after he was shot down.

"I made a habit of writing to him once a week, care of him," she said.

But there was never any confirmation that he had received the letters," she said.

"I was so confident that he was alive that he told her children, Steven, 10, Glim, 8, and Douglas, 4, that he was a prisoner of war."

She met him when he was stationed near Edinburgh 12 years ago.

Mrs. Van Loan expects to return home at the end of the month after finishing a six-week visit with her parents.

"Not once during the past two years did I ever consider returning to Scotland to live."

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D 15737)

AUG 15 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Hires Reading Teacher

Frank S. Alexander, a Spanish-speaking curriculum writer at the Clinton Job Corps Center, Clinton, Iowa, has been hired as a reading instructor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, effective Monday.

A graduate of Utah State University, where he received his B.S. degree in political science, he received an M.A. in secondary education from Stanford University in 1966. He has been a Peace Corps volunteer in Colombia. There he worked in rural community development, organizing people to help themselves, building schools, roads and petitioning the government for promised services.

At the Clinton Center, Alexander served as an advisor to the nursing assistant program and then switched to curriculum writing. The 28-year-old amateur radio operator is unmarried.

Milpitan, Calif.
Post
(Cir. D 1491)
300 (144)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Milpitan carves a niche at job corps center

The music building at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center at Astoria, Oregon, is now readily recognizable, thanks to the efforts of Corvallis woman Cheryl Scott. Scott, as the 18-year-old Milpitan is known on base, has carved an eight-foot-high wooden sign with the name "music" on it in capital letters. Standing immediately in front of the building's doors, the standard is visible for distances of a block or more.

Scott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Scott of Con-way street.

For the five-month electronics student at the Astoria center, making the sign was a whim. Larry Pritchett, an art instructor at Tongue Point, spotted her wandering around in his area while she was between woodworking projects. "He asked if I wanted to do some thing," Scott said, "I said sure, and Scott intended to leave the Tongue Point Job Corps Center to enter a waiting job at an electronics plant near her Milpitan."

Tongue Point, which is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the Manpower Administration of the U.S. Department of Labor, is a vocational training as a sub-contractor, has a current enrollment of 750.

The music sign, made from the split side of a piece of timber, was two weeks in the carving. As Scott tells it, "The wood had apparently been left over from the time when Tongue Point was a men's center. The letter-

Students Sought For Clatsop Practice Teaching

EUGENE (AP) — College juniors or seniors who want practice teaching experience with disadvantaged youths are sought for a program sponsored jointly by the University of Oregon and the Clatsop County school system.

The university operates the Tongue Point Job Corps Center at Astoria and the Student Teachers would work there.

Those accepted will receive transportation and $107 a month while teaching. The field experience will be for either one quarter or one semester, corresponding to the division at the institution where the student is registered.

A grant of $30,000 from the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education will meet the costs of the program which will be in its second year.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D 15737)

AUG 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Will Enter Float in Regatta Parade

Tongue Point Job Corps Center, and staff members alike will be busy this week preparing a float to represent Tongue Point in the annual Astoria Regatta parade Aug. 23. Gusti Saxberg of the center's business and clerical department heads the committee. This will mark the first year Tongue Point has entered a float in the parade.

The theme of the Job Corps float, in keeping with the theme of the Regatta, is "Sailing to Success." It will feature the new Miss Tongue Point, Ruth Terrell, and her court, Moisie Gibbs, Eddie Mae Williams, Faye Louie and Onelia Moore, aboard a 12-foot motorboat. The float will be decked out in red, white and blue colors frequently associated with the center and its activities.

Paper flowers made by corpswomen under the direction of art department head Bill Welch and teacher Susan Phelps will decorate the boat. The boat will be perched on blue waves.

UO seeking student teachers to work with disadvantaged

Student teachers who are interested in working with disadvantaged youth are being sought to participate in a program sponsored jointly by the University of Oregon, Tongue Point Job Corps Center and the Clatsop County School System.

Both men and women are eligible to apply for either fall, winter, or spring term assignments with the Job Corps Center and the Clatsop Schools. Applicants may be from any Oregon institution of higher education which wishes to participate.

Those applying should be of junior or senior standing and should be committed to future public school work with the disadvantaged. Each person accepted will be paid travel expense and a stipend of $107 per month during the period in which he is student teaching.

The length of field experience will correspond to one academic quarter or semester of the institution in which the student is registered.

This will be the second year that the Job Corps Center and Clatsop schools have been used as a laboratory for student teaching credit. A $30,000 grant from the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education will meet the costs of the program which will be in its second year.

Coos Bay, Oregon
The World
(Cir. D 14804)

AUG 21 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Seeks Instructors

Student teachers who are interested in working with disadvantaged youth are being sought to participate in a program sponsored jointly by the University of Oregon, Tongue Point Job Corps Center and the Clatsop County School System.

Both men and women are eligible to apply for either fall, winter, or spring term assignments with the Job Corps Center and the Clatsop Schools. Applicants may be from any Oregon institution of higher education which wishes to participate.

Those applying should be of junior or senior standing and should be committed to future public school work with the disadvantaged. Each person accepted will be paid travel expense and a stipend of $107 per month during the period in which he is student teaching.

The length of field experience will correspond to one academic quarter or semester of the institution in which the student is registered.

This will be the second year that the Job Corps Center and Clatsop schools have been used as a laboratory for student teaching credit. A $30,000 grant from the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education will meet the costs of the program which will be in its second year.

Persons interested in the program should contact Kathy Hodson, secretary in the University of Oregon Curriculum and Instruction Department, 120 Education Building, Eugene, Ore. 97403.

Counselor Named At Tongue Point

William D. Dawson has been named to the position of counselor in Residence 1 at Tongue Point Job Corps Center. His office is located in the center's main building.

Dawson, a member of the Black Studies Organization, a Mexican American group, is an active member of the National Student Reliance, Inc., and is married and the father of two girls, Angela and Rene.

Barbara Simmons, 19 Spruce, Apt. 4, has been appointed as an advisor in residence 1. She is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is currently a student at Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich.

Lebanon, Oregon
Express
(Cir. W 3830)

AUG 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Higher ed students sought for program

Student teachers, interested in working with disadvantaged youth, are needed to participate in a program jointly sponsored by the University of Oregon, Tongue Point Job Corps Center and the Clatsop County School System.

Men or women senior and junior students from any Oregon institution of higher education may apply for fall, winter, or spring term assignments. Travel expenses and a $107 monthly stipend will be paid during the period of student teaching.

Longview, Wash.
Daily News
(Cir. D 92148)

AUG 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Wahkiakum Fair to open 3-day '76 run on Thursday

SKAMOKAWA — Special entertainment acts have been arranged for each of the three nights at the Wahkiakum County Fair which opens Thursday at Skamokawa.

The queen will be crowned Thursday and a girls' ensemble from the Tongue Point Job Corps will be featured Friday's special presentation will be "The Star of TV and radio, described as the "singing logger." Logger championship trophies also will be awarded Friday night.

A wrestling card is planned Saturday night. All programs begin at 8 p.m.

Queen candidates include Becky Kaplan of Grays Landing, Cheryl Moore of Puyallup, and Terri Jacobson of Elkhart, and Mary Silverman of Skamokawa.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D 15737)

AUG 23 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Booth to Benefit Retarded Children

Booths to benefit retarded children will be set up at the Wahkiakum County Fair which opens Thursday at Skamokawa.

Cheryl Scott shows her carving to the instructor.

Jorio, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D 15737)

AUG 18 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Body Found, Believed to Be Price

The badly decomposed body of a man, believed to be missing Tongue Point Job Corps employee Glynis A. Price Sr., was found floating in tide water in the Joffe Gardens area Sunday by a resident of Lewis and Clark.

Tim Yeager, 20, made the discovery and notified authorities, according to Clatsop Sheriff Carl B. Bondick. The remains were discovered before 4 p.m. in water near G Street. Bondick surmised that the series of strong northeast winds may have moved the body to this location.

Price, supervisor of food services at Tongue Point and also a Seattle businessman, crashed July 27 in Puget Sound Bay when his plane failed to make the nearby county airport. He was believed to be on a business trip.

The body was taken today to Portland Memorial in Portland for cremation by the Hughes-Ramson Mortuary.

Eugene, Oregon
Emerald Empire Reminder
(Cir. W 40090)

AUG 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Teachers Needed For Disadvantaged at Tongue Point

Student teachers who are interested in working with disadvantaged youth are being sought to participate in a program sponsored jointly by the University of Oregon, Tongue Point Job Corps Center and the Clatsop County School System.

Both men and women are eligible to apply for either fall, winter, or spring term assignments with the Job Corps Center and the Clatsop Schools. Applicants may be from any Oregon institution of higher education which wishes to participate.

Those applying should be of junior or senior standing and should be committed to future public school work with the disadvantaged. Each person accepted will be paid travel expense and a stipend of $107 per month during the period in which he is student teaching.

Persons interested in the program should contact Kathy Hodson, secretary in the University of Oregon Curriculum and Instruction Department, 120 Education Building, Eugene, Ore. 97403.

Remains of Victim

Body of Glynis T. Price, a Tongue Point employee, is wrapped in burlap removal to funeral home by R. Roesser, left, Cpl. Ken Moore of state police and Erickson Jr., right. Roesser and Erickson are morticians.

Madford, Oregon
Mail Tribune
(Cir. D 12144)

AUG 20 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Special Program Offered Teachers

EUGENE — Student teachers who are interested in working with disadvantaged youth are being sought to participate in a program sponsored jointly by the University of Oregon, Tongue Point Job Corps Center and the Clatsop County School System.

Both men and women are eligible to apply for either fall, winter, or spring term assignments with the Job Corps Center and the Clatsop Schools. Applicants may be from any Oregon institution of higher education which wishes to participate.

Those applying should be of junior or senior standing and should be committed to future public school work with the disadvantaged. Each person accepted will be paid travel expense and a stipend of $107 per month during the period in which he is student teaching.

Persons interested in the program should contact Kathy Hodson, secretary in the University of Oregon Curriculum and Instruction Department, 120 Education Building, Eugene, Ore. 97403.

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Maryanne Kummerer New Home Ec Agent

The appointment of Maryanne Kummerer as home economics extension agent has been announced by Louis H. Gross, Yamhill county extension chairman.

The new agent is a home economics graduate from St. Mary-of-the-Woods College in Terre Haute, Ind. She served two years with the Peace Corps in Turkey, having trained for the work at Portland State University. In 1968 Miss Kummerer served as instructor in family life and residence advisor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center near Astoria.

The new extension agent grew up on a general farm near Tiffin, Ohio and was a 4-H club member for nine years. She is a member of Alpha Omicron Phi, a national honorary in home economics. For the past two months she has been working in Yamhill county in a special nutrition project in the Amity area.

Mrs. David France and her husband are planning to move nearer Portland. France is employed by the State Department of Employment. Miss France will be employed as a full time homemaker and says she will be practicing the things she has been teaching to the women in Yamhill county during the last year and a half. Mrs. France will be working during August and September as an agent-at-large for Oregon State University and Miss Kummerer's appointment became effective August first.

MARYANNE KUMMERER

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Ch. D. 7377)

SEP 2 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Car Recovered - A car owned by Rodney Anderson, reported taken from a parking place on Marine Drive Friday about 7:30 p.m., was recovered in Clatsop County at approximately 10 p.m. Three Job Corps cars were seized in Clatsop County jail at Rainier.

Firebaugh, Calif.
Firebaugh Mendota
Journal
Ch. W. 343 Free 1.910

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Luna Ochoa Completes Job Corps Course

Guadalupe Luna Ochoa 17, daughter of Genoveva Ochoa, Box 75 has been graduated from Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center after completing a course in Health Occupation.

Tongue Point, which is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the federal Office of Economic Opportunity, with Phillips-Ford Corp. presenting vocational training as a sub-contractor, has a current enrollment of 730.

In addition to job skill training, the Job Corps program includes remedial education and personality development, and is available to disadvantaged young women between the ages of 16 and 21.

who complete their courses.

Lack of a good job placement program has been one of the Job Corps' major weaknesses. It has appeared to us. Little information has been available at Tongue Point on the fate of those who have completed training and gone home. There was no real program to put the graduates in jobs and follow their careers to see how well they do and how well the training has succeeded or how it has failed.

The labor Department with offices and facilities spread over the nation to a much greater degree than the Office of Economic Opportunity ever had is in better position to conduct this important follow-up program.

Teresa M. Ramirez Completes Job Corps Training

Teresa M. Ramirez, 20, daughter of Mary Ramirez, Ch. 100, has completed her General Educational Development certificate from Tongue Point Women's Job Corps Center in Astoria, Oregon.

This certificate, awarded after she passed an examination with scores equal to or higher than those required by the 28 states that issue high school equivalency certificates, is generally accepted by employers. In lieu of a high school diploma.

She is a first grader for the two-year program at the center in June 1969.

Tongue Point is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the federal Office of Economic Opportunity, with Phillips-Ford Corp. as sub-contractor, presenting vocational training as a sub-contractor, has a current enrollment of 730.

In addition to job skill training, the Job Corps program includes remedial education and personality development, and is available to disadvantaged young women between the ages of 16 and 21.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Ch. D. 7377)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Fight Rips Job Corps Cafeteria

ASTORIA (UPI) - Classes and normal routine continue today at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center following a free-for-all Wednesday in the center's cafeteria, according to Deputy Director Sidney Thompson.

The fight started between two girls during lunch and soon mushroomed into a free-for-all. Center officials said they plan to charge "four or five" girls with criminal violations as a result of the melee. Thompson said conviction could result in dismissal from the program.

Thompson said there have been no grievances presented to the staff and the situation did not reflect any racial overtones. Dishes and glasses were the only losses and there were no injuries, Thompson said.

Drivers Cited After Accidents

Taxi drivers were cited by Astoria police after minor accidents over the weekend.

Valerie Jean Cravens, Tongue Point Job Corps Center, was cited with violation of the basic rule and the operator's manual after the car was driving on 14th and Commercial, Saturday at 2:24 p.m. The parked car is owned by 1400 N. Main, Portland, owned by 1400 N. Main, Portland, 2125 N. Main, Astoria. A 1964 Ford, cited John Neutel, 564 Pacific St. Astoria, for improper lane usage after his car collided with one driven by Stephen Lee Webb, 188 Kensington, Astoria, at Eighth and Franklin Friday at 6:38 p.m.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Ch. D. 7377)

SEP 2 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Woman Smashed - A 17-year-old Tongue Point Job Corps Center woman was charged with driving a property and minor summary after a woman, Greenberg's Furniture Store was broken at 10:10 p.m. Sunday. She was released to Tongue Point authorities. The Tongue Point Job Corps Center, which is operated by the University of Oregon under a contract with the federal Office of Economic Opportunity, with Phillips-Ford Corp. as sub-contractor, presenting vocational training as a sub-contractor, has a current enrollment of 730.

Nampa, Idaho
Idaho Free Press
Ch. D. 6830

To Wed . .

WEDDING PLANS are being made by Pamela Ivy Jokes and Lester Kent Allen, according to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. M.W. Jokes of Nampa. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester C. Allen, also of Nampa. Miss Jokes is a 1964 graduate of Nampa High School and is a registered nurse. She is currently employed at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Astoria, Ore. Her fiance, also a 1964 graduate of Nampa High School, is now stationed at Guam Air Base in Vietnam. He is a specialist fifth class with the U.S. Air Force.

Milpitas, Calif.
Post
(Ch. W. 3.491)
300 Free

SEP 2 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Training in Washington

Cheryl, 19, daughter of Warren Scott, is receiving on-the-job training at Rally Electronics Corporation, Kent, Wash., after completing a course in electronics assembly at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Astoria, Ore. The off-center training provides practice of the skills learned in the Job Corps for a four-week period under actual employment conditions, prior to graduation from the center.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Ch. D. 7377)

SEP 2 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Changes in Emphasis

Dr. Dorothy Burns, Tongue Point Job Corps director, has returned from Washington where Job Corps directors conferred with officials of the Department of Labor which now has charge of these institutions.

Her report indicates the Job Corps has a real future with some changes in emphasis which seem pretty good. One is a closer relationship with other manpower training programs aimed at fitting young people into the program which best fits their needs. Job Corps will get those who most need a residential-type facility to give them education and vocational training as well as job skills. Another change in emphasis involves more effort at job placement for those

Part of War on Poverty Effort — Girls, Trained By Job Corps, Seek Valley Homes

By Elaine Fleming

Girls who are inching their way up the tortuous ladder towards self respect and gainful employment are seeking homes with families in the Valley.

Every four weeks, a carload of young women between the ages of 18 and 21 arrive in Seattle, destined for final job training in hospitals, federal offices and industries throughout Puget Sound and the State of Washington.

They come from University of Oregon where the Job Corps Center at Tongue Point training them in skills under the United States Department of Labor.

All the girls need homes. Many families in Seattle have opened their doors to these young people, who, until now, have had no means of earning satisfactory salaries. Most of the girls training in industry are centered at Tally Inc., a new plant on South 180th Street in Kent where they assemble computer supportive equipment.

The girls come from every part of the country including Hawaii and have one thing in common — all have had poor economic backgrounds, none have finished high school, until they signed with Job Corps their work skills were minimum. Many worked as waitresses, elevator operators, nurses aides. None had skills that could command more than a bare minimum livelihood.

After their nine months of training in Oregon the girls have a certain working knowledge of a trade or a skill — whether clerical, electronic, nursing, etc. — but they have never been in a situation where they are actually on a job working with other people.

Tally responds
Tally was the only industry in the region responding to the Job Corps' call for job experience for the girls, once they had completed their basic training. It looked like a good thing for that company, one for which it could make a contribution, so for many months now, an average of eight girls arrive for on-the-job training on the assembly line.

Putting their skills to work is a very small part of this training. What these novices must learn is how to get along with other workers, essentials of promptness, dedication to duty, good manners and responsibility.

Part of these things they learn on the job and part in the homes where they live. To date, all girls working at Tally have boarded in Seattle and commuted — catch as catch can — to the valley.

Valley homes are needed, but homes of a particular type. This is no job for an amateur foster mother or an inexperienced housewife.

A typical home where the girls now live as they come in and out of Seattle is that of District For one year now, with the exception of two months, this couple, whose only son is now married and left home, has taken in two girls every four weeks.

The Bradleys are Negro but they take both Negro and white girls. It is a job for them that pays $225 monthly but it has more than its share of plus and minus signs, not counting the money.

These are girls who come from the most poverty-stricken backgrounds.

"We think we're poor folks," Mrs. Bradley says, "but compared to these girls, we're rich. They think we're living in luxury. They look at our house and our kitchen and they're shocked to think they're living in such a fine place. But we're just really poor colored people."

Talk Comes Easy
Mrs. Bradley has a real ace in the hole in her husband — a waterfront worker. "He goes along all the way on this job and he's not warmer than I am with these girls. When I'm through with dinner and washing up, I dishes I just want to sit down and read the paper," Mrs. Bradley says, "but he'll sit and talk with them and find out all about them. I can talk with them as easily as he can."

The day one of the girls turned 20 years old, Mrs. Bradley baked a birthday cake and gave her a bottle of perfume. The young girl was flabbergasted — she'd never had one — and she paid attention to her birthday.

While the Job Corps are in her home, the Bradleys try to show them a little bit of the culture of the community — taking them to a restaurant, to Woodland Park Zoo, up the Skagit to Snoqualmie Falls.

Most girls are wonderful but the Bradleys think they're being particularly lucky. Everything isn't all roses. They've had only one problem girl but other families haven't been so lucky.

"These are pretty worldly girls we take in and it's worth a second thought before we admit a stranger. The one problem we had was with a girl who came up here to socialize with him, and instead of returning home in compliance with her 10 p.m. curfew, she didn't arrive till almost 8 the next morning. She went to Seattle."

"The Job Corps people told us, when we called, to welcome her home, set as though nothing had happened. They then came and took the girl from our home. They talked with her, tried to reason with her and, failing this, sent her back to her home in the South. They found later she'd returned and lived with the boy two more days before she

Grooming of a Secretary

Less than a year ago, Charlene Pittman, 20-year-old Negro from Helena, Ark., was equipped to work as a nurse's aide in a mental hospital. Today, after nine months of training in secretarial skills and business machines, she is ready for final "polishing off" as an office worker at Tally, Inc. on South 180th Street. John Mason, director of Personnel for Tally, which manufactures computer component parts, supervises Charlene's work.

— Staff Photo

ing off without warning one day. Even the boyfriend decided she was just a bad apple."

While most of the girls who come are "wonderful" and truly serious about bettering themselves, lots of them have been around and it's a little bit risky having them in Mr. Bradley's house and jokes a lot with the girls but he keeps the thing in proper perspective. The girls aren't above trying to "make out" with their temporary hosts and they aren't always the most straight forward.

"They're just ordinary human beings who have seen an awful lot of the seamy side of life," Mrs. Bradley concludes. "They know a lot more than me and my husband put together but they want to get ahead in life, to get out of the nothingness they've been in and we can see we do an awful lot for them by sharing our home with them."

Supervision Needed
It takes us down some — we have to stay around to supervise when they leave home. But it's worth it in the long run."

All at all, Mrs. Bradley was a bit of a platoon, but when homes are needed for the girls, the project is not something to be overlooked. It's taken in the right spirit. It can be one of the more rewarding experiences a family can have.

Complementing the family life given the girls while they stay in the Seattle area is the job training they receive at the plant — or wherever they are assigned to work.

At Tally, a supervisor with unparalleled qualifications for her job is Candy Brewer. Candy is a young woman of Mexican-American extraction, very attractive, and with a warm personality that literally draws forth all the better qualities of the young, mated homes to the girls may call him, collect, at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, University of Oregon, Astoria, Ore. (Area Code 503-325-2131, Extension 325).

Candy teaches the girls to solder and to solder better than anyone else. But more than that, she teaches them to open up and enjoy their work, to forget their giddiness and laziness and to behave themselves on the job.

Most Want to Learn
"Once in a while we get a girl slip who that's here for a good time, but mostly these girls want to learn. Most of them are the saddest things you ever saw when they come; they are silent and withdrawn and very unhappy."

"I get to know these girls by sitting down and talking with them, by being one of them and making them depend on other people and to make their own living without help from other people."

"If they seem me back, I can talk with them and get them to set right. We don't have any hard feelings around here."

"One little girl was sad the whole time she was here. She came from Hawaii and she never talked. But she was leaving I took her aside and got her to talk about her well. She had family problems in Hawaii."

When she began to talk, she said for a long time I acted as a mother to her and she found out her problems weren't as hopeless as she thought. I saw her smiling and happy before she left."

Beliefs Gained
Candy Brewer is one person who gets a lot of personal satisfaction from helping the girls. She feels the program is helping rescue a lot of girls from a kind of life she'd hate to lead herself.

Director of the extension program, under which the girls work in this area and others throughout the state, is Lou Cries who handles placement of girls in homes in the area. Homeowners who are willing to offer their homes to the girls may call him, collect, at Tongue Point Job Corps Center, University of Oregon, Astoria, Ore. (Area Code 503-325-2131, Extension 325).

DISH BREAKERS IRK TAXPAYERS

There have been various disorders in American schools, but the dining hall disturbance and subsequent incidents at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center are in a class by themselves in that they were fomented off by no discernible buildup of race hatred or any other such cause. From all we can make out, the outbreak developed from unexplained tension among the young women sitting down together for a meal. They certainly must have been on edge to be so infuriated by a new trainee serving something on every plate until a fight developed. It spread rapidly, which suggests bad humor, and soon involved an estimated seventy-five. Many of these may have been trying to stop the disorder. It is curious that the new trainee was not the general target. Once started, the fight must have found new targets.

This clamor is hard to understand unless there was extreme irritation among the diners. Human beings generally are not in a fighting mood at the table. That is hard on digestion. Apparently nothing was expected by the large teaching and administrative staff.

The young women couldn't have been in a very happy state of mind to permit the unusual conduct of a new student to upset them. We do not know the precise circumstances of the explosion. It might have been quite innocently set off by some dining table custom of the new corpswoman's Hawaiian people. They have unusual pleasanties.

If she was up to unacceptable mischief, the authorities should have been summoned instead of letting the matter develop into a property damaging and injury inflicting affair. The government under the present administration, which is trying to save every penny for Vietnam, does not love to lay out on young women, who are given the opportunity at public expense to improve their job getting, to break the public's dishes and windows and discipline. There are many young women in America who would like to get the very restricted opportunity to attend a Job Corps school. The cost to the taxpayer is so great for every girl at Tongue Point that it is not asking too much to have the selected few be careful with the dishes and windows.

The young women are old enough to know that if they have grievances against the program or the meal before them, they can write to their congressmen or to Oregon's Mr. Green. She had just stated that there is a growing anarchy on campuses which is a very grave matter. But we get the impression that Tongue Point is fairly free of the racial issue and hence must not have a real cause for a state of anarchy which dish breaking is.

Since nothing has been brought out why the seventy-five girls were sitting down for a meal in battle mood except that a few corpswomen are not good girls, it might be that the present troubled state of the world, with fighting at meal time and even other time in many regions, keeps the trainees on edge. If that is the case, they should be given the opportunity to work off their will. A ten mile hike before a meal would do it. So would a swim across the Columbia. Reading the national budget for education should be enough to quiet any riled miss.

There are young women who feel they have tremendous grievances should be a bit charitable. There has never been a greater remedy for keeping down fights at the table or anywhere than turning the other cheek. We would also recommend giving the Golden Rule a workout during meal time at Tongue Point. It has kept down disorders and policing for at least 1869 years at many tables.

Every young woman at Tongue Point, whether Republican or Democrat, should realize that with President Nixon cutting budgets for such vital public needs as highways, sewers and water systems there is great risk that he won't allow funds for broken dishes at Tongue Point.

Those young women who may have come to Tongue Point just to cause trouble can override it and find themselves out of a job.

Several Persons Injured In Weekend Car Accidents

Traffic accidents in Clatsop County over the weekend sent several persons to Astoria and Seaside hospitals.

James Glenison, 32, of Gearhart suffered a broken arm and leg and was taken to Seaside Hospital where he is being treated. Glenison was driving a 1968 Ford Mustang when he lost control of the car at 10 p.m. Sunday on Highway 101 near 10th Street. He was traveling 45 m.p.h. when he lost control of the car and struck a guardrail.

A trucker, who was involved in a car accident and was taken to Clatsop County Hospital where he is being treated. The trucker was driving a 1968 Ford Mustang when he lost control of the car at 10 p.m. Saturday on Highway 101 near 10th Street. He was traveling 45 m.p.h. when he lost control of the car and struck a guardrail.

A car accident on Highway 101 at 9:30 p.m. Sunday sent several persons to Astoria and Seaside hospitals.

A car accident on Highway 101 at 9:30 p.m. Sunday sent several persons to Astoria and Seaside hospitals.

A car accident on Highway 101 at 9:30 p.m. Sunday sent several persons to Astoria and Seaside hospitals.

SEP 2 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Girl Arrested for Disorderly Conduct

A 17-year-old girl was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct in the Tongue Point area.

A police officer said that Stella [name] was arrested after she was found in a public place. She was taken to the police station and released on her own recognizance.

SEP 1 8 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

STRONGER PROGRAM

When the Nixon Administration moved the Job Corps from the Office of Economic Opportunity to the Department of Labor it was said in many places that this sealed the fate of the Job Corps.

The largest Job Corps operation in Oregon is the Tongue Point Center near Astoria. The Tongue Point director, Dr. Dorothy Burns, has just returned from a session of Job Corps directors with the Department of Labor officials and the Daily Astorian reports that she sees a bright future for the program.

The Astorian quotes Dr. Burns as saying that the Department of Labor will place special emphasis on job placement for corps men and women who have completed their courses. Of this, The Daily Astorian says:

"Lack of a good job placement program has been one of the Job Corps' major weaknesses, it has appeared to us. Little information has been available at Tongue Point on the fate of those who have completed training and gone home. There was no real program to put the graduates in jobs and follow their careers to see how well they did and how well the training has succeeded or how it has failed.

"The Labor Department, with offices and facilities spread over the nation to a much greater degree than the Office of Economic Opportunity ever had, is in better position to conduct this important follow-up program."

SEP 2 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Five Girls Earn TP Job Corps Honors

Five girls who completed their training at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center have been named as recipients of the 1969-1970 National Job Corps Achievement Award.

The girls are: [names] who were recognized for their achievements in various fields including electronics, health care, and education.

SEP 2 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Point On Television

James [name] tells the Job Corps education store as a [name] of Portland. Here pictured is the portion of the "Project Education" program dealing with extension training as told by Corpswoman Beulah Morris and Counselor Coordinator Jeanette Smith.

Need for more companionship with girls

by Jerry Hatcher.
Why can't we have more companionship with the girls when we go to Portland? He asked it would seem as if we could go to the Tongue Point Center both Friday and Saturday nights.

SEP 2 5 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Teen Center Success Is Finally Up to the Kids

Setting up a social center or recreation center for youth is usually not easy and it certainly hasn't been in Astoria. Such facilities have been in Astoria in the past, but a new attempt is under way amid oft-voiced comments that Astoria's "nothing to do" for teenagers in.

Probably the main problem in establishing such a facility is leadership. Initiative must come from the youngsters, but a certain amount of adult guidance is needed on some of the technical aspects of such a venture. Getting both elements and the right blend of the two is not easy to achieve.

The group working toward a youth center in Astoria has apparently had some trouble in realizing the effectiveness of enthusiasm and purpose from the youth and guidance from the adults. Because the group isn't sure after several months of a site for a center and much work has been done.

Such a group has to answer many questions: To what age group should use of the center be restricted? What will be offered? Should rules be made for the center and if so what should they be? What should the hours be?

These questions have been discussed at length in the Astoria group. Also explored has been whether girls from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center should be included in the proposed youth center. Some reluctance was voiced, because of the cultural and racial differences between the Astoria and Tongue Point youngsters, but the decision was that the corpswomen should be invited to take part.

Getting such a project into operation and then making a go of it looks as though it will be quite a job. Particularly with some parents opposing such a youth facility and many more not caring at all.

So it comes down to the fact that the fate of the youth center idea is up to the kids and whether it will become a reality or not will depend on what they do. If youths from the various Astoria-area groups could make a teen center a success, it would be a fine example for the rest of the community.

Illustrations for Inferno shown

Dante's Inferno, by Robert Rauschenberg, an exhibition of illustrations to the poem, is on display in the [name] gallery. The exhibition features a series of paintings that depict the various levels of Hell as described in Dante's epic poem. The artist's style is characterized by bold, expressive brushstrokes and a rich, dark color palette.

TV moderator to visit center

Many Wilkins television station [name] is visiting the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The visit is part of a series of programs aimed at providing information and support to the community.

The moderator, [name], will be in Astoria for several days, during which time he will be conducting interviews and participating in various community events. His visit is expected to raise awareness of the challenges faced by the youth in the area.

Purpose of the visit to Tongue Point is to discuss with Dr. Dorothy Burns, the center director, the education program and the role of the center in the community. The visit is also an opportunity for the moderator to share his experiences and insights with the youth at the center.

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

ONA Hears Talk On Pediatrics

The Oregon Nurses Association of District nine met for the first time after the summer vacation for dinner at the Sunset Empire Room Thursday.

The guest speaker Miss Esther Kelly, pediatric nurse of the Crippled Children's Division at the U of O Medical School, Portland, told about her work and that of the multiple disciplines involved with the CCD Clinic.

Mrs. Irma Wood, supervisor of health occupations at the Tongue Point Job Corps, introduced the speaker. During the meeting, Mrs. Kelly presented a paper on the role of the pediatric nurse in the CCD Clinic.

President Mrs. Robert Engstrom expressed her delight with the large attendance at the first meeting of the season. The meeting was held in the evening and was well attended.

The group also heard a presentation by [name] on the importance of continuing education for nurses. The meeting was a success and the group plans to hold regular meetings in the future.

SEP 2 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Student Teachers Due Next Week

Eleven students from the University of Oregon and Portland State University are expected to arrive in Astoria next week to begin their student teaching assignments at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

Gene McIntyre, coordinator of the program, said the student teachers will participate in an orientation program Monday and Tuesday and will then report to their respective assignments and teaching assignments.

The group will be supervised by [name] and [name]. The student teachers will be working in various departments of the center, including education, health care, and social services.

Also discussed at the Monday evening meeting was a plan to hold a series of workshops for the student teachers. The workshops will be designed to provide them with the necessary skills and knowledge to succeed in their assignments.

Other panel members told of needs in the community. Robert White, administrator of the county Welfare Department, said the low-income elderly in the county were in need of more services and support.

These kids really need something," said Father Wilkins. He said Astoria has one movie theater and a bowling alley "for adults." He said he thought the teenagers working on the project need some adult support of a technical nature.

Other panel members told of needs in the community. Robert White, administrator of the county Welfare Department, said the low-income elderly in the county were in need of more services and support.

SEP 2 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Youth Social Center Sought As Aid to 'Mental Health'

By MIKE FORTRESTER
Daily Astorian Editor
Ranking of a youth social center and a phone answering center for persons needing help has been voiced by members of the Clatsop County Mental Health Assn.

A full-member panel discussed community needs this week at a meeting of the mental health organization, with the youth center and the answering service seeming to get the most attention.

Father Wilkins, director of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, said the center could provide a safe and supportive environment for the youth in the area. He emphasized the importance of having a center where the youth could go for help and support.

Also discussed at the Monday evening meeting was a plan to hold a series of workshops for the student teachers. The workshops will be designed to provide them with the necessary skills and knowledge to succeed in their assignments.

Other panel members told of needs in the community. Robert White, administrator of the county Welfare Department, said the low-income elderly in the county were in need of more services and support.

These kids really need something," said Father Wilkins. He said Astoria has one movie theater and a bowling alley "for adults." He said he thought the teenagers working on the project need some adult support of a technical nature.

Other panel members told of needs in the community. Robert White, administrator of the county Welfare Department, said the low-income elderly in the county were in need of more services and support.

Paula Reimann, president of the Clatsop County Assn. for the Handicapped, said the center could provide a safe and supportive environment for the youth in the area. She emphasized the importance of having a center where the youth could go for help and support.

The center would be a place where the youth could go for help and support. It would be a place where they could learn and grow. It would be a place where they could find a sense of belonging and community.

The center would be a place where the youth could go for help and support. It would be a place where they could learn and grow. It would be a place where they could find a sense of belonging and community.

The center would be a place where the youth could go for help and support. It would be a place where they could learn and grow. It would be a place where they could find a sense of belonging and community.

The center would be a place where the youth could go for help and support. It would be a place where they could learn and grow. It would be a place where they could find a sense of belonging and community.

The center would be a place where the youth could go for help and support. It would be a place where they could learn and grow. It would be a place where they could find a sense of belonging and community.

The center would be a place where the youth could go for help and support. It would be a place where they could learn and grow. It would be a place where they could find a sense of belonging and community.

Center Impresses UO President

The new president of the University of Oregon took a look at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, of which the university is the main operator, and said he was favorably impressed.

"I'm very much impressed with the center and its operation, and even more with the City of Astoria and its attitude toward this project," said Clark. "It's quite a feat for a small community to bring this group of young persons here."

Clark and other UO staff members were at Tongue Point for a reception honoring Clark and his wife and Mayor and Mrs. Harry Steinbock. Among those on hand were Elva Hawn, the university's assistant director with Tongue Point and Wendell Van Loan, the man who directed the center before Dr. Burns and was on the staff of the UO School of Education.

Speaking of his visit, Clark said, "I'm pleased with this because it's the kind of action that a university should be involved in. It's social action and not political action. It's putting knowledge of a university to work."

UO Prexy Honored

President Robert Clark of the University of Oregon (left) was honored Thursday at a reception at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. Center Director Dr. Dorothy Burns was on hand to greet the university's new president, along with Wendell Van Loan (right), who was center director before Dr. Burns. Van Loan is now on the staff of the UO School of Education. The University of Oregon has a federal contract to run all non-vocational operations at Tongue Point.

New supervisor added to staff of Job Corps

From animal husbandry to hotel management seems a sizable step to take, but it was successfully managed by Jim Boyd, the new supervisor of institutional housekeeping and food service occupations at the Tongue Point Job Corps center in Astoria.

While majoring in animal husbandry at Texas Tech University at Lubbock, Texas, Boyd did hotel work to help pay for the college education. There are the two when the interest in hotel management took the upper hand and Boyd transferred, after two years in Texas, to Denver University to major in business administration with hotel and restaurant management.

as the subject major.

Shortly after graduation he became assistant manager of the Apple Valley Inn, a resort located in the high desert in California, mid-point between Los Angeles and Las Vegas. This is the vacation spot that became the location setting for the film, "The O'Connell Story," with James Stewart and Jane Wyman. After two years at Apple Valley, Boyd took over the office of general manager of the Sunset Tavern, a luxury apartment-hotel in Los Angeles. This complex catered largely to the motion picture and music industries, with Barbra Streisand and Herb Alpert maintaining apartments.

In 1967, Boyd became owner-manager of Jimmie's Catamaran, a coastal tourist resort restaurant located in the fishing village of San Blas, Mexico.

Prepare for Reception

Food service trainees at Tongue Point Job Corps Center prepare refreshments for afternoon reception at the center. Honored at the 3-5 p.m. reception will be Dr. Robert Clark, new president of University of Oregon, and Mrs. Clark; V. K. Curtis, manager of manpower programs for Philco-Ford; and Astoria Mayor and Mrs. Harry Steinbock. From left are Julia Swinton, Cynthia Poldo, Gloria Lodge, Shirley Dole, Doris Boykins and Mary Holley.

Daily Astorian

48 Graduate at Tongue Point Job Corps Center

Tongue Point Graduates March In

Wednesday, October 22, 1969, was an eventful day in the lives of 48 young Job Corpsmen, who received their diplomas amid pomp and ceremony in graduation exercises held at the recreation hall at the Job Corps Center, Tongue Point.

Constance Fisher, medical social work consultant of maternal and infant care, Emanuel Hospital, Portland, delivered the inspirational graduation address "Your Realities as You Graduate" to the graduates and the assembled corpsmen, introduced by Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of the corps, prior to the conferring of diplomas.

Those receiving graduation diplomas in their selected categories were: Coala Register and Luella Stott, institutional housekeeping; Katrina Pope, Marie Candelaria, Ruth Johnson, Beverly Ross, Angie Arnelas and Ruth Williams, electronics assembly; Lorraine Nelson, food service occupations; Bobbie Mackey, business and clerical; Annalee Reilly, dental aide; and Mary Lee, Mary Ross, Doris Leverett, Brenda Hill, Bessie McNeill, Katherine Core, Bertha Williams, Annie Myles, Ola Ross, Doris Christon, Rosie Adkins, Mary Monroe and Rosa Spikes, health occupations.

Sharing the spotlight were corpswomen who have completed their general education development requirements: Rosie Adkins, Gwen Autrey, Diana Blackwell, Dorothy Brown, Ethel Burton, Betty Cannon, Lynn Carr, Brenda Christian, Wanda Clark, Vickie Crawford, Bonnie Duren, Len Eddy, Diane Lamb, Bonnie Le Master, Bobbie Mackey, Jeanette Mickel, Ofelia Monreal, Shelly Norris, Mary Rodriguez, Joyce Sirmans, Jennifer Valdez, Dorothy Williams, Yvonne Williams and Kate Wilson. Dr. Burns presented the GED certificates and delivered a message to the girls.

Following the presentation of colors by a color guard from the Civil Air Patrol, Sybil Jones, senator of student government for the corps, led the invocation and Shirley Allen made the introduction of platform guests. Soloist for the program was Blanche Samuels, who sang "Climb Every Mountain," and both the processional and recessional were played by Martha Fleming, organist.

A reception honoring the girl graduates, which include the complete Job Corps and guests, completed the occasion in the music assembly building.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. 0 757)

OCT 30 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Community Relations — The Tongue Point Community Relations Council will meet next Tuesday night, in the center library. The meeting, starting at 6 o'clock, will be devoted mainly to a film of a Portland television production about education at Tongue Point.

Teen Center Success Is Finally Up to the Kids

Setting up a social center or recreation center for youth is usually not easy and it certainly hasn't been in Astoria. Such facilities have existed in Astoria in the past, but a new attempt is under way amid oft-voiced comments that there's "nothing to do" for teen-agers in Astoria.

Probably the main problem in establishing such a facility is leadership. Initiative must come from the youngsters, but a certain amount of adult guidance is needed on some of the technical aspects of such a venture. Getting both elements and the right blend of the two is not easy to achieve.

The group working toward a youth center in Astoria has apparently had some trouble in realizing the effective blend of enthusiasm and purpose from the youth and guidance from the adults, because the group isn't sure after several months of a site for a center and doesn't feel it has enough funds to do much.

Such a group has to answer many questions—To what age group should use of the center be restricted? What will be offered? Should rules be made for the center and, if so, what should they be? What should the hours be?

These questions have been discussed at length by the Astoria group. Also explored has been whether girls from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center should be included in the proposed youth center. Some reluctance was voiced, because of the cultural and racial differences between the Astoria and Tongue Point youngsters, but the decision was that the corpswomen should be invited to take part.

Getting such a project into operation and then making a go of it looks as though it will be quite a job, particularly with some parents opposing such a youth facility and many, many more not caring at all.

So it comes down to the fact that the fate of the youth center idea is up to the kids, and whether it will become a reality or not will depend on what they do. If youths from the various Astoria-area groups could make a teen center a success, it would be a fine example for the rest of the community.

Job Corps Officials (from left) Elkins, Mayes, Dr. Burns and Wadell Snyder, Assistant Tongue Point Director

Daily Astorian

Job Corps Officials Visit Tongue Point Center

Two high Job Corps officials visited the Tongue Point Job Corps Center Wednesday. Miss Mayes and Elkins said the center is being put on closer cooperation of the U.S. Labor Department's Manpower Development Division, which the Job Corps is under, are trying to coordinate the corps with other Manpower Development Division programs. Among these is the Neighborhood Youth Corps, which is operating in Clatsop County.

Dr. Burns said the college is using Tongue Point now for a nurses' aide training course. She said the center also might be used for vocational instruction, remaining centers in the county. They said current policy dictates that at least 25 per cent of the Job Corps centers be for women, with some flexibility to increase the percentage. Asked about the future of non-urban centers such as Tongue Point, the officials said the country has to have some non-urban centers. The officials said Tongue Point was one of the last centers they were visiting after "mutually supportive visits" to other centers.

Asked about the future of women's Job Corps centers, Miss Mayes and Elkins said the goal is to work to improve the "mutually supportive visits" to other centers. They said current policy dictates that at least 25 per cent of the Job Corps centers be for women, with some flexibility to increase the percentage.

Asked about the future of non-urban centers such as Tongue Point, the officials said the country has to have some non-urban centers. The officials said Tongue Point was one of the last centers they were visiting after "mutually supportive visits" to other centers.

OCT 2 3 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Petition Campaign Is Planned

Fatal Fire Spurs Blue Ridge to Seek Annexation

By WILMA BONNANTI
Of the Astorian

Solution to a long-standing problem of annexation of the area to Astoria, who board over the duplex where the fire occurred, made plans today for a petition campaign for annexation of the area to Astoria.

"Some of those most opposed in the past to an

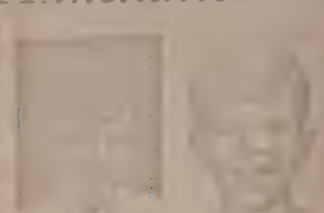

she said. I think

Meanwhile, cause a double-st
Dre
how couldn't get enough of them to sign," she added.

Petitions for annexation, according to Mrs. Morrell re-plained the bipart system to Dick y and Michlich when they purchased the property and the Seattle men in turn furniture, owned by the Morrells, was destroyed by the fire.

No decision has been made on whether to rebuild the duplex, purchased by the Morrells in 1967. They also own other property at Blue Ridge.

Astoria Mayor Harry Steinbeck said today of the annex-willing to annex, I'm also certain that it will cost the city.

and her husband bought property in Blue Ridge that a fire truck was to be available in the community building.

Michlich said he was aware that Blue Ridge residents were "quite upset" after the fire but added he had no information on the annexation petition and could not say whether bought the Blue Ridge property that there was no fire protection but said efforts to obtain protection were under way then.

Astoria Fire Dept., much criticized by Blue Ridge residents for not answering the call to Blue Ridge immediately

Blue Ridge residents

"I know that if Blue Ridge is annexed to the city must expend considerable money to bring the water system to satisfactory condition," he said some here would have

OCT 2 3 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Damage estimated at $500,000 following blaze

Loss estimated at $500,000

Blaze sweeps mill south of Astoria

WARRENTON, Ore. (AP) — A pre-dawn fire caused an estimated $500,000 damage Sunday, sweeping most of the Warren-ton Lumber Co.'s studding mill four miles south of Astoria.

The mill, which employs 61 workers, was engulfed in 200-foot-high flames when firemen arrived at 6 a.m.

Neither fire Dept. nor Dant & Russell, Inc., of Portland, the mill's owners, could determine when the blaze started.

Portland fire marshal's office began an investigation of the Die Jensen, superintendent of the plant, made the damage estimate. He said there was little to no drop but contain the blaze when he arrived with the first fire trucks.

Fire companies from eight surrounding towns fought the blaze. A crew from the Tongue Point Job Corps, in Astoria, also assisted.

The blaze cut off power to William Smith, the night watchman, who said he had just checked the sawdust blower when he spotted the fire in another part of the mill.

The fire raged out of control for 80 minutes, gutting the main plant but leaving a large quantity of finished lumber stored in a nearby yard.

"It was a miracle we saved as much as we did," said plant manager Ed Bellingham.

Also saved from the fire were the planer building, machine shop and a small office building.

The blaze cut off power to William Smith, the night watchman, who said he had just checked the sawdust blower

Part of the mill built on pilings over the Skippoon River Estuary collapsed into the bay. But a barge loaded with sawdust was towed to safety. The barge, owned by the plant, was docked in Young's Bay adjacent to the mill.

Joseph Heigel, president of Dant & Russell, said the company had begun a $1.5 million expansion of the Warren-ton facility. He said rebuilding of the mill would start immediately and that the expansion would continue.

OCT 2 7 1969

Flames Engulf Mill Near Astoria

WARRENTON, Ore. — A Sunday morning fire destroyed the Warren-ton Lumber Co. studding mill located here four miles south of Astoria. (AP)

Astoria Mill Blaze Loss—$500,000

WARRENTON, Ore. (AP) — when he arrived with the first fire trucks. Fire companies from eight surrounding towns fought the blaze. A crew from the Tongue Point Job Corps, in Astoria, also assisted.

The mill, which employs 61 workers, was engulfed in 200-foot-high flames when firemen arrived at 6 a.m.

Neither fire officials nor Dant & Russell, Inc., of Portland, the mill's owners, could determine when the blaze started.

The fire raged out of control for 80 minutes, gutting the main plant but leaving a large quantity of finished lumber stored in a nearby yard.

The state fire marshal's office began an investigation of the blaze.

Die Jensen, superintendent of the plant, made the damage estimate. He said there was little to no drop but contain the blaze when he arrived with the first fire trucks.

Fire companies from eight surrounding towns fought the blaze. A crew from the Tongue Point Job Corps, in Astoria, also assisted.

OCT 2 3 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Community Action Center Adds 3 Women To Staff

PORTLAND, ORE. — Three new staff members who have joined the Community Action Center's Community Center, a non-profit organization serving the city's poor, are Mrs. Jane Spence and Miss Lorraine Stewart, community workers, and Mrs. Melba White, secretary.

Mrs. Spence has been CAP's case manager for the last year. She has been in charge of the center's day care and other services for three years.

Mrs. Stewart comes to the CAP program from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. She worked there for two years and as an assistant in the group test department.

Mrs. White, formerly a typist, worked at Pacific University as secretary to the athletic department.

High Rosenberg, director of CAP in the county, said development and use of the center as far as possible. The next meeting of the steering committee, composed of representatives from the center and the city, will be held Wednesday.

The center, located at 1013 B Street, is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Job Corps Head To Visit Center

ASTORIA — The head of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, a federal training facility, will visit the Community Action Center today.

The center, located at 1013 B Street, is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

OCT 23 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

48 Graduate at Tongue Point Job Corps Center

Tongue Point Graduates March In

Daily Olympian
Olympia, Wash.
(Ch. D. 13,431 - S. 13,808)

OCT 27 1969

Oregon Mill Badly Damaged By Fire

WARRENTON, Ore. (AP) — A pre-dawn fire caused an estimated $500,000 damage Sunday night and most of the Warrenton Lumber Co.'s standing mill four miles south of Astoria.

The mill, which employs 63 workers, was engulfed in 200-foot-high flames when firemen arrived at 6 a.m.

Neither fire officials nor Dant & Russell, Inc. of Portland, the mill's owners, could determine how the blaze started.

The state fire marshal's office began an investigation of the blaze.

Don Jensen, superintendent of the plant, made the damage estimate. He said there was little to be done but contain the blaze when he arrived with the first fire trucks.

Fire companies from eight surrounding towns fought the blaze. A crew from the Tongue Point Job Corps in Astoria also assisted.

The blaze was discovered by William Smith, the night watchman, who said he had just checked the overhead tower when he spotted the flames.

The fire raged up a central chimney stack and spread to a large quantity of finished lumber stored in a nearby yard.

There were no injuries reported.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Ch. D 7577)

OCT 17 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

100 Per Cent
UGN Donation

OCT 29 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

UO man gets presidency of college

Harold Abel, member of the University of Oregon's College of Education staff for the past 12 years, was elected director of the college.

Abel, 43, will succeed retiring President Richard D. Davis, president of the 42-year old school — the first college in Vermont — for the past 12 years.

Castleton has approximately 1,000 students and is one of four Vermont state colleges.

Abel came to the U of O in the fall of 1957 as director of psycho-educational studies and professor of psychology.

He has been administrative consultant to the U of O Women's Job Corps Center, a consultant to the United States Office of Education since 1967 and U of O liaison for university researchers wanting to do work in the Eugene School District.

He has also served as a consultant to the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity, Project Head Start and was named principal consultant and educational director in 1965 for a two-year OEO project establishing a pre-school program on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

Abel has been the administrative head for College of Education programs for disadvantaged students, including the High School Equivalency Program and Upward Bound.

A native of New York City, Abel received his bachelor's, master's and doctor of philosophy degrees from Syracuse University in Syracuse, N.Y.

He was a teacher of the mentally retarded in Syracuse and Rochester schools for two years before joining the staff of Syracuse University in 1952.

He moved to the University of Nebraska at Lincoln in 1956 and served as chairman of the department of human development and learning coming to the U of O.

He is married, has two sons and currently resides at 257 Barclay, Dr. Eugene.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Ch. D 7577)

OCT 17 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

UGN Reaches 55 Per Cent of Goal

The United Good Neighbor Fund Drive has now collected over 55 per cent of the $28,000 goal for the 1969 county-wide drive, according to contribution reports at the UGN luncheon at the YMCA Thursday.

A total of $8,124.58 has now been collected, with the following firms added to 100 per cent firm donation honor roll:

Port of Astoria, Van Dusen Beverages, Northwest Natural Gas, U. S. National Bank of Warrenton and Seaside, Edwin Loomis, CPA, Fisher Bros. Oregon Laundry, The Intermediate Education District, Seaside Public Market, Astoria Apparel, Paramount Drug, Snow's Photo, Consolidated Printing, Haas's Market, district attorney's office, Hughes-Ramoth Mortuary, Builders Supply, City of Astoria and Franz Bakery.

Special recognition went to Bob Chopping for contacting 75 per cent of the firms in his downtown zone and Mrs. Berkeley Snow for contacting 100 per cent in the Arch Cape area zone.

The first prize, at the luncheon for best solicitation went to

Dora Garces of the Tongue Point Job Corps who has gained 4250 donations from 82 per cent of the girls in her residence and by this morning had collected 100 per cent of the donations in five hours she had contacted 200 people. Jack Keeler was selected for presentation of the second prize for "sandbagging" in the fund campaign.

The UGN luncheon was served by the women of the American Red Cross at the "Y" in a buffet style with over 30 people attending.

Enlie Garcia, president of UGN, was in charge of the luncheon as Bill Barnes, campaign chairman, was out of town on business.

Contributions to date turned in by various committees of the campaign are as follows:

Committee	Amount
Loaned Executives (Bus.)	$1,156.00
Retail & Industrial	4,281.00
Public Employees	5,610.00
Professional	888.00
County Communities	765.25
Seaside Retail & Industrial	986.00
Miscellaneous	873.33
Total collected to date	$32,124.58

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Ch. D 7577)

OCT 21 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

PREVENT 'SHIPWRECKS'

I read with interest a letter (open forum, Oct. 15) written by two family life and sex education instructors who teach at the Job Corps.

Recently I had the opportunity of conversing with a Job Corps family life instructor. I was told in the course of our conversation that the person who is teaching sex is not to moralize, she is to teach facts only, allowing the pupil to choose the course of conduct he wishes to follow. I can only say that unless good morals and spiritual values are taught and unless children are warned concerning the consequences of the improper use of sex, they will possibly or even probably choose the wrong way, making shipwrecks of their lives.

It is much better to try to prevent shipwrecks than to have to pick up the broken pieces later. We are responsible for the lives and souls of those in the families, classes, congregations, etc.

The Bible (God speaking) says "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Proverbs 22:6 God said "Thou shalt not commit adultery." Exodus 20:14 And the conclusion of the whole matter concerning sex is this: "Fear God and keep his Commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work in judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil." Ecclesiastes 12:13 & 14.

Many would have you to believe the fallacy that the Bible is irrelevant to modern man. For God shall bring every work in judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil." Ecclesiastes 12:13 & 14.

(Mrs.) Mary Palmrose
Rt. 2, Box 67 Astoria

Oregon Statesman
Salem, Oregon
(Ch. D. 34,922)

SEP 29 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Director Named

ASTORIA (AP) — Wade Snyder, staff member of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named assistant director, replacing Sydney Thompson, who resigned to join the State Department of Education.

Seaside, Oregon
(Ch. W 2,870)

OCT 9 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Two new posts shift personnel at Tongue Point

The first formal recommendations from a special committee to study possible reorganization at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center were approved by the center director, Douglas Burns, Monday. These recommendations included the creation of two new positions in the center life program area. Center life, one of the three major program areas and the largest department at Tongue Point, will effect the change.

GERTRUDE J.

Gertrude Meriwether, referral psychologist for the center, will now move into the newly created position of assistant associate director of center life in charge of psychological services. Mrs. Meriwether, who has been associated with the Job Corps since 1968, received a pre-master's degree from Willamette University, and a B.S. degree in home economics from the University of Washington. She also has her M.Ed. degree in educational psychology from Western Washington State College.

Before coming to Tongue Point, Mrs. Meriwether worked as a psychologist in various educational areas in the state of Washington, including the Maple Land school at Seaside, the Pelliccioli school district, and the Rainier state school.

Redmond, Oregon
Spokesman
(Ch. W. 3,005)

OCT 22 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Michels enjoy Utah visitors

POWELL BUTTE — Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Bolsinger, Mrs. Lillian Carlson and a friend, Ray Pacer, all of Salt Lake City, Utah, arrived on Sept. 26 to visit the women's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Michels, on Sunday the Michels and their guests drove to Moro where they spent the day with the Michels' daughter, Mrs. Ann Miller and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Busch and friends from Tillamook were visiting afternoon callers at the home of Mrs. Bolsinger's mother, Mrs. Henry Krell, on Sunday afternoon. Russell McCracken and son, Bruce, of McMinnville stopped at the Krell home on route home from a luncheon.

Marvin Arnes and son, Michael, of Oregon City were overnight guests Friday and Saturday at the Tom Alexander home while they were doing some hunting in Central Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirby of Richland, Wn., arrived Sept. 21 for a visit with his father, Roy Kirby, and other relatives. Kirby is a former local boy who attended school here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hawks of Astoria arrived Friday afternoon to spend the weekend at the Nara Simmons home and renew acquaintances in the community. Hawks was formerly the principal of the local school, having resigned a year ago to accept a position with the Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

Friends of Mrs. Helen Salem were also a weekend guest at the home of her uncle and aunt, the Nara Simmons. Calvin Maxwell returned Tuesday from Eugene, where he had spent a few days visiting his brother, Roll, and family.

Job Corps Chief Visits Tongue Pt.

The acting director of the Job Corps has told an Astoria audience that he was impressed by what appeared to be a good relationship between the community and the Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

William Mirengoff visited the Tongue Point center Friday—the first woman center he had visited in the 100 days he has held the job—and addressed Astoria Chamber of Commerce members.

"I am struck by the relationship between Astoria and Tongue Point—a terribly terrific partnership," Mirengoff told the audience. "He said the thousands of the problems afflicting Job Corps centers in the country are being solved here. With community relations, he said he had visited other centers, but none as good as Tongue Point, which has a host of problems regarding the neighboring community. 'Hostilely breeds hostility,' said Mirengoff.

"Non-Nonense," the federal official said that he had been impressed by the "advice, insight and non-Nonense approach" of Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of the Tongue Point center who has received with Mirengoff and other federal officials in Washington, D.C. He said that was the reason he decided to make Tongue Point the first woman's center he would visit.

Mirengoff said that in his 29 years in the federal government the Job Corps was "the most all-encompassing program he'd seen."

"By far the most important problem before the country is the social problem," said Mirengoff. "We must be able to handle the social revolution—the reading and passing away from social to new groups. This is what Job Corps is trying to do."

"Very Pleased," Dr. Burns said today she had been "very pleased" with the acting director's visit. "I think that he learned some things that he hadn't known about women's centers," she said. "And I think he was pleased with some of the things he saw."

Mirengoff, who formerly was with the Manpower Administration in the Dept. of Labor left for Washington, D.C. Friday night from Portland.

Tongue Point
Center Visited

William Mirengoff, acting director of the Job Corps, visits with Peony Wong, (center), San Francisco, and Alice Young, New Orleans, in a drafting class at Tongue Point Job Corps center. Accompanying Mirengoff during his visit here Friday were Ross Morgan, state administrator of the Division of Employment, Jeff Ramaker of the Regional Manpower Administration, Seattle, Albert Angebant, assistant to Mirengoff, Robert Shrale, assistant to the associate director for Conservation Centers, and John Elkins, Tongue Point project manager.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Oct. 23, 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

District Nurses Hear Address By Psychologist

Guest speaker at District Nurses Assn. meeting was John Hine, psychologist and director of Tongue Point Job Corps Center. Hine emphasized that giving one's possessions, he stressed that this is one of the main reasons for turmoil in our youth today. Parents give their children much in the way of material gifts, but fail to take the time to communicate with their children. Therefore the child feels lonely and misunderstood," he explained.

Hine is a pioneer in Job Corps, joining the Clinton Job Corps in its beginning days in 1966. He joined the Tongue Point Job Corps staff in August, 1968, where he works as psychologist and counselor in one of the residences.

Although Sharply Differing...

By MIKE FORRESTER
Eleven student teachers working in classrooms of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center and Astoria schools say they are having a rewarding, if sharply differing, experience.

"They're quite open, and they let you know what they think," said Joan Haworth, who is teaching law and social problems at Tongue Point. "The disadvantaged are more emotional (than middle class youngsters)."

Fairly typical, Renette Melntyre, who is student teaching at Astoria High School, views students here as fairly typical middle-class youngsters, such as those in her alma mater, Beaverton High. "They're more aloof," she said. "You're not quite sure where you stand. Sometimes one will say something in a private way."

The student teachers will have taught at both Tongue Point and Astoria schools by the time they leave.

The starting instructors see the Clatsop County experience as valuable because they are exposed to working in both a regular public school system and in a Job Corps Center, with the special problems and challenges presented by the disadvantaged.

Gow McIntyre, coordinator of schools and at Tongue Point, said the program, and the student teacher program as an excellent opportunity for the Astoria area, for two reasons:

—It brings student teachers who have had the latest training in education and education theory.

—It gives area schools the chance to recruit the student teachers for regular jobs later.

McIntyre, a native of Astoria who earned a doctorate degree at the University of Oregon, came an off-campus teacher training center, where student teachers could get experience in public schools and at Tongue Point.

Center Impresses UO President

The new president of the University of Oregon took a look Thursday at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, of which the university is the main operator, and said he was favorably impressed.

"I'm very much impressed with the center and its operations and even more with the City of Astoria and its attitude toward this project," said Clark. "It's quite a feat for such a small community to bring this group of young persons here."

Clark and other UO staff members were at Tongue Point for a reception honoring Clark and his wife, Mrs. Mary Clark. Among those on hand were Ray Hawk, the university's liaison man with Tongue Point, and Wendell Van Loan, the man who directed the center before Dr. Burns and now on the staff of the UO School of Education.

Speaking of the center, Clark said, "I'm pleased with this because it's the kind of social action that a university should be involved in. It's social action and not political action. It's putting knowledge (of a university) to work."

Clark, formerly president of Philco-Ford, which runs the vocational training at Tongue Point, thought highly also of the work at Tongue Point.

UO Prexy
Honored

President Robert Clark of the University of Oregon (left), was honored Thursday at a reception at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. Center Director Dr. Dorothy Burns was on hand to greet the university's new president, along with Wendell Van Loan (right), who was center director before Dr. Burns. Van Loan is now on the UO School of Education faculty. The University of Oregon has a federal contract to run all non-vocational operations at Tongue Point.

The Daily Astorian, Astoria, Oregon, Thursday, October 23, 1969

Student Teachers Have Rewarding Experience

The student teachers working in the city schools, the Astoria schools praise the helpfulness of the Astoria teachers and have good things to say in general about the atmosphere.

Several of the beginning teachers advocate more relations between Astoria students and teachers and those at Tongue Point, remaining on a great deal of ignorance they've noticed on the part of both groups.

Dale Payne, who's teaching sixth grade at Gray School, said he'd noticed that some teachers at Gray were quite unfamiliar with Tongue Point.

Some of the teachers said that because they'd found the corporate women so friendly and responsive in Tongue Point classes, that they wondered whether residents of Astoria had gotten an incorrect impression of the center.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Oct. 23, 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Reception Set For UO Prexy At Tongue Point

The Tongue Point Job Corps Center will stage a reception Thursday evening for President Robert Clark of the University of Oregon and his wife, Mrs. Mary Clark, who will be in town for a brief visit.

The reception is to be from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the institutional arts laboratory, at the center.

The University of Oregon runs all non-vocational operations at Tongue Point under contract from the Federal Government. Other guests expected for the faculty from the University of Oregon and representatives of the Dept. of Labor, Manpower Administration, the State of Oregon and the State of Washington.

Thursday's program will start at 1:30 p.m. in the Center Theater with a review of center's doing with a new film "Tongue Point Today." A reception will conduct tours of the center, starting at 2:30 p.m.

UGN Reaches 55 Per Cent of Goal

The United Good Neighbor Fund Drive has now collected over 55 per cent of the $69,000 goal for the 1969 county-wide drive, according to contribution reports at the UGN luncheon at the YMCA Thursday.

A total of $38,124.58 has now been collected, with the following firms added to 100 per cent firm donation honor roll:

Port of Astoria, Van Dusen Beverage, Northwest Natural Gas, U. S. National Bank of Warrenton and Seaside, Edwin Luoma, CPA, Fisher Bros. Oregon Laundry, the Intermediate Education District, Seaside Public Market, Astoria Apparel, Paramount Drug, Snow's Electric, Consolidated Printing, Hauke's Market, district attorney's office, Hughes-Ransom Mortuary, Builders Supply, City of Astoria and Franz Bakery.

Special recognition went to Bob Chopping for contacting 93 per cent of the firms in his downtown zone and Mrs. Berkeley Snow for contacting 100 per cent in the Arch Cape area zone.

Along with the clearing weather over the weekend cool nights are expected.

Prospects for fair weather over the weekend were held out by forecasts at Clatsop Airport Weather Bureau today.

A ridge of high pressure is building on the coast, weather men said, in the wake of an upper cold low which caused showers Thursday.

The low has drifted down off the Southern Oregon coast and toward Northern California, according to forecasters, and will drift southeast to Nevada by Saturday to cause snow in the Sierra.

Contributions to date turned in by various committees of the campaign are as follows:

Advance Gifts	$2,548.00
Loaned Executives (including Seaside Business)	21,856.00
Retail & Industrial	4,285.00
Public Employees	1,610.00
Professional	830.00
County Communities	745.25
Seaside Retail & Industrial	254.00
Miscellaneous	879.33
Total collected to date	$38,124.58

Fair Weather Is Predicted

Prospects for fair weather over the weekend were held out by forecasts at Clatsop Airport Weather Bureau today.

A ridge of high pressure is building on the coast, weather men said, in the wake of an upper cold low which caused showers Thursday.

Ernie Garcia president of UGN, was in charge of the luncheon as Bill Barnes, campaign chairman, was out of town on business.

The UGN luncheon was served by the women of the American Red Cross at the 'Y' in a buffet style with over 30 people attending.

October 10-3-69
TONGUE POINT WIVES
GIVE FAREWELL LUNCH
Staff wives of Tongue Point Job Corps Center held a farewell luncheon Tuesday at Thel's restaurant for Mrs. Sydney Thompson wife of the assistant director at the center, who will be moving to Salem. There were 23 present for the occasion, during which the staff wives presented Mrs. Thompson with a farewell gift.

100 Per Cent
UGN Donation

"Shoot for the Moon" is the theme of the United Good Neighbor fund drive at the Tongue Point Job Corps and Residence Four with 240 girls has given 100 per cent to the UGN fund drive as of this morning. The average donation to the fund drive by the Job Corps women has been one-fifth of their monthly salary. Yvette Kennedy of Residence Three who collected 55 per cent of the donations in her residence, congratulates Dora Garces for collecting 100 per cent of the donation in Residence Four. Not pictured, but who also has collected 55 per cent of the donations in Residence One, is Liz Washington.

ASTHETIC CITY

In answer to an earlier letter of Oct. 15 which was forwarded to the editor, I am sorry to hear that you are not getting the service at this point, but please let me know how the health unit is keeping the family. I hope to be in the middle of the road.

I am glad to hear that you are getting the service at this point, but please let me know how the health unit is keeping the family. I hope to be in the middle of the road.

The fact to remember, however, is that the unit is not a permanent one. It is a temporary measure to help the family. I am glad to hear that you are getting the service at this point, but please let me know how the health unit is keeping the family. I hope to be in the middle of the road.

To Mrs. Taylor's letter: Tongue Point Job Corps Center has given the following reply: Every Corpsman coming to Tongue Point is required to take certain basic education classes. This is a requirement of the Federal Government. The classes are: English, Math, Reading, and Social Studies. These classes are required for all Corpsmen, regardless of their previous education.

The matter of having control over the classes is a matter of the Federal Government. The classes are required for all Corpsmen, regardless of their previous education. The matter of having control over the classes is a matter of the Federal Government.

Oregon vs. Washington October 25, 1969 Astoria Stadium, Portland THE TONGUE POINT STORY

Ophelia Watson is 17 and black. She has lived all her life on a farm in Georgia with her mother, her aunt, her grandmother and her two sisters. The estimated family income for these six people is $2,400 a year. Her father lives in Chicago. His daughter pays frequent visits to him there.

Ophelia is intelligent. National test scores rank her above the 75th percentile. But she is a high school dropout. A child, Angela, interrupted her class schedule during her junior year, but Ophelia has guts and ambition. She wants her high school diploma, and she wants a job.

Applied Through WICS
Her social worker suggested she look into the Job Corps program. She did, she applied through the Job Corps volunteer screening agency, the WICS (Women in Community Service). After the "Wics Lady" made sure that Ophelia's daughter would be well taken care of in her mother's absence, she was accepted. She was assigned to the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Astoria.

Sporting the "natural" hair-do which is so much a part of her identity now, Ophelia entered Tongue Point on one of its depressing rainy days with a husband of other new girls, or "inputs," drove through the security gate, passed by the Center's theater, the infirmary, the administration building, and delighted at the residences scattered in among basic and vocational education facilities. This was to be her home for a while, possibly as long as two years.

Big Sister
There she met her "big sister," or corpswoman advisor, who showed her the Center, got her to her medical and dental appointments, to the briefings about student activities and to

Clatsop Courier

Volume 4, No. 2 CLATSOP COMMUNITY COLLEGE, ASTORIA, OREGON October 30, 1969

Los Angeles, Calif.
Southwest Journal
(Cir. W 47,500)

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job corps center honors local coed

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

s Friday--Vote

committee--Debbie Alexander, Kathy Craft, Charles Crow, Dave Gosser, voc-tech representative--Dennis Love, and liberal arts representative--Bob Golden.

"Twice As Scared" Job Corps, College Take A Look At Each Other

By Linda G. Green
From all over America come girls to Tongue Pt. Job Corps and some of them go part-time to Clatsop College as well. How do they feel about Clatsop?

"We're a small group coming into a large group," said Sherlyn O'Neil, Illinois, "and we're twice as afraid as they are."

"We need better relations between college and Job Corps so that you can mix and say what you want without people looking at you as being from the Job Corps. For example, the first day of class last year, the teacher went down the row and said, 'Oh, you're George, and you're Bob, and aren't you the girl from the Job Corps?' and then went on down the line."

Sherlyn is taking algebra and U.S. history and describes college as an "unique experience."

She hopes to go to University of Oregon in June.

Another Tongue Pt. student, Gwen Nealous, Georgia, calls Clatsop "a beginning, an opportunity. I didn't come here to change anything. I came here to learn--and that's what I'm doing."

She feels that the related atmosphere of after-school activities would help bring together Job Corps and college students.

For at school, people are naturally shy. She explains, "I'd feel silly just plopping my books down by you and maybe you'd get up and walk away." This point was stressed by both

State Education Board Meets Here Wednesday

The State Board of Education met in session Wednesday night to get primary and secondary schools' opinion on and community colleges' opinion on the what kind of educational programs residents want in their school and community colleges.

The session will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Clatsop Community College Auditorium.

The state board is having a series of meetings around the state to get the opinion of the public on the state's educational system.

The board is made up of 15 members, including the superintendent of public instruction, the state board of education, and the state board of community colleges.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational policy and for approving the state's budget for education.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational standards and for approving the state's curriculum.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational goals and for approving the state's educational plan.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational priorities and for approving the state's educational strategy.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational policies and for approving the state's educational regulations.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational procedures and for approving the state's educational methods.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational standards and for approving the state's educational curriculum.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational goals and for approving the state's educational plan.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational priorities and for approving the state's educational strategy.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational policies and for approving the state's educational regulations.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational procedures and for approving the state's educational methods.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational standards and for approving the state's educational curriculum.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational goals and for approving the state's educational plan.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational priorities and for approving the state's educational strategy.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational policies and for approving the state's educational regulations.

The board is also responsible for setting the state's educational procedures and for approving the state's educational methods.

Job corps center honors local coed

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

James Watson, Jr., a student at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, has been named the winner of the Corps Woman-of-the-Month award at Tongue Point Job Corps Center for women, Astoria, Oregon.

NOV 1 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Oregon Gets $1.4 Million Center Program

The Portland School District training program operated by a local school district, Norman Hamilton, assistant superintendent of the Portland School District, announced that the Portland School Board will meet Monday to discuss the agreement and sign the federal contract with the county metropolitan area, which will be in effect for the next five years. The school, which will be located for a major part of the power center, will be based in the facilities used by the former school, which will be called Springdale Farm. Mrs. Green said the Department of Labor approval of the project is the big major hurdle in a long campaign she has conducted to make the school boards responsible for Job Corps training programs.

The girls in the program will be housed at the Victoria Hotel in downtown Portland, while the boys will be residents of the Springdale Farm. The school has been vacant for five or six years. It has a dormitory, gymnasium and classroom and can handle 100 students and 10 day students.

Mrs. Green said she did not know of any effect the new program would have on the Tongue Point Job Corps Center or the various large centers like Tongue Point have been phased out elsewhere in the nation, and I couldn't say whether the

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 9777)

DEC 9 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

League of Women Voters Slates Panel on Poverty, Discrimination

Poverty and discrimination and Robert Morrison. The moderator will be Mrs. Rod Macdonald.

Panelists have had experience in various efforts to solve problems of poverty and discrimination. Mrs. Morrison is known professionally as Jane Stevenson, a local author playwright and novelist. She taught for a year in a predominantly black college in the south and has written an article based on this experience which appeared in the recent issue of The Atlantic Monthly.

Benson Rothen is a counselor and teacher of psychology at Astoria High School. He has had experience in the development of a poverty program in Portland.

Mrs. Lindstrom is a member of the League of Women Voters and vice-president of the Tongue Point Community Relations Council. She has given considerable time in volunteer work with the Job Corps girls at Tongue Point.

William Berg is a health educator for the Clatsop County Health Department. Robert Morrison is manager of the Astoria branch of the Oregon State Employment Office.

The League of Women Voters has an advisory stand in support of legislation designed to bring out equality of opportunity for education, employment, and using for all persons in the state. Members of the local Clatsop County League will be public to attend this meeting on Wednesday evening 8 to 9 p.m. at the Clatsop County Courthouse. The meeting will follow the presentation by the panel.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 9777)

DEC 11 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Hospitals and institutions in North West Oregon will enjoy a special musical Christmas program prepared by Margie Huba, Miss Oregon and a number of TP Job Corps girls.

Rev. Richard Knoll, pastor of the Congregational Church of Christ, has been elected president of the TP Community Relations Council. Other officers and executive committee members are Mrs. White, Richard Jones, Bill Van Dusen, Judge Harold T. Johnson, and Frank Melstrey.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 9777)

DEC 3 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Tongue Pt. Plans Center

Officials at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center are looking for "future" the recreation center-long that is being developed at the center, in Ponderosa Hall, near the main entrance gate.

Jim Cameron, community relations director at Tongue Point, said Tuesday night that persons having furniture they don't mind parting with are invited to call him at Tongue Point. He said items needed include sofas, tables, lamps and straight chairs.

Ted Thompson, director of maintenance, told members of the Tongue Point Community Relations Council that buildings in Ponderosa, the first building on the left going through the main gate, are being removed for the recreation center.

Tongue Point officials said they thought that the recreation facility would help alleviate the friction which sometimes occurs when large numbers of corpsmen congregate near the downtown social center, at Duane and 14th.

Shirley Allen, chief student government officer, said the new center facility would give corpsmen something to be proud of and instead that other Job Corps centers have such facilities. She said she thought that some trouble that occurs downtown in the evenings would be lessened by the new center.

Miss Allen gave much credit for the recent center project to John Eklund, newly named project manager in the Job Corps Field Operations Division.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 9777)

NOV 1 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

3 Get New Posts at Job Corps

Three changes in staff positions at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center were announced today by Dr. Dorothy Burns, center director.

William D. Hawks, supervisor of the basic education program since August, 1968, has been named associate director of basic education. Hawks came to Tongue Point after serving for three years as principal of Powell Middle School in Trinitas. Prior to that he had been an instructor in social problems at Benson High School in Portland.

Hawks attended Clatsop Community College and Portland State University and has his BA from the latter school.

The other two staff changes that become effective immediately are in the major program area of center life, one of the largest departments at Tongue Point.

William Patterson, who has been instructing in the mathematics department, will assume the newly created position of assistant associate director of residential management. Patterson's area of supervision will include the activities after regularly scheduled classes.

WILLIAM HAWKS

Patterson received his BA from Willamette University and has done graduate work at both Willamette University and University of Washington in mathematics and business. His previous teaching experience has included work at Cathlamet High School, in Mt. Edgemoor, Alaska, and the Chemawa Indian School.

George Miller was named assistant associate director of the center. His duties will include coordination of the activities of the counselors in each of the five residences at Tongue Point.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 9777)

NOV 1 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps tells staff changes at TP center

Three changes in the staff positions at the Tongue Point Job Corps center were announced by Dr. Dorothy Burns, center director.

William D. Hawks, who has been supervisor of the basic education program since August, 1968, has been promoted to associate director of basic education. Hawks came to Tongue Point after serving Below are excerpts from a story by Mrs. Pat Cary Ylvisaker of Eugene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cary of Prairie City, which appeared recently in the Eugene Register-Guard. Mrs. Ylvisaker recalls experiences she had while completing requirements for an Experienced Teacher Fellowship. She spent three weeks at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center for Women, teaching the girls and learning from them.

"From the first moment, there seemed to be feelings of anxiety in the air among the administration about how long the school for over 600 girls will be in existence.

"Homesickness and loneliness drift over the classrooms and dorms like a thick Astoria fog. The girls miss their father, mother, sister or boy friend. They also miss their own children. Many of the young women have a child or more, usually between a few months to 3 years old. These children are cared for by parents, sisters and aunts.

"For some girls, their child is a painful secret to be confided only to trusted people. Often they refuse to take part in discussions about child care, and hate to even look at a baby or small child.

"Experiences with drugs, abortion and other social problems are common. Most of the girls have been exposed, either directly or indirectly, to these things. When girls discuss such questions as, 'Does acid really eat up your brain?' 'How harmful is alcohol when you're pregnant?' 'Will drinking castor oil cause you to miscarry?' they teach themselves.

"When one teenager tells about a sister who took acid and is now in a mental hospital, her voice breaks and her eyes dart to the floor for comfort. The other girls get a glimpse of the heartache drugs can cause. There is nothing the teacher can do to make it more clear.

"And every time I recall those earnest voices saying, 'When I pass my GED,' or 'When I finish my vocational course in business machines, cooking, nurses aide, etc.' I can't help saying a quiet prayer that the world doesn't let these girls down again.

John Day, Oregon
Blue Mountain Eagle
(Cir. W. 2,426)

NOV 27 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Ex-Prairie City Student Looks In On Job Corps

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Her husband, Allen, is a real estate appraiser for the City of Eugene, where the couple lives.

Mrs. Ylvisaker, a 1968 graduate of Prairie City High School, now attends the University of Oregon on a fellowship and is working toward a master's degree. She taught at Creswell before starting her advanced schooling.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 9777)

NOV 24 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Corpswoman Hurt In Overturned Car

A Tongue Point Job Corpswoman suffered serious lacerations when the car in which she was riding overturned at 15th and Irving Sunday at 6:58 p.m.

The 21-year-old woman, identified as Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

Loretta Morrison, 15th and Irving, was taken to the hospital and later transferred to the infirmary at Tongue Point.

WILLIAM D. HAWKS
Promoted at center

for three years at principal of Powell Middle School in Trinitas. Prior to that he had been an instructor in social problems at Benson High School in Portland.

Hawks attended Clatsop Community College and Portland State University and has his BA from PSU.

The other two staff changes that become effective immediately are in the major program area of center life, one of the largest departments at Tongue Point.

William Patterson, who has been instructing in the mathematics department, will assume the newly created position of assistant associate director of residential management. Patterson's area of supervision will include the activities of the counselors in each of the five residences at Tongue Point.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Pearl says survival impossible unless 'Vietnam mentality' goes

By HENRY WILLIS
Of the Register-Guard

Democratic presidential candidate Arthur Pearl said today in Eugene that the only chance left to the United States "is to make a radical change in the way we live, to conserve life or to let them totally wipe out."

Speaking to a predominantly student audience at Lane Community College, Pearl said there is no middle ground between the alternative choices he cited.

"The money which is so desperately needed to attack the current ecological misadventure is being blown up in Vietnam and used in a Vietnam mentality," he said. "We can't survive if we continue to destroy our environment and to disrupt the ecological balance. We've got to decide whether it will be life or death."

Pearl blamed the Vietnam war on draining the resources needed to combat hunger, pollution, poverty and other social problems.

"There are a hundred people who will die in the world this year and some 2 billion will go to bed tonight undernourished," Pearl said.

"We're living the times necessary for a new air, water and food system — we're spending a year on the moon and a billion on an experimental helicopter on a moon shot, on a space program of questionable need," he said.

"In addition to allowing what he called 'the total waste' in Vietnam, Pearl said the Nixon administration's war policies are increasing inflation.

"Not only is the war illegal and immoral, it is also uneconomic," he said.

"A war economy is always inflationary because it continues to put money into wages with no corresponding input into goods and services," he said. "It's difficult for a citizen to buy a B2."

Pearl said the President could institute controls on profits, wages and prices to help curb inflation. "But if he did that, there wouldn't be any support at all for this war. If you took the profits out of the war and initiated rationing among the citizenry, how many people do you think would support the war then?"

Pearl said the war is especially harmful to Oregon since the inflation it has caused has sharply cut homebuilding.

"Tax rates and interest rates keep climbing, both of which cut back homebuilding and construction, and these are vital facets of Oregon's economy," Pearl said.

Pearl also said states such as Oregon need to turn their attention toward stopping pollution, toward developing long-range plans for adequate living space and toward developing the "farming potential" of the oceans.

"Our overused rivers are polluted, our air is being destroyed by field burning and auto and industrial pollution and our space will soon be used up or converted over," he said. He suggested the need for long-range plans for building new cities east of the Cascades and also called for the Tongue Point Job Corps Center in Astoria to be turned into "a university of sea research."

"All of these things cost immense amounts of money, and until we admit our mistakes and get out of Vietnam as soon as possible, the money is being wasted," he said.

Pearl said the U.S. should withdraw its troops from Vietnam immediately. "Let's admit we blew it, that we made a mistake, that we're wrong. Everybody else already knows we're wrong."

He said the peace keeping in Vietnam should be turned over to a multi-lateral force. "This means the United Nations which we helped create, but which we're destroying by our own unilateral actions," he said.

"We've just got to get away from a foreign policy based on the fraudulent claim that we need to militarily contain Communism," he said. "Our enemy is poverty, pollution, racism."

He denied, in response to a question, that withdrawing from Vietnam would lead the U.S. into isolationism.

"I don't consider helping people feed themselves or helping them control their population or helping them keep the poisons out of their air, their water and their oceans as an isolationist policy," Pearl said.

WILLIAM D. HAWKS
Promoted at center

for three years at principal of Powell Middle School in Trinitas. Prior to that he had been an instructor in social problems at Benson High School in Portland.

Hawks attended Clatsop Community College and Portland State University and has his BA from PSU.

The other two staff changes that become effective immediately are in the major program area of center life, one of the largest departments at Tongue Point.

William Patterson, who has been instructing in the mathematics department, will assume the newly created position of assistant associate director of residential management. Patterson's area of supervision will include the activities of the counselors in each of the five residences at Tongue Point.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

WILLIAM D. HAWKS
Promoted at center

for three years at principal of Powell Middle School in Trinitas. Prior to that he had been an instructor in social problems at Benson High School in Portland.

Hawks attended Clatsop Community College and Portland State University and has his BA from PSU.

The other two staff changes that become effective immediately are in the major program area of center life, one of the largest departments at Tongue Point.

William Patterson, who has been instructing in the mathematics department, will assume the newly created position of assistant associate director of residential management. Patterson's area of supervision will include the activities of the counselors in each of the five residences at Tongue Point.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Miller came to Tongue Point from Kootenai, Idaho, where he was resident supervisor for the Cedar Flat Job Corps Center. His educational background includes a BS in psychology from the University of Idaho and an MS in guidance and counseling from the same institution.

Variety Show Slated at JCC

Professional entertainers from Hollywood will make up the cast of the Department of Labor Variety Show that will play at the Tongue Point Theater on Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Buddy Hughes, magician and comedian, Betty Gouche, pianist and Gene Edwards, musician will provide the hour's entertainment. The show will be a series of short acts, each of which will be a variety of the best of the variety show.

The show will be a series of short acts, each of which will be a variety of the best of the variety show.

Residential Living Being Given Emphasis for Job Corps Centers

By MIKE FORRESTER
Daily Astorian Editor

The director of the Tongue Point Job Corps says emphasis is clearly being put by the U. S. Dept. of Labor on residential living in the department's overall view of the Job Corps.

Dr. Dorothy Burns told members of the Tongue Point Community Relations Council Tuesday night she thinks that funding of individual Job Corps operations around the country will be influenced by how well the Corps centers are doing in their residential living programs.

By residential living, Dr. Burns referred to the counseling and social and cultural development of trainees. She said this would include "cultural and community enrichment," or the interaction of corpswomen and residents of the area.

Strong Program

Dr. Burns said Job Corps officials have told Tongue Point that it has a strong community relations program. She stressed that that emphasis is placing the although people at Tongue Point said the Astoria area knew that there are problems in Tongue Point community relations.

The director said that Tongue Point suffers from a serious associate director for center life and George Miller, assistant associate director for center life in counseling, would soon go to Washington, D. C., for a meeting on set-backs for center life.

Dr. Burns said one of the problems in running a successful center life program is when trainees develop their own social activities, as having enough staff time for supervision. She said staff members now put in much of their time at the center, working with corpswomen. One problem with this, she said, is that many simply cannot endure the demands of time and involvement, leading to high staff turnover.

The Tongue Point official said that Job Corps director William Mirengoff, who recently visited Tongue Point, seemed to favor residential centers, since trainees live at the center where they are trained, as opposed to day centers which require daily commuting.

Schools Adopt

Dr. Burns said some school systems and the military are adopting some Job Corps instructional methods. She said individualized instruction and supervised job experience and placement. She said the training of Air Force trainees at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, borrows heavily from Job Corps methods.

She said job placement in Job Corps is up about 10 per cent from last at Tongue Point and in the Corps nationally.

The Tongue Point director said persons who want to be corpswomen during the Christmas holidays are invited to get in touch with the community relations office, at the center.

She said some 760 corpswomen are on the center now with more expected next week. Between 400 and 500 will be at Tongue Point during the holiday period, she said, receiving regular instruction.

Jim Cameron, community relations director, said that any churches interested in having corpswomen sing at Christmas services should call him to arrange it.

On another subject, Cameron said Tongue Point corpswomen and corporamen at Angel Job Corps Center, Newport, are rehearsing to present the play "In White America." He said the drama, which documents the history of Blacks in this country, will be presented at both Corps centers and, perhaps, in Astoria.

Shirley Allen, head of the student government, said corpswomen were trying to round up help for Alma Gultum, a woman confined to bed who wants to repair jewelry. She invited persons having jewelry the woman could work on to call the community relations office.

Miss Allen also said the corpswomen had decided they may visit the White Shield home for moved mothers, in Portland, during the holidays.

Unfriendly?

She said that some of the corpswomen who have been at Tongue Point for a while are critical of Astoria residents

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

DEC 1 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Why I Am Thankful, Job Corps

Tongue Point Job Corps is a way to pull ourselves out of the hole so many of us seem to drop ourselves into. We can be thankful that a way out is through Job Corps.

Since it's the time of year that reminds us that there is so much to be thankful for—and so many of us need reminding—let's be thankful.

WHY I AM THANKFUL, JOB CORPS

Why does a person quit high school? There are, of course, many reasons. Usually at the time it seems the right thing to do. A person can't wait to get out on their own and make all that money and have all that fun.

Then reality sets in. Jobs aren't that easy to find unless you don't mind washing dishes or sweeping floors. That nice apartment you were going to have usually ends up as one room in the basement with the bathroom down the hall.

Pretty soon you realize you're trapped. It's too late now to wish you hadn't quit school. Any money you have is going to have to keep a roof over your head and food in your mouth. In this going to be your whole life?

It won't have to be. We can be thankful we live in a country that does care about its youth. We can be thankful there

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

DEC 3 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

New Astoria Couple Began Romance in India

By WILLIAM BONSAITI
Of The Daily Astorian

A romance which began half-way around the world in India one and a half years ago culminated in the Nov. 22 wedding in Portland of George and Diane Jeffcott, new Astoria residents.

Jeffcott is employed at Transamerica Title Insurance Co., his wife is a cooking instructor at Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

The couple met at a 4th of July party in 1968 in the Bombay area where both were serving as Peace Corps volunteers.

Diane, 24, went to India in January, 1967, after graduation from Arizona State University in Tempe. Trained as a home economist, she worked in Bangalore, a village of 8,000, in rural public health, family planning and mother and child health.

About 300 miles away, George Jeffcott, 26, who went to India in January, 1967, after graduating from University of Oregon with a bachelor of science degree in cartography, was teaching farmers in the village of Sangon to grow hybrid crops and use fertilizers and insecticides.

The Jeffcotts still compare notes on their experiences in India and what they believe they accomplished as Peace Corps volunteers.

"One of my jobs was to persuade women to have sterilization surgery," commented Diane. "Maybe I persuaded 20 women to have the surgery. Compared to the annual birth rate in India, that's just a drop in the bucket."

Backyard Farmer

Jeffcott, a "backyard farmer" who had studied soil science in college, has more confidence in the impact of his work. "I think farmers planting hybrid grain I was successful in getting them to grow on five acres. The instructor. I started out with five next year there were 100 acres

Diane (in sari) and George Jeffcott Hang Indian Rug on Wall

Wedding Ceremony Held in Hawaii

The Kawaiahae Church in Honolulu, Hawaii, was the evening setting of the wedding of Pamela Ickes and Lester Kent Allen in November.

Miss Ickes is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Ickes of Nampa, Ida., and Allen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester C. Allen, of Nampa.

The two ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Abraham K. Akaka. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a simple white street length dress with sweetheart neckline. The bride and groom exchanged lavender baby orchid leis at the closing of the wedding service.

The bride's parents served as best man and matron of honor for the wedding wearing plum-colored leis.

Following the ceremony the newlyweds had dinner at a Hawaiian restaurant during a Hawaiian show.

The couple honeymooned on the Hawaiian Islands where Allen is on leave from Vietnam. His tour of duty will end in January 1970, and then the couple plan on making their home in Idaho.

The new Mrs. Allen is a graduate of the University of Rochester, and is now employed at the Tongue Point Job Corps center as a registered nurse in the infirmary.

Allen attended Whitworth College in Spokane and is currently serving in the Army in Vietnam.

MR. AND MRS. LESTER KENT ALLEN

Should Help

Setting up a social-recreation center at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center should, as Tongue Point officials have said, alleviate some of the friction that has occurred in downtown Astoria.

The congregation of Tongue Point Point girls, and their companions, around the social center at Duane and 14th has caused criticism from some Astorians. The fact is that the girls like to get away from the base to come to town, but Astoria is not a big city and doesn't offer much to them, so their congregating in the middle of town makes them conspicuous.

On this subject of Tongue Point-community relations, The Daily Astorian urges townspeople to visit the Job Corps center sometime to meet the girls and staff and see what's going on. It's interesting and important work about which most people know little.

SINGS FOR TRAINEES

Rev. Warren Campbell, who sings negro spirituals with all the warmth and tenderness they were originated with will sing at Tongue Point this Thursday evening at 7:30 in a special program at the base. The public is invited. There will be no admission charge.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

DEC 5 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

DEC 5 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Should Help

Setting up a social-recreation center at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center should, as Tongue Point officials have said, alleviate some of the friction that has occurred in downtown Astoria.

The congregation of Tongue Point Point girls, and their companions, around the social center at Duane and 14th has caused criticism from some Astorians. The fact is that the girls like to get away from the base to come to town, but Astoria is not a big city and doesn't offer much to them, so their congregating in the middle of town makes them conspicuous.

On this subject of Tongue Point-community relations, The Daily Astorian urges townspeople to visit the Job Corps center sometime to meet the girls and staff and see what's going on. It's interesting and important work about which most people know little.

The Rev. Warren Campbell, of Sacramento, will present a film "Fast Way Nowhere," tonight at the Tongue Point Job Corps Auditorium. The Rev. Mr. Campbell is a vocalist and will have piano accompaniment from Betty Jane Phillips. The film is described as one of main interest to youth. The program, starting at 7:30 p.m., is open to the public.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
Cir. D 7577

DEC 5 - 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Miss Oregon, Job Corps Girls to Give Program

Miss Oregon, Margie Hubbs of Salem, and 14 Tongue Point Job Corps girls are rehearsing a Christmas musical program, which they will present in hospitals and other institutions in western Oregon during the holiday season.

Jim Cameron, community relations director at Tongue Point, said Tuesday night that Miss Hubbs and the corpswomen are rehearsing Christmas carols, popular songs and children's numbers for presentation in Portland, the Willamette Valley and in Clatsop County.

Among the institutions scheduled so far for the musical program are:

St. Mary Hospital, Columbia Hospital and Crestview Nursing home, all in Astoria; St. Mary's Home for Boys and the Multnomah County Hospital, both in Portland; Fairview Hospital for the Mentally Retarded, the Oregon State Prison and the State Mental Hospital, all in Salem, and the Angel Job Corps Center, Newport.

Cameron said officials of the state prison told him that the Tongue Point show had been the only Christmas program scheduled for the prison.

Church Women United Discuss Center

Projects available for community cooperation and participation were presented by Jim Huhta, and the Tongue Point Center to the Church Women United executive council at their meeting recently.

Plans were discussed concerning a special community-Tongue Point night, Dec. 30, which has been arranged for the girls at Tongue Point and the residents of the Astoria area. The center will be served in the cafeteria with a small charge for the full dinner. This will be for adults and children and families are urged to participate. The entertainment after the dinner will feature Miss Oregon, Marjorie Huhta, and the Tongue Point girls who have prepared a show to be given in various locations during the holidays.

During the holidays and on weekends, invitations may be extended to the girls for visitations in homes. This could be for dinner, a special activity with the family, or for a weekend. A recreation center is in the process of being completed at the center. This project consists of redoing one of the existing buildings. There is a need for furniture such as chairs, sofas, lamps, or end tables that would be suitable for the recreation center. That furniture need not be new but should be in usable condition. Those items will be picked up at a home by someone from Tongue Point. Also, magazines, puzzles and games would be appreciated.

Community Night

For more information about the planned community-Tongue Point night, home visitations for the girls, or furnishings for the recreation center, call Cameron at Tongue Point.

The Community Center in downtown Astoria is now being operated on a volunteer individual basis rather than by each church being responsible for a week of supplying hostesses.

The volunteers represent the various churches that belong to Church Women United. Each church has been asked to contribute $3.50 for coffee and supplies to be used at the Community Center. This amount will cover the expenses through the month of June. The money may be sent to the treasurer, Mrs. James A. Riggs, Rt. 2, Box 30A, Astoria.

The Migrant and Indian work, a concern of Church Women

United for 1970, was briefly presented and will be discussed further at the next meeting in January.

Institutions To Be Given Yule Sounds

The sounds of Christmas will be brought to three state institutions in Salem by a musical group headed by Miss Oregon, Astoria's Margie Huhta, Miss Oregon of 1969, organized the singing group, composed of eight girls from Tongue Point Job Corps Center at Astoria. It will perform Monday at Fairview Hospital and the State Penitentiary, and Tuesday at the State Penitentiary.

Appearances also are planned at several other institutions in Western Oregon. "Soul Christmas" is the program theme. Miss Huhta conceived the idea, collected the material and auditioned the cast. She and Sharon Barst of Roseburg are the only Oregonians in the program.

The group's M. 1000 and 1100 includes a 1:30 p.m. program at Fairview and 7:30 p.m. at the State Hospital. Two programs are planned Tuesday at the prison — at 6 and 7 p.m.

Social Center

Youth Corps In County

BY ALLINE MOORE
NYC Supervisor

The Neighborhood Youth Corps Program in Clatsop County is sponsored by Oregon State University through the Cooperative Extension Service. There are two parts to the program. The first part is the Youth Corps Youth Center. The purpose of NYC is to help youth from low-income families to continue their education and to receive on-the-job training. The Youth Center offers work ten hours a week and most stay in school. The Youth Corps Youth Center is located at 17th Street and 10th Avenue. The Youth Corps Youth Center is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is open to all youth from 16 to 17 years old who have not completed previous training. The Youth Corps Youth Center is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is open to all youth from 16 to 17 years old who have not completed previous training.

Public Bid To Party By Job Corps

The public is invited to a Christmas party at Tongue Point Job Corps Center Tuesday evening. The party will be held in the center's dining hall and a performance by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta, and her Tongue Point friends will be featured. The party will be held in the center's dining hall and a performance by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta, and her Tongue Point friends will be featured.

The dinner is to start at 5:30 p.m., at the cafeteria near the center administration building. Miss Huhta and the corpswomen ensemble will sing.

Hostesses for the dinner will be corpswomen in the food services occupations curriculum under the direction of Jim Bowd.

The Rev. Richard Koell, of the First Congregational United Church of Christ, Astoria, is president of the Community Relations Council.

Christmas Party The public is invited to a Christmas party tonight at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The party will be held in the center's dining hall and a performance by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta, and her Tongue Point friends will be featured.

Tongue Point Lounge Opening Set Wednesday

Mayor Harry Steinbock and City Manager Dale Curry will assist the staff and Corpswomen with the ribbon cutting for the opening of the new Ponderosa Lounge at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center at 7 p.m. on Christmas Eve. Local residents are invited to attend the program for the opening of the new recreation facility.

The Ponderosa building on the center, which has remained unused since the closing of the men's center in 1967, has been given a new look by the maintenance department of the Job Corps, under the supervision of Ted Thompson. Partitions that once formed rooms have been removed, in order to create a large recreation area. The Corpswomen's Student Government took on the project of furnishing the carpeting and draperies. Contributions of furnishings have been received from residents of Clatsop County, and these have been augmented by furnishings from various office desks on the base.

The Christmas Eve program for the opening of the new lounge will include musical and comedy acts with corpswomen and staff participating. Mr. Virgil Savage, supervisor of the Ponderosa building, will tell the Christmas story and offer a Christmas prayer. In the comedy line, business and clerical occupations supervisor Lynn Morey and counselor Vivian Schnell will parody the "Twelve Days of Christmas" with "My Ten Months at Tongue Point" and Jim and Ginne Cameron will present a revue sketch. The women, Gloria Coleman, Helen Hawkins, and Dr. Sue's story of "How the 'Linch' Sole Christmas" musical portions of the program will include songs by Miss A. Jeanette Smith, and Miss Roberta Kelly and Christmas carols by Gene Fleming, of the music department, and his family.

The dinner is to start at 5:30 p.m., at the cafeteria near the center administration building. Miss Huhta and the corpswomen ensemble will sing.

Hostesses for the dinner will be corpswomen in the food services occupations curriculum under the direction of Jim Bowd.

The Rev. Richard Koell, of the First Congregational United Church of Christ, Astoria, is president of the Community Relations Council.

Christmas Party The public is invited to a Christmas party tonight at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The party will be held in the center's dining hall and a performance by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta, and her Tongue Point friends will be featured.

New Job Corps recreation area has big opening

Mayor Harry Steinbock and City Manager Dale Curry of Astoria assisted the staff and Corpswomen with the ribbon cutting for the opening of the new Ponderosa Lounge at the Tongue Point Job Corps center on Christmas eve at 7 p.m. Local residents were invited to attend the program for the opening of the new recreation facility.

The Ponderosa building, which has been unused since the closing of the men's center in 1967, was given a new look by the maintenance department under the supervision of Ted Thompson. Partitions that formed dormitory rooms were removed to create a large recreation area. Student government took on the project of furnishing the carpeting and draperies. Contributions of furnishings were received from residents of the county. There were augmented by furnishings from various office areas on the base.

The Christmas Eve program included musical and comedy acts, with Corpswomen and staff participating. Virgil Savage, supervisor of Ponderosa residence hall, told the Christmas story and offered a Christmas prayer. In the comedy line, business and clerical occupations supervisor Lynn Morey and counselor Vivian Schnell parodied the "Twelve Days of Christmas" with "My Ten Months at Tongue Point." Jim and Ginne Cameron presented a revue sketch. Gloria Coleman and Helen Hawkins, Corpswomen, read the Dr. Sue's story of "How the 'Linch' Sole Christmas." Musical portions of the program will include songs by Miss A. Jeanette Smith and Roberta Kelly and Christmas carols by Gene Fleming, of the music department, and his family.

The dinner is to start at 5:30 p.m., at the cafeteria near the center administration building. Miss Huhta and the corpswomen ensemble will sing.

Hostesses for the dinner will be corpswomen in the food services occupations curriculum under the direction of Jim Bowd.

The Rev. Richard Koell, of the First Congregational United Church of Christ, Astoria, is president of the Community Relations Council.

Christmas Party The public is invited to a Christmas party tonight at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The party will be held in the center's dining hall and a performance by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta, and her Tongue Point friends will be featured.

Job Corps Christmas

Mayor Harry Steinbock and City Manager Dale Curry of Astoria assisted the staff and Corpswomen with the ribbon cutting for the opening of the new Ponderosa Lounge at the Tongue Point Job Corps center on Christmas eve at 7 p.m. Local residents were invited to attend the program for the opening of the new recreation facility.

The Ponderosa building, which has been unused since the closing of the men's center in 1967, was given a new look by the maintenance department under the supervision of Ted Thompson. Partitions that formed dormitory rooms were removed to create a large recreation area. Student government took on the project of furnishing the carpeting and draperies. Contributions of furnishings were received from residents of the county. There were augmented by furnishings from various office areas on the base.

The Christmas Eve program included musical and comedy acts, with Corpswomen and staff participating. Virgil Savage, supervisor of Ponderosa residence hall, told the Christmas story and offered a Christmas prayer. In the comedy line, business and clerical occupations supervisor Lynn Morey and counselor Vivian Schnell parodied the "Twelve Days of Christmas" with "My Ten Months at Tongue Point." Jim and Ginne Cameron presented a revue sketch. Gloria Coleman and Helen Hawkins, Corpswomen, read the Dr. Sue's story of "How the 'Linch' Sole Christmas." Musical portions of the program will include songs by Miss A. Jeanette Smith and Roberta Kelly and Christmas carols by Gene Fleming, of the music department, and his family.

The dinner is to start at 5:30 p.m., at the cafeteria near the center administration building. Miss Huhta and the corpswomen ensemble will sing.

Hostesses for the dinner will be corpswomen in the food services occupations curriculum under the direction of Jim Bowd.

The Rev. Richard Koell, of the First Congregational United Church of Christ, Astoria, is president of the Community Relations Council.

Christmas Party The public is invited to a Christmas party tonight at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The party will be held in the center's dining hall and a performance by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta, and her Tongue Point friends will be featured.

Job Corps Christmas

Mayor Harry Steinbock and City Manager Dale Curry of Astoria assisted the staff and Corpswomen with the ribbon cutting for the opening of the new Ponderosa Lounge at the Tongue Point Job Corps center on Christmas eve at 7 p.m. Local residents were invited to attend the program for the opening of the new recreation facility.

The Ponderosa building, which has been unused since the closing of the men's center in 1967, was given a new look by the maintenance department under the supervision of Ted Thompson. Partitions that formed dormitory rooms were removed to create a large recreation area. Student government took on the project of furnishing the carpeting and draperies. Contributions of furnishings were received from residents of the county. There were augmented by furnishings from various office areas on the base.

The Christmas Eve program included musical and comedy acts, with Corpswomen and staff participating. Virgil Savage, supervisor of Ponderosa residence hall, told the Christmas story and offered a Christmas prayer. In the comedy line, business and clerical occupations supervisor Lynn Morey and counselor Vivian Schnell parodied the "Twelve Days of Christmas" with "My Ten Months at Tongue Point." Jim and Ginne Cameron presented a revue sketch. Gloria Coleman and Helen Hawkins, Corpswomen, read the Dr. Sue's story of "How the 'Linch' Sole Christmas." Musical portions of the program will include songs by Miss A. Jeanette Smith and Roberta Kelly and Christmas carols by Gene Fleming, of the music department, and his family.

The dinner is to start at 5:30 p.m., at the cafeteria near the center administration building. Miss Huhta and the corpswomen ensemble will sing.

Hostesses for the dinner will be corpswomen in the food services occupations curriculum under the direction of Jim Bowd.

The Rev. Richard Koell, of the First Congregational United Church of Christ, Astoria, is president of the Community Relations Council.

Christmas Party The public is invited to a Christmas party tonight at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. The party will be held in the center's dining hall and a performance by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta, and her Tongue Point friends will be featured.

Astoria Motorists, Pedestrians Are Spoiled

It is during these peak hours that motorists and pedestrians are spoiled. The Tongue Point Job Corps Center is located on 18th Street and 12th Avenue. The center is a large building and it is a very busy area. The center is a large building and it is a very busy area.

The Tongue Point Job Corps Center is located on 18th Street and 12th Avenue. The center is a large building and it is a very busy area. The center is a large building and it is a very busy area.

The Tongue Point Job Corps Center is located on 18th Street and 12th Avenue. The center is a large building and it is a very busy area. The center is a large building and it is a very busy area.

Service Groups Will Feed 850 Persons at Christmas

Astoria and Seaside service groups have assisted in getting canned goods in for the needy at Christmas.

Donna Lague, captain of the Clatsop County Sheriff's Office, said she and her group are going to get up to 200 families in need of food. She said the group will be distributing food from the Clatsop County Sheriff's Office and the Clatsop County Welfare Department. The group will be distributing food from the Clatsop County Sheriff's Office and the Clatsop County Welfare Department.

The group will be distributing food from the Clatsop County Sheriff's Office and the Clatsop County Welfare Department. The group will be distributing food from the Clatsop County Sheriff's Office and the Clatsop County Welfare Department.

Director of Center Reports Understanding with Trainee

The director of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center says she has reached an understanding with a trainee who is a member of the Corpswomen Power League.

She said she has reached an understanding with the trainee who is a member of the Corpswomen Power League. She said she has reached an understanding with the trainee who is a member of the Corpswomen Power League.

She said she has reached an understanding with the trainee who is a member of the Corpswomen Power League. She said she has reached an understanding with the trainee who is a member of the Corpswomen Power League.

College Offers Cost Accounting

A program in cost accounting has been started by the Clatsop Community College. The program is a two-year program that will lead to a degree in cost accounting. The program is a two-year program that will lead to a degree in cost accounting.

The program is a two-year program that will lead to a degree in cost accounting. The program is a two-year program that will lead to a degree in cost accounting.

The program is a two-year program that will lead to a degree in cost accounting. The program is a two-year program that will lead to a degree in cost accounting.

Olympics Athlete Visits

Wallo Lee (right) the star center fielder of the United States softball team that played in the Olympics in Mexico, was a visitor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, May 1968. A corpswoman from Texas, holds the trophy given to Grant as best player of the summer Olympics. Grant, 22, is from Portland.

OEO Team Hears Corpwoman Ask for Voice in Administration

A team of federal officials from the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) heard a group of women from the Tongue Point Job Corps Center ask for a voice in the center's administration.

The group, known as the Corpswomen Power League, presented a list of demands to the OEO team. The demands included the right to elect a representative to the center's board of directors, the right to elect a representative to the center's staff, and the right to elect a representative to the center's management committee.

The OEO team listened to the group's demands and promised to look into them. The group expressed their disappointment that the center's administration had not taken their demands seriously.

The group expressed their disappointment that the center's administration had not taken their demands seriously. The group expressed their disappointment that the center's administration had not taken their demands seriously.

Olympics Athlete Visits

Wallo Lee (right) the star center fielder of the United States softball team that played in the Olympics in Mexico, was a visitor at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, May 1968. A corpswoman from Texas, holds the trophy given to Grant as best player of the summer Olympics. Grant, 22, is from Portland.

TV, Power, Phone Workmen Struggle to Restore Service

Astoria residents dug out Wednesday from the worst ice storm in many years as utility, television and highway crews struggled to restore service interrupted overnight by a blizzard.

State police said all highways were open out of the city although chains were required on Highway 26 beyond Elderberry Inn and east of Clatskanie on Highway 30. Highway 101 reportedly was bare with icy spots.

Utility companies rushed in crews from other cities as falling limbs and trees sent power and telephone lines crashing to the ground. Astoria city police said 100 calls were received regarding downed power lines.

State, county and city police reported no New Year's eve arrests as extremely adverse driving conditions held celebrations inside.

"Damage to power lines was comparable to that of the Columbus day storm," said Howard Hendrick, line superintendent for Pacific Power and Light Company. "Crews from Albany, Lincoln City and Corvallis are restoring power service to street lights until all homes receive power, officials said."

Job Corps Power Officer at Tongue Point Job Corps center, power went off shortly after noon Tuesday and some dormitories were without heat. No hot meals were served Tuesday night and corpswomen ate cold sandwiches. Pile-ups were reported on Highway 101 near railroad tracks west of Knappa at 8 p.m.

Phone Lines Out
Ivan Solomon of Pacific Northwest Bell company said telephone service to Knappa and Salem had been cut in and local repair men. He estimated that 22 subscribers were without service in Knappa.

Astoria bridge to Washington was closed to traffic at 1:34 p.m., state police said, when 25-pound chunks of ice began falling from the superstructure.

Clatsop Extension Agent R.

New Social Center Opens

Public officials and job corpswomen joined to open the new social center at Tongue Point on Christmas Eve. In upper photo (from left) Robert Burns, Mayor and Mrs. Harry Steinbock, Dr. Dorothy Burns and corpswomen examine the lily pond in a corner of the lounge. In lower photo, corpswomen watch the opening entertainment. In the center, wearing crown, is Ruth Terrell, Miss Tongue Point.

Tongue Point Social Center Is Rated as a Clear Success

The new social center at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center, Ponderosa Lounge, has been a clear success so far, say corps officials.

The facility, the first building on the left as one enters the main gate at Tongue Point, has been repainted inside to provide a place for corpswomen to go on their leisure hours. The lounge includes a dance area and juke box, a game room, a television room and a large lounge area and will have a snack bar later. Much of the furniture was donated and refurbished by center personnel.

"It's been getting very good use," said Gertrude Meriwether of the corps staff.

The lounge was dedicated on Christmas Eve, Astoria Mayor Harry Steinbock and Mrs. Steinbock and City Manager Dale Curry and Mrs. Curry representing the community and officiating for the center were Miss Meriwether, advisor to student government, Lynn Morry, supervisor of business and clerical occupations teaching; corpswoman Lillian Washington, acting student director for student government, and center director Dr. Dorothy Burns. A program of entertainment was presented by center staff members and corpswomen.

Community Christmas

Some 150 townspeople attended the Community Christmas party at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center Tuesday and heard "Soul Christmas" performed by Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta and seven Job Corpswomen. The group has performed and gave their final performance at institutions and nursing homes. The party also included dinner, a tour of the center last night, at Ponderosa Hall led by Otto Weigel. Margie is pictured third from left in the singing group. Job Corpswomen participating in the "Soul Christmas" are Gloria James, Lillian Alexander, Gloria Coleman, Valeria Pichon, Helen Hawkins, Suzette Scrivens, and Sharon Barrett.

Singers at Nursing Home

'Soul Christmas' Program Now Being Presented

"Soul Christmas" is now in full swing with Miss Oregon, Margie Huhta of Seaside, and eight Tongue Point Job Corpswomen presenting their Christmas program throughout the area and on television. The group is singing 15 performances primarily at hospitals and institutions and at the Tongue Point center.

A performance was given at the Naselle Youth Camp in Naselle, Wash., last Saturday afternoon, and on Sunday the singers performed for the Seaside and Gearhart Convalescent homes.

When the singers presented "Let There Be Peace on Earth" tears began to show up among the patients and Margie said "It was all we could do to keep going" during the show. Jim Cameron, director of public relations at the center said.

The group sang at St. Mary Hospital at 3 and 4 p.m. and at Crestview Nursing Home at 6 p.m. on Monday.

Today they performed at the Bank of Astoria open house at 11 a.m. At 2 p.m. they were scheduled to be at the Portland

White Shield home approximately 90 miles away, and then at the state mental institution at 7:30 p.m.

On Tuesday, Dec. 23 they will sing at 9 a.m. on the KGW Telescope show, and at 7:30 p.m. that evening will entertain at the Tongue Point Community Christmas party at the center, where the public is invited to attend. For information on the Christmas party phone Cameron at the center.

This is Margie's and eight corpswomen's way of saying Merry Christmas to those less fortunate than themselves.

Miss Oregon, corpswomen to tour in "Soul Christmas"

"Soul Christmas," an hour of musical entertainment that will play 15 performances during the holiday season, is the final result of an idea that came, some time ago, to Margie Huhta, Miss Oregon for 1969. Miss Huhta believes that her title carries the responsibility of service to the people of Oregon and it occurred to her that there are many of them who would find the Christmas season happier for a little light-hearted fun.

She was more than willing to share her musical talents with them; suppose she could find towns who would do the same? It should, she reasoned, be a whole show that could travel easily, perform in any area available, but where to find a group of young people willing to give up their holiday season to spend their time entertaining others?

She found an answer. The girls at the Tongue Point Job Corps center were all a long way from home. Using the Corps women for a cause would not only make the show possible, but also would provide a way for a group of later home girls to fill their holidays with the pleasure of serving others. And so the production was born. Two musicals have been prepared, one for children and one for adults. The musicals include "Jingle Bell Rock," "I Want the Beatles for Christmas," "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and "White Christmas." The children's version also features the telling of two popular Christmas stories.

In Clatsop county, the group will perform at the Seaside Convalescent Center, Edgewater Coast Hospital, St. Mary hospital, Columbia hospital and Crestview Nursing Home.

Other engagements are at the Naselle Youth Camp, the White Shield Homes in Portland, the Angel Job Corps center, and, in Salem, at the state mental hospital, Federal mental retardation center and Oregon state prison.

Last performance will bring the corpswomen to the center home to Tongue Point for a showing on December 30 at 7 p.m. It is planned as a special evening for all Clatsop county residents as part of the Tongue Point community Christmas party.

New Direction for Job Corps Residential Living Examined

By BRIDGET COOPER
Of The Daily Astorian
Members of the Clatsop Community Relations Council of the Tongue Point Job Corps Center

discussed the "new directions" for the Job Corps residential living as suggested by the U.S. Department of Labor during their Monday night meeting. The residential living referred to by the council and the Department of Labor includes counseling and social and cultural development of the Corpswomen.

Jeannette Smith, assistant associate director of center life, and George Miller, assistant associate director of the counseling program, attended a workshop in Washington, D.C., sponsored by the Department of Labor on operation of a residence program. The workshop, held in mid-December, reviewed the present policies at the center, redefining the program, and aiming for a continuous 24 hour program for the corpswomen.

"We can do much more than what we are now doing here now," Miss Smith said.

Dr. Dorothy Burns, director of the Tongue Point Center, said, "The push is on that we have a meaningful program all of the time. We have some girls here that never get involved in anything as we never force the issue."

Discussion was held on getting the corpswomen more involved in town activities in the schools and in the community organizations.

"We need to develop suggestions on not only what they should be involved in, but in the method of involving. We have never had a massive exchange of students or teachers in the school systems. We have never had corpswomen involved in city government such as the student government day in the city offices," Dr. Burns commented.

Ethelyn Lindstrom suggested an interchange of classrooms in the high schools with the Tongue Point classrooms and also meetings of student governments of Tongue Point and the high schools. During the discussions it was decided by the 30 some people at the meeting that ideas should be gathered by staff, townspeople and corpswomen and then combined into a proposal by all concerned.

Residents of the Seaside Convalescent Center and the Edgewater Guest Home were entertained Sunday by Margie Huhta, Miss Oregon for 1969, and girls from the Tongue Point-Job Corps Center with a musical entitled "Soul Christmas." The troupe has scheduled 15 performances. Tuesday they were scheduled to entertain at the White Shield home in Portland and the state penitentiary in Salem. The last performance will be December 30 at 7 p.m. at the Job Corps center. It is planned as a special evening for all Clatsop county residents as part of the center community Christmas party. Left right, Margie Huhta, Valeria Pichon, Gloria James and Sharon Barrett.

"Soul Christmas" an hour of musical entertainment which was the brainchild of Margie Huhta, Miss Oregon for 1969, was presented at rest homes in the Seaside area last Sunday. Joining in the production were girls from the Tongue Point Job Corps center. Two versions of the musical, one for children and one for adults, were prepared. "Soul Christmas" is entirely Margie's project. She collected the material, auditioned the cast and directed the show. Left to right, Helen Hawkins, Gloria James, Sharon Barrett, Suzette Scrivens, Margie Huhta, Lillian Alexander, Annie Holloway, Valeria Pichon and Gloria Cole.

"Soul Christmas" an hour of musical entertainment which was the brainchild of Margie Huhta, Miss Oregon for 1969, was presented at rest homes in the Seaside area last Sunday. Joining in the production were girls from the Tongue Point Job Corps center. Two versions of the musical, one for children and one for adults, were prepared. "Soul Christmas" is entirely Margie's project. She collected the material, auditioned the cast and directed the show. Left to right, Helen Hawkins, Gloria James, Sharon Barrett, Suzette Scrivens, Margie Huhta, Lillian Alexander, Annie Holloway, Valeria Pichon and Gloria Cole.

ASTORIAN 12-5-69

Social Center

Ponderosa Hall at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center is being renovated to a social-recreation center. Partitions are being removed, and a recreation area is being constructed in one corner of the hall, which is near the main gate at the Job Corps Center. The facility is to be used for dances, gatherings and leisure time activity by corpswomen and their guests.

Astoria, Ore.
Daily Ast.
(Cir. 0 75)

DEC 2 6 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Accident Victim--in Classroom

Seven area teachers completed advanced first aid training class at Clatsop Community College during the fall quarter. Hashim Shawa, Dorothy Willner and Vivian Fisher, all teachers in Astoria schools, look on here as Virgil Burger, instructor of the 11-week class, points out a problem they may encounter in an actual case. Six girls from Tongue Point Job Corps Center acted as accident victims for the teacher-students during the final examination.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. 0 7577)

DEC 1 9 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Livestock Operation, Auto Repair Facility Proposed for Clatsop College Curriculum

By MIKE FORHESTER
Daily Astorian Editor

(See related story, Page 5)
Clatsop College board members heard further plans Thursday night for beefing up the college's curriculum and increasing enrollment.

The board received proposals for setting up a livestock operation on the former Sigfridson farm, west of the Klaskanine Fish Hatchery, and for setting up an auto-repair facility at the Tongue Point Job Corps Center. Staff officials also outlined efforts to retain more students and recruit new ones.

Wednesday, December 3, 1969

New President

The Rev. Richard Kroll, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Christ, Astoria, is the new president of the Tongue Point Community Relations Council. Elected Tuesday night, he succeeds Frank McIntyre, Astoria. Other new officers named: Mrs. Helmer Lindstrom, Astoria, vice president; Donna White, Seaside, secretary; Richard Jones, Astoria, treasurer; and Bill Van Dusen, Judge Harold T. Johnson and McIntyre, executive committee members.

Livestock technology instructor Bill Bennett proposed that the college ask county officials for permission to set up facilities for raising beef cattle, swine and sheep at the Sigfridson place, which is privately owned and to be dedicated as a county park.

Use 40 Acres

Bennett's idea included using perhaps 40 acres of the more than 70-acre property for livestock operations and have a livestock specialist live on the place, to tend to the stock and to also keep an eye on the county's park.

Bennett and board member Richard Gertrude, who is a farmer, said they thought the college would have to embark on such a project or get rid of the livestock technology program of the college. Bennett said the present classroom instruction on livestock isn't sufficient; he said a place for practical application is needed.

The instructor said he thought that $25,000 in the 1970-71 budget would be enough to set up the operation. He proposed a herd of some 10 dairy cows the thought the college could have them, donated without much trouble. Some sheep, a 30 by 40 foot beef barn, and in the more distant future, a 32-cow dairy barn. Bennett proposed a milking set-up, with milk being sold to dairies in the area, similar to what the Oregon State University School of Agriculture does.

Voices Confidence

The instructor voiced confidence that the livestock industry would donate both animals and machinery.

On motion of Gertrude, the board voted to pursue details of the proposal.

The auto-repair instructional facility at Tongue Point calls for using a building at the Job Corps Center, virtually unused since the center stopped training boys three years ago.

Merle Peters, director of the vocational division, said the cost to the college would be some plywood, to fence off the instructional area, and a chemical toilet.

He said the college is now combining its auto repair instruction with welding, because of a lack of space, resulting in auto repair work being done in the rain sometimes. Peters said three students had left the college because of inadequate facilities.

Project Okayed

The board okayed going ahead on the project. Permission has to be gained from the Job Corps, in Washington D. C., also, said Peters.

On student retention and recruitment, staff members reported on many efforts being made. Dean of Instruction Phil Bainer said curricula had been revised so that entering students winter term may take many courses from the beginning, rather than getting in on the middle of a course.

Registrar Jewell Manspecker said his office had put the names of 400 youngsters who have indicated interest in Clatsop on computer cards, along with the prospective students' names of interest, so that recruitment of them can be improved. In addition, high school contacts are being pursued, said Manspecker, and the college receives a list of prospective college students monthly from the State System of Higher Education.

Lost Students

He said the college lost some 75 students last winter term and believes that it can reduce that figure considerably this winter.

Ronald Collman, head of the evening school division, said many new classes would be added in winter term to help reduce the figure, including some 11 ones.

Collman said again.

College officials in Oregon had expressed surprise at the high amount Clatsop charges for evening courses and he said he thought it might be a good point.

In other board business: Bainer said courses in the vocational-technical area will be restudied in January, resulting perhaps in some revisions and some eliminations. Also being studied, he said, is putting in a pass-no pass system, in place of grades, in some courses where the grade isn't so important.

Bids Accepted

The board accepted these bids on furniture for the new library: Western School Supply Co., Portland, for wood chairs, $24,925. Also bidding was Astoria Business Equipment, Mercer Steel Co., Portland, on shelving, $5,200, and Rubenstein's, Eugene, on carpet, $9,324. Architect Ernest Brown said progress on the library is good, with panels continuing to go into place and the first phase of roofing to be completed soon.

Peters said the committee screening applicants for the presidency of the college was getting many applications. Jan. 1 is the announced deadline for receiving applications, although Peters said that the committee would look at ones submitted after that.

The Clatsop College Foundation dinner raised $2,578 for scholarships, above last year's figure because of the auction this year.

The college's exposition, featuring dedicating of the library and programs for prospective students, is still set for April 18, said President McCollom.

The retirement age requirement was waived for Vera Gaul, counselor, in accordance with state regulations.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. 0 6 996)

JAN 9 1969

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

60 Corpswomen Arrive Here

Arrival of 60 new trainees Wednesday at Tongue Point Job Corps center swelled total enrollment to 707, center officials said. Most of the new corpswomen are from the west coast, principally California. The training center has graduated 238 since training began for women in March, 1967, a spokesman said.

OUR SAVIOUR'S LUTHERAN CHURCH
December 14, 1969 3rd Sunday in Advent

PREPARATION FOR WORSHIP

Worshippers are encouraged to kneel in prayer before the service begins to help prepare for worship.

TO PONDER:

"Jesus is coming. A Messiah is coming some report. If ancient forecasts are valid the Messiah will lead us in rebuilding our ruined cities. A new reign of peace will be inaugurated. The hardware which we have forged for the violent death of our enemies will be reformed into tools for the sustenance and enrichment of life. The word will be comfort you not destroy you my people."

Alan Geyer

WORSHIPPERS ARE ASKED TO FOLLOW THE WORSHIP SERVICE IN THE BOOKLET "CELEBRATION". Directions will be found in the books themselves. You are asked to leave them in the pews when the worship is over.

Hymns used today will be all for the opening hymn in the red hymnal. Place the booklet in that place.

THE OFFERING TODAY

Offering plates will be placed in noticed locations in the Sanctuary. When it comes time to go into the parish hall for the sermon you are asked to place your offering in the plate.

THE SERMON TODAY

Mr. Jim Cameron, Community Relations Director at TP Job Corps Center, Astoria is part of the sermon this morning by showing a slides & tape presentation. We are pleased he can be here to share with us. The congregation will move to the parish hall to view this presentation. YOU ARE INVITED TO STAY FOR COFFEE AFTER THE WORSHIP.

SPECIAL THANK YOU to Bill Willson, lay assistant for worship for sharing in the leadership of the liturgy this morning.

SPECIAL PARISH CONCERNS

FOR PRAYER: Ill at St. Marys Hospital, Mrs. L.P. Christiansen.

Leaving us to move to another community this week, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hansen. God's blessing as they move to another city.

Mr. & Mrs. Jeff Brooks, married here last evening. Prayer of joy. Other persons in need, events of joy we should pray for will be asked for from you at the time of the Prayer of the Church.

OPPORTUNITY: TONGUE POINT CHRISTMAS SHARING

Mrs. Shannon White is the person to contact about giving your name as a family who would be willing to have Corps women share Christmas dinner at your home. 600 girls will be staying on base. Used furniture that would be usable for the new activity center on base will be collected this Friday & Sat. Mrs. Whites tel. number is 738-7751.

OPPORTUNITY: SHARE CHRISTMAS WITH PATIENTS AT FAIRVIEW MENTAL RETARDED HOSPITAL

Any small gift, games, puzzles, clothing (no shoes) mark sex and age on outside of gift wrapped package. Bring to Sisters at Convent 1235 Ave. A. Two-thirds of the 3000 patients get no visit or not gift at Christmas. Items like cards and socks really needed.

THIS WEEK

TODAY 2:30 P.M. Ecumenical Youth group meets at Tois. Church. All youth Council members and inter. others welcome as we plan for the rest of the year.

TUESDAY 10:00 A.M. Coffee at Pastor's apt. 7:30 P.M. L.C.W. GENERAL MEETING

WEDNESDAY 1:30 P.M. Pastor's Class. 7:00 P.M. 8th Grade Confirmation.

THURSDAY 7:30 P.M. Pastor Floyd Lewis meets with Council at Church. 8:15 P.M. CHOIR REHEARSAL.

FRIDAY 7:30 P.M. Party here for County Youth.

Democrat-Herald
Albany, Oregon
(Cir. D 13,241)

MAR 15 1967

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

U. of O. Gets Job Center Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The University of Oregon has been awarded a $5.7 million contract to operate the new women's Job Corps center at Tongue Point.

The center will offer basic education, work training and health education to girls aged 16 to 21 who are jobless and out of school.

More than 600 girls are expected in April.

The university, which operated the center with the Philco-Ford Corp. when men were trained there, signed the contract for a 16-month period.

Medford, Oregon
Mail Tribune
(Cir. D. 27,748)

MAR 31 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

$14 Million Spent At Tongue Point

ASTORIA (UPI) — Total expenditures at Tongue Point Job Corps Center during the two-year period since its establishment were $14,380,773. The figures for the period of Dec. 15, 1965, to Oct. 31, 1967, were released Friday by the University of Oregon.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D 6943)

APR 17 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Lions Schedule November Show

Lions club members set November 1-3 as dates for their annual home and auto show Tuesday night.

The show will be held in the fall instead of the spring this year for the first time and will be in a new location—Hangar 3 at Tongue Point Job Corps center.

Allen Bernhoff of the show committee reported successful negotiation with Job Corps officials in Washington, D. C., for use of the huge hangar. Previous shows have been held in the Armory.

News
Springfield, Oregon
(Cir. W 7,084)

APR 18 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

CLUB ENTERTAINED

Girls from the Tongue Point Job Corps entertained members of the Emblem club at a recent meeting. The girls presented a reading and several Hawaiian dances. The well-attended meeting was presided over by Millie Geist. A potluck for members and their husbands was announced for May 14 at 6:30 p. m.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D 6943)

APR 26 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Corpsmen Visit Job Corpsmen from Tillamook, Timberlake, Ft. Simcoe, Wash., and Marsing, Ida., will be in Astoria Saturday night for a dance at the Tongue Point women's center.

Salem, Oregon
Capital Journal
(Cir. D. 23,910)

APR 29 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Astoria Gas Group Raps Taxing Plans

ASTORIA (AP) — The Astoria Gasoline Dealers' Association opposes the proposal to increase gasoline taxes to finance state acquisition of beach property.

The dealers have told State Treasurer Robert Straub that they will fight an initiative measure that would create a 1-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline to pay off bonds.

Straub is leading the initiative campaign to provide public beaches along the entire length of the Oregon coast.

were believed to have been set deliberately.

Tribute Planned

SWEET HOME (AP) — The Sweet Home School District will fly the American flag at half

Budget Set

ASTORIA (AP) — The U.S. government spent nearly $14.4 million on the Tongue Point Job Corps Center between Dec. 15, 1965, and Oct. 31, 1967.

The Office of Economic Opportunity has budgeted another $3.3 million for the center through June 30, 1968.

The department of community relations at the center says over $7 million was spent on salaries. The staff averaged about 450 persons while the center operated for men and now has a staff of about 300.

Seven Car Fires

EUGENE (AP) — Police and firemen reported seven car fires in 2½ hours Sunday morning in the Eugene-Springfield area. The agencies did not know what caused the blazes, but said they most once a month in tribute to Americans killed in the Vietnam war. Eleven school principals voted to lower the flags on the last school day of each month.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D 6943)

MAY 16 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Job Corps Trip Buses will take 74 Tongue Point Job Corps center trainees to Cispus Men's Job Corps center at Randle, Wash., Saturday for an all-day program including a track meet and dance, according to the center's recreation department. Corpsmen from Tillamook, Timber Lake and Wolf Creek centers in Oregon and from Marsing and Mountain Home centers in Idaho will be at Tongue Point for a dance Saturday night. Friday night Tongue Point trainees will go to Portland to attend a session of the Billy Graham crusade.

Astoria, Oregon
Astorian
(Cir. D 6943)

MAY 10 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Trainees to Host Picnic Saturday

Tongue Point Job Corps center trainees will host a picnic at Fort Stevens park Saturday afternoon for 40 visiting corpsmen from the Wolf Creek men's center, and the Wolf Creek group will attend a dance at the center Saturday night, along with corpsmen from Angell, Cispus and Timber Lake centers.

Another group of 72 Tongue Point corpswomen will travel to Tillamook by bus Saturday afternoon and evening for a dance, dinner and carnival program there, the center's recreation department announced.

Also on the center's weekend recreation schedule were Friday and Sunday night motion pictures in the center theater, and skating, bowling and table games in the recreation center. Sunday morning buses will take corpswomen to church services in Astoria and Portland.

Astoria, Oregon
Columbia Press
(Cir. D. 13,211)

MAY 16 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

ENROLLMENT AT TONGUE POINT REACHES 680

Enrollment at the Tongue Point Job Corps was 680 this week when 53 new girls were entered. Present authorized enrollment is 650, but enrollment fluctuates with graduations and arrivals.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 7309)

JUL 25 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Attend Dance—Corpsmen from the Timber Lake, Wolf Creek and Malheur men's Job Corps centers will attend a dance Saturday night in the Tongue Point Job Corps center theater building.

East Oregonian
Pendleton, Oregon

AUG 13 1968

ASTORIA (AP) — Judges will select Miss Tongue Point of 1968 in a pageant Friday night. The queen and her four princesses will represent the Job Corps center in the Astoria Regatta.

Astoria, Oregon
Daily Astorian
(Cir. D. 7309)

AUG 1 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Corpswomen — Two busloads of corpswomen from the Tongue Point Job Corps center will go to Portland Friday evening to attend a performance at the Memorial Coliseum there by comedian Bill Crosby, center recreation officials said. Sunday night, another large group of girls is expected to attend the James Brown show in Portland. An overnight trip to the Wolf Creek men's center will be taken by 57 corpswomen Saturday and Sunday. There will be no visiting men's centers at Tongue Point this week.

Eugene, Oregon
Register-Guard
(Cir. D. 49,749)

AUG 13 1968

Allen's P.C.B. Est. 1888

Pageant to Be Held

ASTORIA (AP) — Judges will select Miss Tongue Point of 1968 in a pageant Friday night. The queen and her four princesses will represent the Job Corps center in the Astoria Regatta.